

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

MAP OF THE WORLD ON THE EQUIVALENT PROJECTION

This new map presents a comprehensive view of the superficial area of the earth, not unlike that which would be displayed by the printed cover of a globe, if removed and flattened.

On this map all areas appear in their true proportion. For example, Greenland, which, on Mercator's Projection, seems to be larger than South America, here is shown in its relative proportion of size to that continent, having less than one-eighth of the latter's area. In fact, this is the only projection in which are shown the equivalent areas, or correct sizes, of all parts of the globe, in their proper relative position.

The meridians are placed fifteen degrees apart, and, since this interval is equal to one hour of time, meridians and intervals make a standard time-map for the whole earth.

Colonial possessions of European powers in Africa, Asia and Oceania, shown in colors corresponding with those used for mother countries.

 5½ yds. = 1 rod. 3 miles = 1 league.
 The hand (4 in.) is used to measure horses' heights. The nautical mile is 6,086.44 ft. 1 knot is 1.1528 statute miles.

 9 sq. ft. = 1 sq. yd. 640 acres = 1 sq. mile.
 30¼ sq. yds. = 1 sq. rod.
 The side of a square having an area of an acre is approximately 208¼ feet.

MEASURES OF TEMPERATURE

Reaumur	Centigrade	Fahrenheit
80	100	212	Water boils at sea-level.

To change from centigrade to Fahrenheit multiply by 9, divide by 5 and add 32. To change from Reaumur to Fahrenheit, multiply by 9, divide by 4 and add 32.

MINIMUM WEIGHTS OF PRODUCE

The following are minimum weights of certain articles of produce according to the laws of the United States:

	Per Bu.		Per Bu.
Wheat	60 lbs.	Dried peaches	33 lbs.
Corn, in the ear	70 "	Dried apples	26 "
Corn, shelled	56 "	Clover seed	60 "
Buckwheat	48 "	Millet seed	50 "

Turnips	55 "	Bran	20 "

SALT.—Weight per bushel as adopted by different states ranges from 50 to 80 pounds. Coarse salt in Pennsylvania is reckoned at 80 pounds, in Kentucky and Illinois at 50 pounds per bushel. Fine salt in Pennsylvania is reckoned at 62 pounds, in Kentucky and Illinois at 55 pounds per bushel.

To find the weight of a cubic foot, multiply 62.321 lbs. by the specific gravity. To find the number of cubic feet in one ton, divide 35.943 by the specific gravity.

STONE AND BRICK WALLS

A perch of stone is 24.75 cubic feet. When built in the wall, $2\frac{1}{4}$ cubic feet are allowed for the mortar and filling; hence, 22 cubic feet of stone make one perch of wall.

Masons estimate 3 pecks of lime and 4 bushels of sand to a perch of wall.

To find the number of perches of stone in a wall, multiply together the length, height, and thickness in feet, and divide by 22.

Common bricks are $7\frac{1}{4}$ to 8 inches long by $4\frac{1}{4}$ inches wide and $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches thick. Front bricks are $\frac{1}{4}$ inch longer and wider.

It requires 20 common bricks to lay one cubic foot. In an 8-inch wall 15 common bricks make one foot of wall. (See also Material Required for Buildings).

WOOD AND LUMBER MEASURE

A cord of wood contains 128 cubic feet. To ascertain how many cords there are in a pile of wood, multiply the length by the height, and that by the width, and divide the product by 128.

To ascertain the circumference of a tree required to hew a stick of timber of any given number of inches square, divide the given side of the square by 0.225, and the quotient is the circumference required.

Round timber, when squared, loses one-fifth.

To measure round timber, take the girth in inches at both large and small ends, add them, divide by 2, which gives the mean girth; then multiply the length in feet by the square of one-fourth of the mean girth and the product will be the contents in cubic feet. This rule is commonly adopted, and gives four-fifths of the true contents, one-fifth being allowed to the purchaser for waste in sawing.

To measure inch boards, multiply the length in feet by the width in inches, and divide the product by 12. The quotient will be the contents in feet. For lumber $1\frac{1}{4}$ inches thick, add $\frac{1}{4}$ to the quotient. If $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches thick, add $\frac{1}{2}$. If $1\frac{3}{4}$ inches thick, add $\frac{3}{4}$. If 2 inches thick, divide by 6 instead of by 12. If $2\frac{1}{4}$ inches thick, add $\frac{1}{4}$ to the quotient and so on. If 3 inches thick, divide by 4. If $4\frac{1}{4}$ inches thick, divide by 3. If 6 inches thick, divide by 2.

COVERING CAPACITY OF SHINGLES

Average size of shingles—4 x 16 inches—is taken as a basis of calculation.

100 sq. ft. will require, laid 4 inches to the weather..... 900
100 sq. ft. will require, laid $4\frac{1}{2}$ inches to the weather..... 800
100 sq. ft. will require, laid 5 inches to the weather..... 720

Three and one-half pounds of four-penny nails are required for laying 1,000 shingles.

Five to ten per cent. should be added to these figures for waste and shortage.

BOARD MEASURE

To ascertain how many board feet are contained in a piece of timber when all the dimensions are given. The size of a board in the first column at the left refers to the width and thickness in inches. The top column designates the length in feet.

CONVERSION OF VARIOUS TABLES

 Yards multiplied by .0006 equals miles.
 Links multiplied by .22 equals yards.
 Square inches multiplied by .00695 equals square feet.
 Circular inches multiplied by .00546 equals square feet.
 Width in chains multiplied by .8 equals acres per mile.
 Cubic inches multiplied by .00058 equals cubic feet.
 U. S. bushels multiplied by .0461 equals cubic yards.
 U. S. bushels multiplied by 1.2444 equals cubic feet.
 U. S. bushels multiplied by 2150.42 equals cubic inches.
 U. S. gallons multiplied by .13367 equals cubic feet.
 U. S. gallons multiplied by .231 equals cubic inches.
 Cubic feet multiplied by 7.48 equals U. S. gallons.
 Cylindrical inch of water multiplied by .02842 equals lbs. avoird.
 Cylindrical feet multiplied by 5.874 equals U. S. gallons.
 U. S. gallons of water multiplied by 268.8 equals one ton.
 Cubic feet of water multiplied by 35.88 equals one ton.

 Square foot of an area multiplied by 1.12837 equals diam. of equal circle.
 Square of the diam. of a sphere multiplied by 3.1416 equals convex surface.
 Diameter of a sphere multiplied by .806 equals dimensions of equal cube.
 2200 cylindrical inches equals 1 cubic foot.

FACTS ABOUT THE HUMAN BODY

 The weight of the circulating blood is 29 lbs.
 The brain of a man exceeds twice that of any animal.
 The average weight of the brain of a man is 3½ lbs.; of a woman 2 lbs. 11 oz.
 Five hundred and forty pounds, or one hoghead and one and a quarter pints of blood pass through the heart in one hour.
 A man breathes about 20 times a minute.
 The average height of an Englishman is 5 ft. 9 in.; of a Frenchman 5 ft. 4 in.; of a Belgian 5 ft. 6¾ in.
 The heart sends nearly 10 lbs. of blood through the veins and arteries each beat, and makes four beats while we breathe once.
 One hundred and seventy-five million cells are in the lungs, which would cover a surface thirty times greater than the human body.
 The average of the pulse in infancy is 120 per minute; in manhood 80; at sixty years 60. The pulse of females is more rapid than that of males.

KINDS OF TIME

There are in general use three different kinds of time: True Solar Time—also called Apparent Solar Time; Mean Solar Time, and Sidereal Time.

True or Apparent Solar Time is measured by the diurnal motion of the Sun, the length of the day being the interval between two successive transits of the Sun over the same meridian, and the time of day being the hour-angle of the Sun westward from the meridian. Owing to the obliquity of the ecliptic and to the lack of uniformity of the motion of the Earth in its orbit, the rate of motion of the Sun in hour-angle and the length of the apparent solar day are not constant. Therefore clocks and chronometers cannot be regulated to apparent solar time, which may, however, be determined by observations of the sun when visible.

Mean Solar Time is measured by the motion of a fictitious body called the mean Sun which is supposed to move uniformly in the celestial equator, completing the circuit in one tropical year. Since mean solar time is uniform and regular in its passage, clocks and watches may be regulated to it.

Mean solar time cannot, of course, be determined by direct observation, but may be determined indirectly by correcting observations of the Sun for the equation of time, or by converting to mean time sidereal time determined by observations of fixed stars.

The Mean Solar Day is the unit of mean solar time, and is equal in length to the mean or average of all the true or apparent solar days of the year. It may be otherwise defined as the interval of time elapsing between two successive transits of the mean Sun across the meridian of any place.

Sidereal Time, or star time, in general terms, is measured by the diurnal motion of the fixed stars, or, speaking more precisely, by the diurnal motion of that point on the celestial equator called the vernal equinox, from which the right ascensions of the heavenly bodies are measured. Astronomical clocks regulated to sidereal time are called sidereal clocks. Sidereal time may be determined from observations of stars whose right ascensions are known.

A Sidereal Day is very nearly the length of time in which the Earth rotates on its axis and is accurately defined as the time interval between two successive transits of the vernal equinox over the same meridian. The sidereal day is shorter than the mean solar day by 3 min. 56.555 sec. sidereal time or 3 min. 55.909 sec. mean solar time, the tropical year of 365.2422 mean solar days containing 366.2422 sidereal days. Sidereal time and the length of the sidereal day are subject to slight irregularities on account of small differences between the positions of the true and mean equinoxes.

The mean solar and sidereal days are each divided into 24 hours. About March 23 (civil date) of each year, about two days after the vernal equinox, there is an instant when the face of a sidereal clock shows the same time as a mean time clock, and the former gains on the latter 3 min. 56.555 sec. sidereal time per mean solar day, so that at the end of a year it will have gained one sidereal day and will again agree with the mean time clock.

The Equation of Time is the difference in hour-angle between the true Sun and the mean Sun. The true Sun is sometimes before and sometimes behind the mean Sun by an amount which varies from zero to about 16 minutes.

The Civil Day begins at midnight and comprises 24 hours, the hours being counted 0 to 12 in two series, the first denoted by A.M., running from midnight to noon, and the second, denoted by P.M., running from noon to midnight.

The Astronomical Day begins at noon on the civil day of the same date, the 24 hours being counted from 0 to 24, running from noon of one day to noon of the next day. Astronomical time as well as civil time may be either apparent or mean.

THE LONGEST DAY

It is quite important when speaking of the longest day of the year to say what part of the world we are talking about, as will be seen by the following list.

At Stockholm, Sweden, the longest day is eighteen and one-half hours in length.

At Spitzbergen, it is three and one-half months.

At London, England, and Bremen, Prussia, the longest day has seventeen hours.

At Wardbury, Norway, the longest day lasts from May 21st to July 22d, without interruption.

At St. Petersburg, Russia, and Tobolsk, Siberia, the longest day is nineteen hours and the shortest five hours.

At Tornea, Finland, June 21st brings a day nearly twenty-two hours long, and Christmas is less than three hours in length.

REVISING THE CALENDAR

Switzerland proposes that we amend the calendar.

The idea is that all months shall be of the same length.

This involves setting aside 52 days for Sundays; and these, with New Year's Day and Leap Year Day, are treated as not to be counted. This leaves 312 days, to be evenly apportioned as 12 months of 26 days each.

The great objection is that there would be a week of eight days at the beginning of each new year, and another week of eight days at the end of February every Leap Year.

When Julius Caesar revised the calendar, even with the crude astronomical methods of that day, they gave the year 365¼ days, an error of only 11¼ minutes. This error has been corrected by the Leap Year provision of 29 days for February.

Caesar decreed that his birth month Quintilis should be changed to July, after his prenomen, Julius, and have 31 days. His successor, Augustus, born in the month Sextilis changed his month to August and assigned 31 days to it also. This is one reason why February has only 28 days.

The wettest continent is So. America, with an average rainfall of 65.7 inches. Africa has an average rainfall of 32.5 inches. North America and Europe each about 28.7 inches, and Asia 21.7 inches. Australia is somewhat less.

COLDEST PLACE ON EARTH

The lowest temperature ever recorded was at Verchojansk, in the interior of Siberia, January 15, 1885. It was ninety degrees and a fraction below zero. In that section, the earth freezes to a depth of a hundred feet and in the warmest season it never thaws.

CAUSE OF TIDES

The theory of earth tides is not a new one, as the varying effect of the sun and the moon on the earth is tremendous. Observations have been taken eighty-two feet below the surface with a horizontal pendulum so delicately constructed that measurements with it could be taken of variations one-hundred-thousandth part of a second. The earth appears to be affected by the sun and moon twice in each twenty-four hours, the moon exerting twice the influence of the sun. The whole shape of the earth is affected, and not merely the crust. It is an actual deformation of the ball, setting up bodily tides, which follow the direction of the ordinary ocean tides in half-day periods. Scientists, who have made this subject a life-long study, have come to the conclusion that the earth has a degree of rigidity equivalent to that of a ball of steel of the same size, but the evidence is against the idea that there is a viscous stratum between the crust and the solid central core. There is now no doubt the earth flows and ebbs much like the sea.

HEIGHT AND LENGTH OF WAVES OF THE SEA

The height of the waves in a storm rarely exceeds 12 feet, and in very bad disturbances on the high sea they may reach a height of 50 feet. Their length is never over 600 feet. In the southern parts of the Pacific waves 43 feet in height have been measured. In the southern part of the Atlantic 39 feet, and in the Bay of Biscay and in the Mediterranean 12 feet. At places where the waves strike at an object, such as a lighthouse, they rise, of course, much higher—at Bell Rock, for instance, over 100 feet and at Unst over 200. On the open sea, however, they never rise over 50 feet.

CAUSE OF THUNDER AND LIGHTNING

When a thunderstorm occurs, a stress is thrown on the air, either between two clouds or between a cloud and the earth, and when this stress has reached a pressure of about half a gramme weight to the square inch, the air is literally cracked. The line of the fracture is illuminated by the intense heat caused, rendering the air particles incandescent, and we see this and call it lightning. This is all lightning is; there is no "bolt" and no transference of matter from one place to another. To speak or write of an object as being "struck" by lightning is calculated to produce a wrong impression, because it conveys the idea of a ponderable object giving a blow. It is literally an incorrect term, but we are forced to employ it because it has been so long in use.

ORIGIN OF THE NAMES OF THE DAYS

The week was unknown to the ancients. It was gradually adopted under the later emperors.

The arrangement of the heavenly bodies, according to their distances from the earth, is in the following order: Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, the Sun, Venus, Mercury, the Moon; and it was a principle of the ancient astrology, that these planets presided in succession over the hours of the day, and from which the Latin designations given to days of the week have been derived; and from these have been formed the modern names used in different countries, either by literal translation, or, in the Teutonic tongues, by the substitution, in some cases, of the corresponding deity of northern paganism for the classical god.

SUNDAY—Is so called because it was anciently dedicated to the worship of the Sun.

MONDAY—Means literally the Day of the Moon.

TUESDAY—Was dedicated to Tuisco, the Mars of our Saxon ancestors, the deity that presided over combats, strife and litigation. Hence, in England, Tuesday is assize day; the day for combat, or commencing litigation.

WEDNESDAY—Is so called from Wodin, or Odin, a deity or chief among the northern nations of Europe.

THURSDAY—Was named by the Saxons from Thor, the old Teutonic god of thunder.

FRIDAY—Is from Freia or Friga, a goddess of the old Saxon mythology.

THE DEEPEST POINT IN THE OCEAN

The deepest known point in the ocean is near the island of Guam, in the Pacific. Here the United States ship Nere found bottom at 5,269 fathoms (six miles), or 2,612 feet more than the height of Mount Everest, the world's highest peak. Life has been found to exist at a depth of 4,173 fathoms.

WHEN THE MOON SLEPT

The month of February, 1866, was different from any other previous month in the world's history.

It had no full moon. January had two full moons and so had March, but February had none.

This had not occurred since the creation of the world, and it will not occur again, according to astronomers' computations, for 2,500,000 years.

By a simple rule the length of the day and night, any time of the year, may be ascertained by simply doubling the time of the sun's rising, which will give the length of the night; and doubling the time of setting, will give the length of the day.

Greenwich time was officially adopted by France on March 10, 1911. In future Paris and London time will be exactly the same.

Over six million acres of land are under tobacco cultivation throughout the world.

The salt beds of Chili alone could supply the world with salt for ages to come, the mineral being found in large deposits 99 per cent. pure.

(a) Battleships having a main battery of all big guns (11 inches or more in caliber).

(b) Battleships of (about) 10,000 tons or more displacement, and having more than one caliber in the main battery.

(c) Armored cruisers having guns of largest caliber in main battery and capable of taking their place in line of battle with the battleships. They have an increase of speed at the expense of carrying fewer guns in main battery, and a decrease in armor protection.

(d) Includes all unarmored cruising vessels above 1,500 tons displacement.

(e) Includes smaller battleships and monitors. No more vessels of this class are being proposed or built by the great powers.

(f) England has no continuing shipbuilding policy, but usually lays down each year 5 armored ships with a proportional number of smaller vessels.

(g) Germany has a continuing shipbuilding program, governed by a fleet law authorized by the Reichstag. For 1912 there are authorized 1 battleship, 1 armored cruiser, 2 cruisers, 12 destroyers. Eventual strength to consist of 41 battleships, 20 armored cruisers, 40 cruisers, 144 destroyers, 72 submarines.

(h) $78,837,591 authorized to be expended from 1911 to 1917 for the construction of war vessels.

(i) $3,570,000 authorized for experiments and further construction.

(k) Includes vessels of colonies.

British Army Estimates

The Army Estimates for the financial year 1911-12, which were submitted to Parliament by Mr. Haldane on the 25th of February, 1911, showed a slight reduction from those of 1910-11. The total amount for 1911-12 was £27,690,000 as against £27,760,000 for 1910-11. This reduction of £70,000 was entirely due to the termination of barrack loan annuities amounting to £304,000. Against this decrease of annual expenditure, there was a net increase of £106,000 in the cost of the Territorial Force, an increase of £20,000 for military works, a provision of £80,000 for the cost of the Coronation military ceremonies, and of £28,000 for the purchase of a new artillery range in Northumberland—leaving a balance of £70,000 as the net savings on the estimates for the year. The figures for the six years since the Liberal Governments have been in office are:

1908-9.....	27,439,000
1909-10.....	27,435,000
1911-12.....	27,690,000

These figures, however, compare favorably with the last two years of the late Conservative Administration, when there were extraordinary expenses still to be defrayed as a result of the Boer War. The figures for 1904-5 were £38,830,000, and for 1905-6 £29,813,000.

WATER POWERS OF THE WORLD

When it is remembered that two cubic feet of water, weighing 125 pounds, by falling a distance of only six feet, will produce one horse-power of energy, it is easy to comprehend that millions and millions of horse-power are wasted every minute by the torrents of water tumbling over Niagara Falls, Victoria Falls, the Yguassu River and many lesser falls throughout the world. This falling water may be guided by concrete penstocks to powerful water turbines which whirl great electric generators. The current produced in this way is easily transmitted for hundreds of miles over small copper wires to the cities and towns, where it is used to haul the railroad trains, to drive the great manufacturing plants and to give us light and heat. The water-power of Victoria Falls in Rhodesia is estimated to be fully 35,000,000 horse-power, two and one-half times that of Yguassu in South America and eight times that of Niagara. By way of comparison it should be noted that the aggregate water power of the whole of Europe cannot greatly exceed 35,000,000 horse-power. The demands which are made at present on these falls are modest. The Victoria Falls Power Company ask for only 150,000 horse-power, less than one two-hundredth part of the whole.

The total water power of the Yguassu Fall which is 213 feet high and nearly two miles wide, is estimated as about 14,000,000 horse-power. This is approximately equal to the aggregate water power of all Scandinavia, which is rich in waterfalls, or about ten times the total water power of Germany.

Niagara Falls has an estimated movement of 220,000 cubic feet per second. The descent at the falls and in the rapids above generates a theoretical horse-power of 4,000,000, three-fourths of which is practically available. Approximately 15,000 cubic feet of the water has been harnessed but much larger appropriations have been authorized.

Other Waterfalls

Asia is comparatively poor in large waterfalls, which are found most abundantly in Africa and North America. The largest African streams especially are interrupted by many falls and of considerable height. The Congo has several high falls which, owing to the great volume of the river (about 16 times that of the Nile) may be counted among the most important sources of water power on earth. The Stanley Falls in the middle reach of the river consists of seven successive falls, of a total height of 164 feet and a width of nearly 4,000 feet, and offer an exceedingly rich source of power which probably will soon be exploited.

Still more important is the total water power which the Congo develops in the non-navigable section extending from its mouth to Stanley Pool. Here the river, confined in a channel only a few hundred yards wide and with a depth of water of nearly 300 feet, flows with velocity of 48 feet a second, so that at every point of the stream 25,000 to 30,000 cubic meters, or about 1,000,000 cubic feet of water are hurled along with irresistible force, while 32 rapids and waterfalls lower the level of the stream by 820 feet in a stretch of 170 miles.

The most voluminous of European waterfalls are the Rhine Falls at Schaffhausen, but the highest are the Rjukan Falls of the Mann-Elf River in the Norwegian province of Telemarken. The two chief falls with the intervening rapids amounts to 1837 feet, while the average flow is 1760 cubic feet per second. The Rjukan Falls with their total energy of 250,000 horse-power have been converted to industrial uses.

In Sweden, the Falls of Trollhatta are the most celebrated. They have been nearly all employed for the production of electricity. The government itself has recently established here a power station with a capacity of 40,000 horse-power. This, now the largest water power plant station in Europe, will soon be surpassed, however, by the station at Rjukan in Norway and by a still larger station in the north of Sweden, which will serve for the operation of the Lofoden railway. The Porjus Falls, at which the last mentioned station will be placed, is only one fall, or rather rapid, of a long series formed by the Lule-Elf near its source in the lake region of Lapland. The Porjus power station is expected to reach completion in 1914 and to develop soon afterward about 80,000 horse-power, and it is estimated that its total water power in summer after its sources of supply have been regulated, will be about 300,000 horse-power.

*Estimates for the United Kingdom prior to that for 1910 were for coin only; these figures include $100,000,000 for bullion in the Bank of England.

†Includes Straits Settlements, the Malay States, and Johore.

‡This estimate is based upon a calculation made by Messrs. P. Arminjon and B. Michel in 1908, who estimated the stock of gold in the country at from 33,000,000 to 41,000,000 Egyptian pounds. The mean of these figures was adopted in this table in 1910. Since their estimate was made the net imports of gold into Egypt to Dec. 31, 1910, have amounted to $28,919,061, but as there is said to be a considerable absorption of gold for ornaments, no change in the estimate of the monetary stock has been made.

The Russian Government is planning the longest tunnel in the world. It is to be fifteen miles long and, with other facilities, will connect Tiflis and Vladikavkas, the latter place being a town in Ciscaucasia. The two places are only 125 miles apart, and at the present time a roundabout journey of 940 miles is necessary in order to go from one place to the other.

World's Most Noted Bells

The most costly set of chime bells probably in the world are those hung 642 feet above the earth in the Metropolitan Tower, New York City. The four bells, weighing 20,000 pounds, cost approximately $30,000.

The greatest value in any single bell of the present century is represented in the Columbian Liberty Bell, cast in the summer of 1893 for the World's Fair, at Chicago. It is estimated that more than 200,000 men, women and children contributed to this bell in some way, the bell weighing 13,000 pounds and representing the 13 original States. Many offerings were in the form of heirlooms of precious metal and relics from the Civil and Revolutionary wars.

The cost of the modern bell does not compare with some of those cast in ages past. "Tsar Kolokol" (the great bell of Moscow) weighs 492,800 pounds. The bell material alone cost $340,000, while it is said that more than $1,000,000 in precious stone and plate were used in its composition. The "Great

World's Largest Telescope (100 inch)

The world's largest telescope will soon be in place at Mount Wilson in California observatory. Stars three times farther than the most distant one now known will be visible. This lens will be 13 inches thick and weigh four and one-half tons. Galileo's little telescope increased the seeing power of the human eye about 130 times; the new telescope will increase it 250,000 times. It will probably make visible stars whose light traveling at the rate of 186,300 miles per second requires 150,000 years to reach the earth.

Governments of the World

Of the 55 principal countries of the world, 24 are governed as limited monarchies, 25 have a republican form of government, and 6 are under an absolute monarchy. China was the last to change from an absolute monarchy to a republic.

Around the World in Forty Days

Andre Jager-Schmidt of the Paris Illustrated Daily Excelsior, started from Paris at 1:45 P.M. July 17, 1911, in an effort to lower the time around the globe made by M. Stiegler of the Matin, who used sixty-three days. M. Jager-Schmidt's route lay to Moscow and thence to Vladivostok. From the latter place he proceeded by steamer to Yokohama, whence he sailed for Vancouver, taking there a train for Montreal and going thence to New York, where he arrived August 18. On the following day he sailed on the Olympic for Cherbourg where he arrived August 25th. Leaving for Paris on the same day, he arrived at his starting point at 9 A.M., Aug. 26, having consumed 39 days, 19 hours, 43 minutes, 37-45 seconds in girdling the earth.

The largest plant in the world is probably a species of seaweed, which often attains a length of 300 feet. The stems are dried and used as ropes by the South Sea Islanders.

The fly lays four times each summer, and eighty eggs each time. The descendants of one female fly in a single season may number 2,080,320.

The tallest lighthouse on the British coast is Skerryvore, off Argyllshire. It is 140 feet high. It contains 4,308 tons of masonry, and cost £90,268.

One ton of cork occupies a space of 150 cubic feet; a ton of gold that of two cubic feet.

Female spiders are much larger and more ferocious than the males, and generally devour their husbands.

Newfoundland is a land of lakes. So numerous are they that it is estimated they cover about one-third of the total area of the island. There are 687 named lakes, and 30,000 known ones without names. The island has about 4,000 miles of sea coast.

Under the sea are ranges of mountains as huge, peaks as lofty, and chasms as deep, as any on land. In the Pacific there is one peak not many fathoms beneath the surface, which has its base five miles down on the ocean's bed.

SHAPE AND SIZE OF THE EARTH: The earth is very nearly an oblate spheroid, whose shorter axis coincides with its axis of rotation passing through the two poles.

According to Colonel Clarke's calculations, its major axis measures 41,424,126 feet, or 7,698.5 statute miles; its minor axis 41,710,243 feet, or 7,699.5 statute miles; its circumference along the Equator measures 24,802 statute miles, or 21,600 geographical miles; its total area 196,940,400 statute square miles; and its volume 259,880 million cubic miles.

Of this total area, 8.5 p. c. (16,644,700 sq. m.) are within the Arctic and Antarctic regions; 31.6 p. c. (101,944,454 sq. m.) within the two temperate regions; 60 p. c. (78,351,046 sq. m.) within the Tropics.

THE LAND: The land covers 54,907,430 sq. m., on the assumption that 200,000 sq. m. of land remain to be discovered within the Arctic Regions, and that the supposed Antarctic continent, or "Antarctica," has an extent of 2,500,000 sq. m. within the Antarctic Circle.

Sept. '12

THE OCEANS: The oceans, including the inland seas connected with them, cover 142,132,960 sq. m., or 78 p. c. of the total surface of the earth. There are 3.60 sq. m. of ocean to every sq. m. of land. This area is distributed over the different areas as follows: Arctic Ocean, including Hudson Bay, 8,736,000 sq. m.; Atlantic Ocean, 34,301,600 sq. m.; Indian Ocean, 26,615,000 sq. m.; Pacific Ocean, 67,600,630 sq. m.; Antarctic Ocean, 5,731,350 sq. m.

HEIGHTS AND DEPTHS: The mean height of the land has been estimated at 2,440 feet; the mean depth of the seas (Karstans). The highest mountain (Mt. Everest) is 29,000 feet high; the greatest depth of the ocean discovered (in the Pacific, between Guam and Mid) 31,614 feet. If the whole of the solid crust of the earth be levelled, so as to form a spheroid, it would still be by an ocean of a uniform depth of 8,000 feet (Prof. Pe

SEVEN WONDERS OF THE WORLD

The "seven wonders of the world," according to the generally accepted list, were: (1) The walls of Babylon, (2) the statue of Zeus by Phidias at Olympia, (3) the hanging gardens at Babylon, (4) the Colossus of Rhodes, (5) the pyramids of Egypt, (6) the mausoleum of Halicarnassus, (7) the temple of Artemis at Ephesus.

Dr. Frederic Chandler a professor of chemistry at Columbia suggests the following as the seven modern wonders: (1) Anæsthesia, (2) the germ theory of disease, (3) synthetic chemistry, (4) applied electricity, (5) steam, (6) agriculture, (7) coal oil and petroleum.

He puts anæsthesia first because he believes that making amputations and operations possible with only a slight shock is one of the greatest blessings of modern times. The germ theory of disease which is the basis of antiseptic and aseptic surgery, vaccination, and the use of antitoxins, has undoubtedly saved the lives of 100,000,000 people in the last century. Synthetic chemistry deserves a place because it has created in the laboratories, without plants or animals, substances which have been very valuable in the arts and sciences. Applied electricity includes the telephone, electric lighting and power, wireless, electrolysis, and electrotyping. The wonders produced by steam are almost without number. Scientific farming including the intensive farming in Europe is a modern wonder. Coal oil and petroleum as an illuminating agent has made the modern generation more educated and advanced than any previous.

Aachen, (Fr. Aix-la-Chapelle), Germany (Prussia), is an important industrial and commercial center, with iron and steel works and noted manufactories of woollen, cloth, chemicals, glass, and machinery. Large coal fields are in the neighborhood. It has several hot and cold mineral springs well-known since the time of Charlemagne. Aachen is rich in historical associations. It has a famous ancient cathedral, which contains the tomb of Charlemagne, who greatly favored the town, and who died here in 814. From 813 to 1531 the German emperors were crowned here, and the coronation hall, where the banquet after the coronation took place and which is located in the city hall, has been now restored according to its original form. Two celebrated treaties of peace were concluded here; one in 1668 between France and Spain, by which France secured a portion of Flanders; and one in 1748, which terminated the war of the Austrian Succession. A famous congress of the principal European Powers took place here in 1818, in order to settle the affairs of Europe after the final overthrow of Napoleon.

Aalborg, Denmark (Jutland), is a seaport with important fisheries and an active export in agricultural produce. It is the seat of a bishop.

Aarhuus, Denmark (Jutland), is a seaport with a large transit trade. It is a bishop's see, and contains a fine Gothic cathedral dating from the 13th century.

Abbeokuta, Southern Nigeria, Africa, is a town with an extensive trade, situated 60 miles from Lagos on the Guinea coast, with which it is connected by railroad.

Aberdare, Wales (Glamorgan), has extensive collieries, and iron and tin works.

Aberdeen, Scotland (Aberdeen), is a seaport and the chief city in the North of Scotland. It is a pretty city, built chiefly of granite and hence called "the Granite City." The principal industries are salmon and herring fisheries, fish-curing, engineering, granite-polishing, and the manufacture of paper, leather, combs, woollens, and cottons. It has a university.

Aberdeen, South Dakota (c. h. Brown Co.), is an important railroad and trade center in a prosperous agricultural section.

Abo, Russia (Finland), is a seaport and coaling station, and has large exports of timber and iron. It is the seat of an archbishop.

Accrington, England (Lancashire), has extensive cotton mills, calico-printing works, iron-foundries, and manufacture of chemicals. Coal-mines are nearby.

Astoria, Italy (Catania), is a seaside health resort located at the foot of Mt. Etna, and has several mineral springs. The famous cave of Polyphemus and the grotto of Galatea are in the neighborhood. It is the seat of a bishop.

Aston, England (Middlesex), is a suburb of London, situated 8 miles west of St. Paul's Cathedral.

Adams, Massachusetts (Berkshire Co.), contains manufactories of soap, cotton, warp, etc.

Adana, Turkey in Asia (cap. Adana), has a large trade in wool, wheat, and wine, and is connected by railroad with Mersina, a port on the Mediterranean.

Addis Ababa, cap. Abyssinia (Shoa), has an extensive trade. A treaty of peace was signed here in 1896 between Abyssinia and Italy, by which Italy renounced her claim of a protectorate over Abyssinia.

Adelaide, cap. South Australia, Australia, is conspicuously laid out on a large plain at the base of Mount Lofty range, and is about 7½ miles from its seaport, Port Adelaide. It has a university, a botanical and zoological garden, and chief among its public buildings are the parliament houses, government offices, city hall, museum, and library. It is the seat of an Anglican and of a Roman Catholic bishop. Adelaide is the great emporium of trade for South Australia, and exports large quantities of wool, wheat, flour, wine, and copper ore.

Aden, Arabia, is a strongly fortified seaport and coaling station belonging to England. It is of great strategic and commercial importance especially since the opening of the Suez Canal. The principal exports are coffee, gums, spices, pearls, ostrich feathers, and hides.

Adrian, Michigan (c. h. Lenawee Co.), is a trade center and manufacturing town, and has a college and a state industrial school for girls.

Adrianople, Turkey (cap. Adrianople), is one of the principal commercial cities of Turkey in Europe, with manufactures of silk and tobacco, and large trade in perfumes and wine. It was the capital of the Turkish Empire from 1366 to 1453, and contains a beautiful mosque and a palace. It was occupied by the Russians during the Russo-Turkish war of 1829, and the treaty of peace, which concluded that war, was signed here. It was again occupied by the Russians during the Russo-Turkish war of 1877-8.

Agra, India (United Provinces), is a fortified town, a great railroad center, and one of the leading commercial places in the northwestern part of India. The leading manufactures are gold lace and inlaid mosaic work, and the principal articles of trade are cotton, wheat, salt, tobacco, and sugar. Agra was the capital of the Mogul Empire from the beginning of the 16th century to 1658, and it has conserved from that period some magnificent buildings. Of these the Taj Mahal is famous as a gem of Indian architecture in a setting of beautiful gardens. It is a mosque-like mausoleum, built in the 17th century by the Emperor Shah Jehan, in commemoration of his favorite queen. It is of white marble with dome and minarets and is ornamented with the exquisite mosaics for which Agra is still famous. The Moti-Masjid, or "Pearl Mosque," closely rivals in beauty the Taj Mahal.

Agram, Hungary (cap. Croatia and Slavonia), is the chief city of Croatia, and an archiepiscopal see. It has manufactures of linen, tobacco, and hides. It has a university, a national museum, and a fine Gothic cathedral, dating partly from the 11th century.

Aguascalientes, Mexico (cap. Aguascalientes), is famous for the hot springs from which it derives its name. It has large smelters, railway shops, and an active trade.

Ahmadabad, India (Bombay), has manufactures of cotton, gold-brocaded silks, pottery, paper, and tin. It was founded in 1412, and was formerly a city of great splendor, but has now fallen into decay. Its architectural remains, however, are even now magnificent, and often exhibit striking combinations of Jain and Saracenic characteristics. The most important buildings are the Great Mosque, adorned with two superbly decorated minarets; and the Ivory Mosque, so called because, although built of marble, it is lined with ivory and inlaid with gems.

Aidin, Turkey in Asia (Aidin), has manufactures of morocco leather and considerable trade in figs, olives, and grapes.

Aix, France (Bouches-du-Rhône), is the seat of an archbishop and has a university, a large library, and an old cathedral. The town has grown up around a hot saline spring known before the Roman invasion. Produces olive-oil and wine, and manufactures hats.

Aix-les-Bains, France (Savoie), is a famous health resort, with numerous warm mineral springs.

Ajaccio, France (cap. Corsica), is famous as the birthplace of Napoleon. It is a seaport with a good harbor, and has a large trade in olive-oil and wine as well as important anchovy and pearl fisheries. It is a favorite winter health resort. It is the seat of a bishop.

Ajmere, India (Rajputana) is an ancient city and famous place of pilgrimage, containing the tomb of a Mahomedan saint of the 13th century. It exports large quantities of cotton.

Akerman, Russia (Bessarabia), is a fortified seaport with a good harbor. It has large fishing establishments, and exports a good wine produced in the neighborhood.

Akita, Japan (cap. Akita), is a seaport with large exports of rice and manufactures of cloth and silk.

Akron, Ohio (c. h. Summit Co.), has manufactures of cereals, woollens, agricultural implements, and automobile tires; has large printing works and a college.

Alameda, California (Alameda Co.), is a suburb of Oakland, with pleasant gardens and homes. There is some shipbuilding here.

Albany, cap. New York (c. h. Albany Co.), is a city expanded from one of the earliest foreign settlements in the United States, having been started in 1540 by the French and carried on by the Dutch, who erected Fort Orange. It was captured by the English in 1664, and then named in honor of the Duke of Albany. Situated near the head of navigation of the Hudson River, connected by canals with the Great Lakes and the Lake Champlain system, and being at the junction of several railroad lines, Albany has commercial importance. Its leading industries are printing, bookbinding, brewing, and the manufacture of stoves and other metal articles. Among its prominent buildings are the State Capitol, completed in 1898, which cost nearly $25,000,000; and the Education Building, which contains, besides the offices of the State Department of Education a valuable library of over 500,000 volumes, a library school, and a Museum of Natural History, all under State control. Other prominent buildings are the Cathedral of St. Saints, Dudley Observatory, and the City Hall, designed by H. H. Richardson.

Albuquerque, New Mexico (c. h. Bernalillo Co.), is the largest city of New Mexico, and an important railroad and trade center. It is the seat of the University of New Mexico. Gold, silver, and copper mines are in the vicinity.

Alcamo, Italy (Trapani), is an ancient city of Sicily, built on the north slope of Mt. Bonifato, and contains many interesting ruins of mediæval buildings.

Alicoy, Spain (Alicante), is an important industrial town, with manufactures of cloth, linen, matches, and paper—especially cigarette-paper.

Aldershot, England (Hampshire), has nearby the largest military camp in England.

Aleppo, Turkey in Asia (cap. Aleppo), is an important and historic trade center of Northern Syria, and one of the prettiest cities of the East, with clean, well-paved streets, stately buildings and numerous mosques with their fine cupolas and minarets. Its Italianized name is reminiscent of the trade relations with Venice, active to the close of the 15th century, when the discovery of the Cape route to India deprived Aleppo of its position as the principal emporium of trade between Asia and Europe. Its trade is still very extensive, and it has, besides manufactures of silks, cottons, carpets, gold and silver threadstuffs, soap, and leather goods. Its port is Alexandretta, on the Mediterranean about 70 miles to the west.

Alessandria, Italy (cap. Alessandria), is the strongest fortified town in Northern Italy and an important railroad center. It has manufactures of silk, linen, hats, and macaroni, and carries on an active trade. It is the seat of a bishop. Near Alessandria took place in 1800 the famous battle of Marengo.

Alexandria, Egypt, is the principal port and coaling station of the country, and one of the chief commercial places on the Mediterranean, with large exports of cotton, cotton-seed, sugar, dates, tobacco, etc. It is the seat of a Roman Catholic archbishop. Alexandria was one of the most famous cities of antiquity. It was founded by Alexander the Great in 332 B. C., and soon became the center of the world's commerce. It reached its highest splendor under the Ptolemies, when it was second only to Rome, and was the principal seat of Greek culture, which spread from here to all parts of the world (3rd century B. C.—4th century A. D.). It contained the famous Alexandrian library, the largest of the ancient world. One of the so-called Cleopatra's Needles, two obelisks of the 16th century B. C. which stood at Alexandria, was presented in 1881 by the Khedive of Egypt to the United States, and was placed in Central Park in New York; the other stands on the Thames Embankment in London.

Alexandria, Virginia (Alexandria Co.), has numerous buildings of historical interest including Christ Church, with the pew in which George Washington and Robert E. Lee worshipped; the old Carlyle House, the headquarters of General Braddock in 1755; and the so-called Lord Fairfax House, a fine example of Colonial architecture. Nearby is Mt. Vernon, the home of George Washington.

Alexandrovsk, Russia (Ekaterinobsk), has an extensive grain trade and three annual fairs.

Algiers, cap. Algeria (cap. Algiers), is a strongly fortified seaport and coaling station, which since the French occupation has been transformed from an oriental town to a place of even more modern aspect than many European cities. It has large open squares and gardens, and imposing public buildings, among which are the palaces of the government, the Roman Catholic Cathedral, the military academy, the astronomical observatory, etc. It has become lately a favorite winter resort for Europeans. Algiers is the chief commercial center of the country and its principal exports are flour, esparto, wine, olive-oil, and fruit.

Alicante, Spain (cap. Alicante), is a seaport with large exports of lead, copper, almonds, licorice, esparto, and wine.

Aligarh, India (United Provinces), is the seat of a Mohammedan college, and contains a historic fort. The native city is called Koil.

Allahabad, India (United Provinces), is a fortified town, an important railroad center, and being situated on the great waterway between Calcutta and the North of India, is also a very active commercial center, marketing the cotton, sugar, indigo, and other products of the district. The present city with its great citadel was founded by Akbar in 1575. Allahabad is a sacred city of the Hindus and a much-frequented place of pilgrimage. It has a university.

Allegheny, Pennsylvania. See Pittsburgh.

Allenstein, Germany (Prussia), has important iron-foundries and machine-shops.

Allentown, Pennsylvania (c. h. Lehigh Co.), has manufactures of iron, steel, silk, clothing, etc. It is the seat of Muhlenburg College, and of a woman's college.

Almeria, Spain (cap. Almeria), is a fortified seaport. It exports grapes, almonds, and oranges.

Alost, Belgium (East Flanders), is a fortified town with manufactures of lace, linen, cottons, and leather.

Alpena, Michigan (c. h. Alpena Co.), is a summer resort and milling town on Thunder Bay. It has extensive shingle and flour mills, tanneries, and cement works.

Altenburg, Germany (cap. Saxe-Altenburg), has manufactures of brushes, woollen goods, gloves, and cigars. Near the town is a famous ducal castle, dating from the 14th century and restored in 1865-70.

Altendorf, Germany (Rhenish Prussia), is a suburb of Essen, and contains numerous industrial colonies.

Alton, Illinois (Madison Co.), has several collegiate institutions and produces building-stone, brick, coal, agricultural implements, etc.

Altona, Germany (Prussia), is a free port and coaling station adjoining Hamburg, and has varied industries, including extensive manufactories of tobacco and cigars.

Amarillo, Texas (c. h. Potter Co.), is an important trade center in a rich agricultural section of the "pan-handle" of Texas. Dry farming is extensively carried on in the vicinity.

Amiens, France (cap. Somme), is a large manufacturing center, with extensive manufactories of cotton, velvet, plush, tapestry, linen fabrics, silk, beet sugar, and paper. It is the seat of a bishop and its cathedral, built in the 13th century, is a masterpiece of Gothic architecture. Other noteworthy buildings are the city hall (1600-1760), in which the Peace of Amiens was signed in 1802; the large museum in Renaissance style (1864); and the public library (1791).

Amoy, China (Fokien), is a treaty port and coaling station with a large, well-sheltered harbor for the largest vessels. Exports chiefly tea, sugar, and rice.

Amritsar, India (Punjab), is an important trade center and the religious metropolis of the Sikhs, a distinction which, along with its name (literally, "pool of immortality"), it owes to its sacred tank, in the midst of which stands the marble temple of the Sikh faith. There is also a remarkable moated fortress. It manufactures shawls, cotton and silks.

Amsterdam, Netherlands (North Holland), is a seaport and the largest and most important city of the country. It has an extensive harbor for the largest vessels, where the Amstel joins the "Y,"—an enlarged arm of Zuider Zee—and is also connected with the North Sea by a large canal. Amsterdam is the headquarters of the shipping interests and of the financial institutions of the Netherlands. It exports butter, margarin, cheese, gin, linen, Westphalian coal, coke, and iron, and is the principal market for the produce of the Dutch colonies, namely, rice, coffee, sugar, spices, tin, petroleum, and timber. The chief industrial establishments are sugar-refineries, engineering-works, mills for polishing diamonds and other precious stones, breweries, distilleries, etc. Amsterdam is a picturesque city, somewhat semicircular in plan, composed chiefly of red brick houses erected on piles driven through loam and loose sand to a firmer sub-stratum. In the older houses goods were frequently stored in attics, and a characteristic feature is the great hooks and tackle projecting from the quaintly-fashioned gable ends. Many of the streets are threaded by canals, which carry much of the heavy traffic, and are crossed by about 300 bridges. A great palace and some famous old churches are of interest to travellers, but the superb art collections, comprising many paintings by renowned Dutch and Flemish masters, and particularly rich in Rembrandts are the pride of the city. Many of these are housed in the magnificent National Museum built 1877-85. It has a university, an academy of sciences, and botanical and zoological gardens, famous for the excellence and rarity of their exhibits, and the fine condition of the animals. The decline of Antwerp and the closing of the Schelde in the 16th and 17th centuries raised Amsterdam to the rank of the first commercial city in Europe at that time. Its present development dates from the opening of its North Sea Canal in 1876.

Amsterdam, New York (Montgomery Co.) is an industrial center, with extensive manufactories of carpets, knit-goods, silks, etc.

Ancona, Italy (cap. Ancona), is a fortified seaport and naval arsenal, and the most important Italian port on the Adriatic after Venice. It exports grain, fruit, hides, silks, asphalt, and sulphur. It is a bishop's see and has a cathedral dating from the 11th century.

Anderson, Indiana (c. h. Madison Co.), has extensive manufactories of iron and steel, glass, brick, etc.

Andijan, Russia (Russian Turkestan), is a trade center situated in the midst of a fruit growing region. Andria, Italy (Bari), is the seat of a bishop, and has a fine cathedral built in the 11th century. Manufactures majolica, and has large trade in almonds.

Angers, France (cap. Maine-et-Loire), has manufactories of silks, woollens, cottons, iron and copper wares, and a large trade in wine and agricultural produce. It is the seat of a bishop, and has a fine cathedral dating from the 13th century.

Angouleme, France (cap. Charente), has manufactories of paper and a large trade in cognac. It is the seat of a bishop, and has a fine cathedral in the Romanesque style dating from the 12th century. It is the birthplace of Marguerite of Navarre (1492), author of the "Heptameron."

Ann Arbor, Michigan (c. h. Washtenau Co.), has important manufactories of agricultural implements. It is the seat of the state University of Michigan, founded in 1837, and one of the most important educational institutions in the United States; it is attended by about 5,000 students, and is richly endowed.

Ansonia, Connecticut (New Haven Co.), has manufactories of clocks, brass and copper goods, woollens, etc.

Antequera, Spain (Malaga), has a large trade in olive-oil and fruit.

Antigua, Guatemala, was the ancient capital of the country. Its inhabitants are largely engaged in making carved cane heads and dolls, representing very accurately national costumes and customs.

Antofagasta, Chile (Antofagasta), is a seaport with a rough landing through surf. It exports saltpeter, borax, silver and copper ores, etc.

Antwerp, Belgium (cap. Antwerp), is a strongly fortified city, and has one of the finest harbors in the world, made by dredging out the river Schelde. Its quays extend for more than 3½ miles, and it is a coaling station and an important port for the interior, being the terminus of many steamship lines. Diamond-cutting is one of its important trades, and its manufactories include silks, velvets, laces, serges, and flannels; these, with grain, chemicals, coal, iron, glass, and various other manufactured articles are exported. There are also extensive shipbuilding yards and sugar-refineries. While possessing handsome modern residences and business sections, Antwerp is famous for its many ancient edifices; such as the city hall and the guild houses, partially enclosing the square upon which faces the famous cathedral, which was begun in 1352 and completed in 1592, and which is a masterpiece of Gothic architecture. The house and shop of Christopher Plantin, one of the earliest and most famous printers, stands now substantially as it did in the owner's time, having been transformed into a museum. Everywhere are ancient wood-carvings, iron-work, and other metal objects, which are of much interest to students of art and antiquities. There is an art school in Antwerp, and a fine art gallery containing many modern paintings, as well as old masters. The works of Rubens, Van Dyck, and other Flemish painters are treasured in the museums and churches. Rubens is buried in the Church of St. Jacques, but three of his most magnificent religious pictures, the Assumption, the Descent from the Cross, and the Elevation of the Cross, are hung in the cathedral. There is a famous zoological garden in Antwerp. Before its occupation by the Spaniards in the 16th century Antwerp was among the greatest commercial cities of the world. It soon sank into utter ruin, but began to prosper again during the French occupation at the beginning of the 19th century.

Aomori, Japan (cap. Aomori), has a fine natural harbor and considerable trade.

Apeldoorn, Netherlands (Gelderland), has paper-mills. Nearby is the castle of Het Loo, the summer residence of the royal family.

Appleton, Wisconsin (c. h. Outagamie Co.), has flour, paper, wood-pulp, and woollen mills. It is the seat of several collegiate institutions.

Aquila, Italy (cap. Aquila degli Abruzzi), has manufactories of paper and linen, and a large trade in saffron, which is cultivated in the neighborhood. It is the seat of a bishop, and has a fine cathedral dating from the 13th century, which has been lately restored.

Arad, Hungary, is a fortified town and an important railway center. It has large distilleries and flour-mills, and an active trade in agricultural produce and cattle. It is the seat of a Greek Orthodox bishop.

Arequipa, Peru (cap. Arequipa), is the second largest town in Peru, and has a large trade in wool, alpaca, gold and silver ores, and cattle. It is situated near the volcano El Misti, and has suffered severely from earthquakes. It is the seat of a Catholic bishop. Arequipa was founded by Francisco Pizarro in 1540.

Arezzo, Italy (cap. Arezzo), is an ancient Etruscan city, which abounds in architectural remains of the Middle Ages, including a 13th century cathedral. It is the seat of a bishop. The poet Petrarch was born here in 1304.

Argao, Philippine Islands (Cebu), is a seaport with a good harbor.

Arles, France (Bouches-du-Rhône), is one of the oldest towns of southern France, with famous Roman ruins, the most extensive being the great amphitheatre, which is supposed to have surpassed that of Nîmes, but which has since been converted into a bullring. Among the more modern buildings of note are the medieval cathedral and the Church of Notre Dame. It has shipbuilding yards and manufactures silk and hats.

Armentières, France (Nord), has extensive manufactures of linen and cotton.

Arnhem, Netherlands (cap. Gelderland), has interesting churches and public buildings, which contain valuable art collections. It manufactures furniture, glass, and paper.

Ashersleben, Germany (Prussia), has manufactures of machinery, linen, woollen goods, etc.

Ascoli, Italy (cap. Ascoli-Piceno), is an ancient city with many interesting remains including a very ancient cathedral. It is the seat of a bishop. Manufactures majolica, glass and paper.

Asot, England (Berkshire), is a famous race-course situated 6 miles southwest of Windsor. The races, which are held in June and are attended by the royal family in semi-state, are one of the social events of the year.

Asheville, North Carolina (c. h. Buncombe Co.), is a widely-known health resort, frequented by southerners for its comparative coolness in summer (mean temp. 72°) and by northern folk for its mildness in winter (39°) and spring (53°). Its climate is dry and bracing, and is said to be pre-eminently suitable for checking the early stages of tuberculosis, while sufferers from asthma, hay fever, etc., derive benefit here. The surroundings are notably picturesque.

Ashkabad, Russia in Asia (Turkestan), has a large distributing trade.

Ashland, Wisconsin (c. h. Ashland Co.), is at the head of navigation of Lake Winnebago and Green Bay waterway, and is a shipping port for the hematite ore of the Gogebic Iron Range. It has enormous ore docks, large charcoal blast-furnaces, and lumber mills. It has several collegiate institutions.

Ashtabula, Ohio (Ashtabula Co.), is an important iron ore shipping point, and has large iron-works, tanneries, etc.

Ashton-under-Lyne, England (Lancashire), has extensive manufactures of cotton, and large dyeing establishments.

Asnières, France (Seine), is a residential suburb of Paris, on the Seine.

Asti, Italy (Alessandria), is the seat of a bishop and has a Gothic cathedral (13th century) with numerous fine paintings. Asti is famous for its wine.

Aston Manor, England (Warwick), has extensive machine-shops and manufactures of arms, toys, etc.

Astrakhan, Russia (cap. Astrakhan), is the chief port of the Caspian Sea, and is situated about 40 miles from the mouth of the Volga. It has a large distributing trade in cottons, fish, caviare, rice, wool, petroleum, timber, and fruit. One of the largest fairs in Russia is held here annually. It is the seat of a Greek Orthodox and of an Armenian bishop.

Aスンシオン, cap. Paraguay, is at the head of navigation of the Parana River, and has an extensive trade in tobacco, hides, and Paraguay tea. It is one of the oldest towns in South America, having been founded on August 15, 1536. It is the seat of a Catholic bishop.

Atchison, Kansas (c. h. Atchison Co.), has a large trade in grain, flour, and live stock, and more than fifty important manufacturing establishments. It is the seat of the State Soldiers' Orphans' Home, an insane asylum, and several collegiate institutions.

Athens, Georgia (c. h. Clarke Co.), has a large trade in cotton, and numerous manufactures of cotton products. It is the seat of the University of Georgia and of the State College of Agriculture, and has a State Normal School and several other educational institutions.

Athens, cap. Greece (cap. Attica), was anciently the capital of the state of Attica, and the chief center of Greek literature, art, and culture. It is now the capital of the modern kingdom of Greece, and the seat of a Greek Orthodox archbishop. It is a well-built city with a fine royal palace, many handsome private residences, a university, and other educational institutions. It has an important trade, and manufactures of morocco leather, and silks. The city, which takes its name from Athena, "goddess of science, arts and arms," who was its own patron divinity, was originally built on the Acropolis, — a conspicuous limestone rock rising 500 ft. above the Attic plain, — but ultimately extended to the plain itself; while the Acropolis became the citadel and subsequently the site of a group of beautiful temples at the time of Pericles (5th century B. C.). The ruins of the Parthenon, the Erechtheum, the temple of Nike Apteros ("Wingless Victory"), and the Propylaea, still remain to testify to the former glory of the Acropolis. Of the other ancient buildings the most notable are the Theseum (also of the Periclean period, and still almost perfect); the fragments of the vast temple of Zeus (begun in 530 B. C. and finished by the Roman Emperor Hadrian in the 2nd century A. D.); the theatre of Dionysus, etc. Not far from the Acropolis rose the hill Lycabettus (911 ft.), and the hillocks or ridges of the Pnyx and of the Areopagus, or Mars Hill. At a greater distance the plain is bounded by Hymettus (3,368 ft.), Pentelicus (3,641 ft.), and other ranges. According to tradition Athens was founded by the legendary hero Cecrops. The most brilliant period of the history of Athens was when, after the Persian wars (5th century B. C.), it took the lead amongst the Greek states, became powerful by land and sea, was adorned by Pericles with most glorious buildings, and brought Greek literature, philosophy, and art to their highest development. Its decline dates from the disastrous conclusion of the Peloponnesian war (403 B. C.). It was plundered and ruined by Sulla in 87 B. C., and neither under Byzantine nor Turkish rule ever attained any prosperity. Many of the buildings on the Acropolis have been destroyed since the 15th century, especially during the Venetian raids.

Atlanta, cap. Georgia (c. h. Fulton Co.), is a prosperous commercial and industrial city, an important railway center, and the largest wholesale distributing point of the southeastern states. It has extensive manufactures of cotton, fertilizers, patent medicines, car wheels, flour and iron, and is one of the chief distributing points in the South for northern and western manufactures. The great staples of its trade are tobacco and cotton. The chief point of interest in the history of Atlanta, which was founded in 1840, is its siege and capture (Sept. 2nd, 1864) by Gen. Sherman, who, after holding the city for two months, began here his famous "March to the Sea."

Atlantic City, New Jersey (Atlantic Co.), is the most frequented seaside resort of America, the population of which is increased about fivefold in August by visitors from all over the country. It is also frequented in winter and spring, the climate being comparatively mild and sunny and the air exceedingly bracing. The beach is one of the finest in America, and from 50,000 to 100,000 people often bathe here in one day. It has a board walk 40 ft. wide and over 5 miles long, flanked on the landward side by hotels, shops, and places of amusement.

Attleboro, Massachusetts (Bristol Co.), has exten-

five manufactories of jewelry and electro-plate, also of woollen and knit goods, boots and shoes.

Aubervilliers, France (Seine), is a suburb of Paris with manufactories of leather, perfumery, chemicals, etc.

Auburn, Maine (c. h. Androscoggin Co.), has extensive manufactories of cotton goods, and boots and shoes.

Auburn, New York (c. h. Cayuga Co.), has large manufactories of agricultural implements, tools, carpets, and shoes. The State Prison, located here, contains over 1,200 convicts.

Auckland, New Zealand (cap. Auckland), is an important seaport and coaling station, possessing a spacious harbor. It exports frozen meats, fish, fruit, flax, wool, hides, tallow, Kauri gum, gold, and timber, and has manufactories of glass, shipbuilding yards, and sugar refineries. It is the seat of an Anglican and of a Roman Catholic bishop. It was formerly the capital of New Zealand.

Augsburg, Germany (Bavaria), is an historic city with many interesting buildings. During the 15th and 16th centuries, Augsburg was one of the trade emporiums between Northern Europe, Italy, and the East. Its name is also prominently associated with the leading events of the Reformation in Germany. It manufactures textiles, machinery, metallic wares, and paper, and has an extensive trade in printing and book-binding. Its principal edifices are the Renaissance city hall (1620), with its splendid "Golden Hall"; the Perlach Tower, dating from the 11th century; the former episcopal palace, where, on the 25th of June, 1530, the Protestant princes presented the Augsburg Confession to Charles V.; and the Gothicized Romanesque cathedral (994-1421) with its bronze doors and early glass-paintings.

Augusta, Georgia (c. h. Richmond Co.), is at the head of navigation of the Savannah River and carries on a large trade in cotton. Its cotton mills, run by a system of water-power canals, produce more unbleached cotton than any other city in America. There is a United States Arsenal at Summerville (3 miles).

Augusta, cap. Maine (c. h. Kennebec Co.), is at the head of tidal navigation of the Kennebec River, one-half mile below the huge Kennebec dam, which affords water-power for its cotton factories, pulp-mills, shoe-manufactories, etc. In addition to the State House, the noteworthy buildings are the Maine Insane Asylum, the United States Arsenal, and the Lithgow Library.

Aurora, Illinois (Kane Co.), has large railroad car shops, cotton-mills, smelting-works, foundries, and machine-shops. It is the center of a prosperous farming section.

Considerable portions of the ancient walls remain, but the principal object of interest is the cathedral, begun in 1112 and dedicated in 1351. The other ancient buildings are the bishop's palace (14th century), and the Hall of the College of Vicars, incorporated in 1401. The chief manufactures are paper, iron and brass, tanneries and breweries.

Fairbanks, Alaska, is the largest city of Alaska and an important mining center for a region vast in extent and rich in precious metals.

Falkirk, Scotland (Stirling), is famous for its cattle markets. In and near the town are several iron-works, and coal is mined extensively in the vicinity. Brewing, distilling, tanning, brick and tile making, and the manufacture of chemicals are among the other industries. It was the scene of the defeat of Wallace by Edward I. in 1298, and of the victory of Prince Charles Edward over General Hawley in 1746.

Fall River, Massachusetts (c. h. Bristol Co.), is a port of entry, and one of the chief cotton-manufacturing places in New England. It has large manufactures of cotton, thread, woollens, bobbins, shuttles, rubber, rope, wire, machinery, etc. The river, to which it owes its name, rises a little to the east, and falls about 140 feet within one-half mile, affording admirable water-power for the mills. Granite is quarried in the vicinity.

Fargo, North Dakota (c. h. Cass Co.), is the largest city in the state, and has a considerable jobbing trade. Has large railroad car-shops, flour- and planing-mills, grain elevators, and packing industries. It has an extensive trade in agricultural implements. The state agricultural and mechanical college, and a United States land-office are located here.

Farukhabad, India (United Provinces), has a government gun-carriage factory, and a large trade.

Felogyhaza, Hungary, has fruit, wine, and tobacco industries.

Fernie, British Columbia, Canada, is an important trade and coal-mining center with extensive collieries and coke ovens. It is an outfitting point for hunters in the East Kootenai game reserve. It has large saw-mills, railway-shops, and other industries.

Ferrara, Italy (cap. Ferrara), as the capital of the powerful family of Este, was from the 14th to the 17th century a large and prosperous city. Now its wide deserted streets and decaying palaces give it an air of desolation. Nevertheless it possesses a fine Lombardesque cathedral (12th and 13th centuries), the castle, or old ducal palace, a good picture-gallery, a university (founded in 1391), a famous library, and the houses of the poets Ariosto and Guarini. The last named was born here, as was also Savonarola.

Ferrol, Spain (Coruna), is a fortified seaport and the chief naval arsenal of Spain, with extensive dockyards, and also a naval school. There are manufactures of leather, naval stores, and textiles. Ferrol was twice attacked by the English: unsuccessfully in 1799, and successfully in 1805. It fell before the French in 1809.

Fes, cap. Morocco, is a holy city, the chief commercial center of the country, and one of the capitals of the sultan. Situated on a plateau, the city is surrounded by walls. Old Fes contains mosques, bazaars, and caravanserais, while New Fes is the official district, containing the palace, and the "Mellah", or Jews' quarter. The most beautiful of the one hundred and thirty mosques is that of Bu Ainan; to the largest, which is also the largest in Africa, the Kairuin, is attached the Kairuin University. The Sanctuary of Mulai Idris, the most holy place in Morocco, contains the tomb of the founder of the city. The chief industries are leather work, and the manufacture of colored tiles, carpets, and saddlery. Raw silk, paper, weapons, drugs, and spices are also produced. In the 13th century Fes was the capital of an independent kingdom; three centuries later it was conquered and annexed by Morocco.

Findlay, Ohio (c. h. Hancock Co.), is in the heart of the oil- and gas-fields of Ohio, and is widely known on account of its yield of natural gas. In the vicinity are rich beds of clay. It has manufactures of glass, pressed brick, furniture, wooden implements, and nails, as well as oil-refineries, extensive potteries, and rolling-mills. Findlay College, a coeducational institution, is located here.

Fitchburg, Massachusetts (c. h. Worcester Co.), has manufactures of firearms, cotton and woollen goods, pianos, paper, electrical apparatus, tools, etc. Quarries of granite are extensively worked. A state normal school is located here. The Walker Free Library, with its art collection, is notable.

Fiume, Hungary, is a free city, and the chief seaport and coaling-station of Hungary. Paper, torpedoes, tobacco, and chemicals are manufactured. There are also rice-mills and petroleum refineries. The cathedral, the naval academy, and the governor's residence are the principal architectural features.

Flensburg, German (Prussia), is a seaport, and has a large trade in agricultural and forest products. It has shipyards, breweries, distilleries, iron-foundries, and various other manufacturing establishments.

Flint, Michigan (c. h. Genesee Co.), has a large number of sawmills, carriage and wagon factories, woollen-mills, bicycle works, etc. A state institution for the deaf and dumb is located here.

Florence, Italy (cap. Florence), ranks as the intellectual capital of Italy, a position which it owes not only to the natural gifts of its inhabitants, but also to the memory of its greatest citizen, Dante, and to the fact of its being the seat of the national Accademia della Crusca, and the vigorous Institute for Advanced Studies, which virtually fulfils the offices of a university. Florence contains a great number of magnificent edifices and squares, its principal architectural feature being the Duomo, a cathedral, one of the largest churches in Italy, erected mainly between 1296 and 1436. Its interior is adorned with several fine pieces of sculpture by Michael Angelo, Ghiberti, Sansovino, Della Robbia, and others, and it possesses two fine bronze doors. The trio of bronze doors closing the little octagonal Baptistery, near the cathedral, are however still more famous. The 13th century campanile is Giotto's masterpiece. Among the other famous churches should be named Santa Croce (1294-1442), the Pantheon of Florence, adorned with frescoes by Giotto, the Gaddis, and others; Santa Maria Novella (1278-1350), with frescoes by Ghirlandajo, and Orcagna; Santa Maria del Carmine, which contains frescoes by Filippino Lippi, Masolino, and others. San Lorenzo, originally founded at the end of the 4th century, shelters the Laurentian Library, which contains many very valuable classic MSS. These, and many other edifices, testify to the prominence of Florence in the world of art, a position which is still further enhanced by the glorious canvases and sculptures of the Academy of Fine Arts; by the treasures of the Uffizi Palace (1560), which holds one of the most valuable collections of paintings and sculptures in the world, as well as the national library with its rare printed books; and by the even more valuable collection of the Pitti Gallery (1440). Among the remaining treasures of the city are the castle-like Palace of the Priors (1298-1314), for ages the seat of the city's government; the cloistered hall of Dei Lanzi (1637), with Benvenuto Cellini's Perseus, and other masterpieces of sculpture (it was here that Savonarola was burned in 1498); the archaeological museum, exhibiting notable Etruscan collections; the national museum of the middle ages and the Renaissance, sheltered in the Bargello (13th century), the ancient chief law court of the republic; and a number of interesting palaces, including the Riccardi (1430), Strozzi (1489-1533), Rucellai (1450), and Corsini (with a good picture-gallery). Florence is an archiepiscopal see. The straw-plaiting industry of the vicinity is declining, but the manufacture of majolica flourishes. Otherwise Florence is a place of little industrial importance.

Foggia, Italy (cap. Foggia), is a bishop's see, and has a Norman cathedral; a famous fair takes place in May.

Folkestone, England (Kent), is a seaport and a fashionable resort. The parish church is an ancient cruciform structure, and the Leas is a beautiful promenade along the cliffs. In the 18th century and the early part of the 19th century, it suffered much from encroachments by the sea.

Fond du Lac, Wisconsin (c. h. Fond du Lac Co.), has railroad shops, manufactories of automobiles, gas-engines, wagons, furniture, and chemicals, and wood-working industries. A state insane asylum is located here. Steamboats ascend from Green Bay to this place, via the Fox River and Lake Winnebago.

Forlì, Italy (cap. Forlì), is a bishop's see, and has several imposing palaces. Its manufactures include silk, hats, and shoes.

Forst, Germany (Prussia), has extensive manufactures of woollen cloth, and tanning industries.

Fort-de-France, West Indies (cap. Martinique), is a fortified seaport, and has a naval arsenal. The governor-general of the French West Indies resides here.

Fort Dodge, Iowa (c. h. Webster Co.), is an important grain market and has quarries of building-stone and gypsum. Coal is also mined in the vicinity. It has railroad repair-shops, and manufactories of woodenware, cereals, etc.

Fort Scott, Kansas (c. h. Bourbon Co.), is one of the most prosperous towns in the southeastern part of Kansas and an important market. The mining and shipping of bituminous coal is the leading industry. It has paper- and flour-mills, brick-works, railroad-shops, etc. The Kansas Normal College is located here.

Fort Smith, Arkansas (c. h. Sebastian Co.), is the second city of the state, and has cotton and cottonseed-oil industries, manufactures of bricks, furniture, etc., as well as a considerable jobbing trade.

Fort Wayne, Indiana (c. h. Allen Co.), is a railroad center in a rich agricultural region. It has large manufactures of car-wheels, engines, boilers, machinery, iron and steel bars, railway-cars, locomotives, electrical machinery, automobiles, furniture, etc. Concordia College, founded in 1850, is maintained here under the auspices of the German Lutheran church, and there are numerous other educational institutions. It takes its name from the fort built on a part of the present site of the city by General Anthony Wayne in 1794.

Fort William, Ontario, Canada, is a port and railroad center on Thunder Bay, Lake Superior, with a large transshipment trade. Its industries include large elevators, flour mills, iron foundries. Nearby are large blast furnaces, and silver and copper mines.

Fort Worth, Texas (c. h. Tarrant Co.), is the second largest city of northern Texas and the center of the cattle trade of the state. It has extensive packing-houses, flour-mills, foundry and machine works, etc. Its stockyards at the suburb, North Fort Worth, are the largest in the United States south of Kansas City. Fort Worth University, with upwards of 1,000 students, is located here.

Frankingham, Massachusetts (Middlesex Co.), has extensive woollen goods interests, and manufactories of boots and shoes, rubber and straw goods, etc. A state normal school is located here.

Frankfort-on-Main, Germany (Prussia), is an important financial and commercial center. Among its most noteworthy edifices and institutions are the house in which Goethe was born, with a Goethe museum attached; the Römer, a group of ancient buildings that serve as town hall, and contain not only the hall in which the German emperors were formerly elected, but that in which they dined in state with the electors, as described in Goethe's "Wahrheit und Dichtung"; the cathedral, founded in 850, but mostly rebuilt at subsequent periods; the Saalhof, which stands on the site of the palace of the Carolingian emperors; the Academy of Social Sciences, opened in 1901, with a university character; the house in which Schopenhauer lived; the ancestral house of the Rothschilds; the old Main bridge; and the Justitia fountain (1543). The Senckenberg Foundation (1783); the Thurn and Taxis palace (1731) now used by the post-office, but down to 1866 the meeting-place of the German Imperial Diet; two conservatories of music; the commercial high school; and, in the suburb of Sachsenhausen, on the opposite bank of the Main, the Stadel Institute (which embraces a picture gallery, art collection, and an art school) all figure prominently.

Frankfort-on-Oder, Germany (Prussia), has manufactures of machinery, iron and steel goods, chemicals, tobacco, etc. The town hall (1607-10), the church of St. Mary (13th century), and the government buildings (1900) are the most notable features. Frankfort was famous for its three fairs, and as a center of the trade with Poland. From 1506 to 1811 it was the seat of a university (now at Breslau).

Fredericton, cap. New Brunswick, Canada, is the seat of the University of New Brunswick, a normal school, an infantry school, and an Anglican cathedral. Its industries include lumber mills, boat factories, etc.

Frederiksberg, Denmark, is a residential suburb of Copenhagen. It has a military college housed in the old palace.

Freeport, Illinois (c. h. Stephenson Co.), is an important trade center in a rich agricultural section, and has railroad-shops, and manufactories of hardware, wind-mills, pumps, organs, wagons, leather, etc.

Freetown, cap. Sierra Leone, Africa, is a fortified seaport and a coaling-station of the British fleet, the largest town of the colony, and a Protestant missionary station. Furah Bay College is close by. India-rubber, palm-oil, and hides are exported.

Freiberg, Germany (Kg. of Saxony), is the center of the Saxon mining industry, and has a famous mining academy, founded in 1765. The cathedral (1484) contains the burial vaults of the electors of Saxony from 1541 to 1694. Gold, silver, bismuth, zinc, nickel, cobalt, sulphuric acid, and arsenic are produced.

Freiburg, Germany (Baden), is the seat of a university founded in 1460, and of a Roman Catholic archbishop. The cathedral is one of the most remarkable in Germany. The town is backed by the castle hill, formerly surmounted by two castles, which were destroyed by the French in 1744. It was besieged more than once in the 17th century, and passed to Baden in 1806. It has a trade in timber and wine, and produces silks, cottons, buttons, machinery, etc.

Fremantle, Western Australia, Australia, is a seaport and coaling-station. It is the first and last port of call in Australia for all European mail steamers. It has manufactures of soap, tin, leather, and tobacco, and boat-building yards. It exports gold, sandalwood, copper and lead ores, gum, wool, pearl-shell, manna; cattle, etc.

Fresno, California (c. h. Fresno Co.), is an important fruit-growing center, and has the largest raisin trade of any city in the United States. Other important industries are the cultivation and exporting of oranges, olives, and grapes, and wine-making. It also has a large live-stock trade, and there are petroleum interests near by.

Fuchau, China (cap. Fokien), is a treaty port, with a large export trade in tea. Timber and bamboos are also largely exported. Cotton goods and porcelain are manufactured.

Fukui, Japan (cap. Fukui), is noted for its paper and tinned crabs. At the time of the renaissance Fukui became an important educational and ecclesiastical center.

Fukuoka, Japan (cap. Fukuoka), is chiefly famous for its silk and interwoven picture fabrics.

Funchal, cap. Madeira Islands, is a seaport, coaling-station, and health resort. Although it has only an open roadstead, it has a large export trade in wine, embroidery, and fruits. It is much visited in winter by convalescents from pulmonary and other diseases.

Fünfkirchen, Hungary, has a fine 12th century cathedral. The name is derived from five Turkish mosques, three of which are now in ruins and two in use as churches. Manufactures leather, cloth, and pottery.

Fürth, Germany (Bavaria), has manufactures of mirrors, gold-leaf, bronzes, toys, pencils, fancy ornaments, picture-books and chromo-lithographs, gold and silver wares, chicory, machinery, etc.

Galatz, Roumania (Moldavia), is a river port, with a large export trade in wheat, corn, lumber, and cattle. It is the seat of the Danube Commission. Here in 1789 the Turks defeated the Russians, and in 1828 were in turn defeated by them. It is the seat of a Greek Orthodox bishop.

Galesburg, Illinois (c. h. Knox Co.), is the seat of Knox College, founded in 1837, where took place the famous Lincoln-Douglass debate in 1858. Lombard University (Universalist) was established here in 1852. The St. Joseph Academy and the Ryder Divinity School are also located here. The city has extensive railroad shops, stock-yards, brickmaking plants, boiler- and engine-works, farm machinery works, and carriage factories.

Galle, Ceylon, is a port and coaling-station. Exports tea, coffee, and plumbago.

Gallipoli, Turkey (Adrianople), is the see of a bishop of the Greek church. Here, in 1294, the Venetians were defeated by the Genoese, but in 1416 won a naval battle here over the Turks.

Galveston, Texas (c. h. Galveston Co.), is a port of entry and the most important shipping point on the Gulf of Mexico west of New Orleans. It has a large export and coastwise trade. Its foreign exports are principally cotton, cottonseed-oil, oil-cake and meal, cattle, wheat, and provisions. It has a large jobbing trade. Among its industries are bagging mills, rope mills, cement and pipe works, cotton-presses, rice-mills, and breweries. On September 8, 1900, Galveston was almost entirely destroyed by a tidal wave, causing the death, direct or indirect, of 6,000 to 8,000 people; the loss of property was also immense, but the city has rallied bravely from the blow, and is rapidly increasing in commercial importance. It claims to be the first port in the United States for cotton and grain shipping. Its sea-wall, made of crushed granite sand and cement, is 3½ miles long, 17 ft. high, 16 ft. wide at its base, and 5 ft. wide at the top, curving from the top to the base. A walk 13 ft. wide and a driveway 38 ft. wide are on the filled-in lands inside this wall. The school of medicine of the State University, a Roman Catholic university, and numerous other educational institutions are located here. Galveston was the first city in the U. S. to inaugurate the commission form of government.

Gardala, Algeria, has a caravan trade in oil, dates, ostrich feathers, and pottery.

Gardner, Massachusetts (Worcester Co.), is the trade center of an agricultural region, and has a large chair-manufacturing industry, in which almost every known kind of chair is made. It also has manufactures of machinery, toys, etc.

Gary, Indiana (Lake Co.), is an industrial suburb of Chicago, with a good harbor and the largest steel-mills in the world.

Gateshead, England (Durham), manufactures locomotives, anchors, chain-cables, etc. It also has large chemical and glass works. Excellent grindstone is quarried, and coal is mined. Among its notable ancient buildings are the Church of St. Mary, originally erected in the 12th century, but almost entirely rebuilt in 1854, and Trinity Chapel, which is supposed to occupy the site of an ancient monastery.

Gaya, India (Bengal), is annually visited by many pilgrims. Six miles to the south is Buddha Gaya, the site of a temple dating from B. C. 543, and of a bo-tree sprung from that under which Buddha attained Nirvana.

Gefle, Sweden (cap. Gefleborg), is a port on the Gulf of Bothnia, with a large export in bar iron, timber, tar, and cellulose. It has ship-building yards, and manufactures of machinery, cotton, tobacco, and sail-cloth.

Gelsenkirchen, Germany (Westphalia), has large coal-mines and iron-works.

Geneva, New York (Ontario Co.), is the seat of Hobart College (1822) and its co-ordinate institution, the William Smith Hall for Women. The Delancey Divinity School is located here, also a state agricultural experiment station. It has extensive manufactures of cereals, stoves, steam-boilers, canned goods, etc. There are large nurseries and green-houses in the vicinity.

Geneva, Switzerland (cap. Geneva), is an important educational center, and also an industrial city renowned for its clock, watch, music box, scientific instrument, and jewelry manufactures. Diamond-cutting and enameling are also carried on. It affords fine views of Lake Geneva, and of the Alps, and of Mt. Blanc in particular. Its cathedral is Byzantine in character, and is said to have been built in 1124. Other places of interest are Calvin's house; the 16th century city hall; the botanic gardens and university, opposite the interesting Corra-terie, formerly one of the ramparts of the city; several museums, including the Musée Rath; and the Ile Jean Jacques Rousseau. The historical fame of the city rests chiefly on the severe rule of John Calvin (1541-64), the reformer. In 1798 the republican army marched in and annexed it to France; but in 1815 the city joined the Swiss confederacy.

Genoa, Italy (cap. Genoa), is a fortified port and coaling-station and an archiepiscopal city. It is the principal commercial port of Italy and one of its busiest industrial centers. The chief branches of activity are ship-building, iron-founding, iron-works, sugar-refining, tanning, cement-making, the manufacture of cotton, macaroni, ornaments for personal wear, preserved fruits, etc. Of the palaces the most famous are the former palace of the doges, now the meeting-place of the senate; and the Doria, presented in 1520 to the great Genoese citizen, Andrea Doria. Foremost amongst the churches stands the cathedral, a grand 12th century pile in the Italian Gothic style. The university, originally built in 1623, reorganized in 1812, has a library of 116,000 volumes. To Columbus, Genoa's most famous son, there is a fine monument (1862) by Lanzio. A great mediæval republic, the rival of Pisa and Venice, Genoa in 1768 ceded Corsica to France.

Georgetown, cap. British Guiana, is a port with good anchorage in the harbor. Timber, gold, sugar, and small quantities of balata (very like gutta-percha), cocoa, coffee, etc., are exported. There are some fine buildings, such as the Roman Catholic cathedral, the Anglican cathedral, and the government buildings. The town also contains good botanical gardens. It is an episcopal see.

Gera, Germany (cap. Reuss, Younger Branch), has large woollen factories, iron-works, manufactures of accordions, concertinas, etc., besides dye-works.

Ghasipur, India (United Provinces) is the headquarters of the opium trade, and manufactures rose-water and attar of roses.

Ghent, Belgium (cap. East Flanders), is a river port with a large transport trade. Exports sugar, chicory, flax, hops, and other agricultural products, and has large manufactures of cotton, linen, and lace. It is noteworthy as a center of floriculture. It is an episcopal see, and among the chief buildings are the splendid cathedral of St. Bavon, of the 13th and 14th centuries, containing the "Adoration of the Lamb," by the brothers Van Eyck; the belfry (1183-1339), 280 ft. high, or 375 with the iron spire of 1855; the new citadel (1822-30); the Hôtel de Ville (1480-1628); the Palais de Justice (1835-43); the university (1816); the Béguinage; and the Academy of Painting.

Gibraltar, Spain, is a British fortress, a naval port, and coaling-station. Being a free port, it is much frequented as a depot and port of call. It exports, in transit from Spain, wine, fruit, and cork. It is situated on a bold rocky promontory at the extreme southern point of Spain, the entire length at the base of the rock being 2½ miles, and its greatest breadth three-quarters of a mile. The place was celebrated in the times of the Phœnicians and Greeks, and was fortified by Tarik, the Berber leader, who invaded and conquered Spain in 711. It was finally captured by the Spaniards in 1462. After its capture by the British in the war of the Spanish Succession, it was repeatedly attacked by the Spaniards, and underwent a long siege in 1726. From 1779 to 1783 it withstood the greatest siege in its history, under the gallant Elliott (Lord Heathfield), against the Spaniards and French. Gibraltar is the see of an Anglican bishop.

Gießen, Germany (Hesse), is the seat of a university founded in 1607, and is the site of the chemical laboratory rendered famous by Liebig. It has manufactures of tobacco, cigars, beer, etc., and there are lignite mines. Gifu, Japan (cap. Gifu), has manufactures of silk and paper.

Gijón, Spain (Oviedo), is one of the best Spanish ports on the Bay of Biscay, and in summer is a popular sea-bathing resort. Exports zinc, copper, manganese, quicksilver, and agricultural produce. Gaspar de Jovelanosa was a native and founded the Instituto Asturiano, with its fine art collection. Other features of the town are the Campos Eliseos, a bull-ring, a fine 15th century church, and two palaces. It was the capital of the Asturian princes in the 8th century.

Gillingham, England (Kent), has an important torpedo factory, also brick and cement works, and is the center of an extensive fruit district.

Girgenti, Italy (cap. Girgenti), is the successor of the ancient Agragas, or Agrigentum, which was founded in 582 B. C., flourished between 560 and 406 B. C., and again during the first and second Punic wars. From 828 to 1086 it was in the hands of the Saracens. Fine examples of Greek temples remain, while the modern buildings include a cathedral, library and museum.

Glace Bay, Nova Scotia, Canada, is a coal mining center on Glace Bay. It also has fishing industries, machine works, etc.

Gladbach, Germany (Prussia), is the chief center of the Rhenish cotton industry. It has also dye-works and calico-printing establishments, iron-foundries, machinery factories, silk and woollen mills, stationery factories, breweries, etc. It derives its name from an abbey of Benedictine monks, founded here in 972, and dissolved in 1802. The minster has a Gothic choir of the 12th century and an 8th century crypt.

Glasgow, Scotland (Lanark), is the industrial and commercial metropolis of Scotland, and, next to London, is the most populous city of Great Britain. It is a port and coaling-station on the Clyde, and the water area of its harbor and tidal docks is 206 acres. The most important edifice is the cathedral, an early English structure, containing a small part of the previous cathedral consecrated in 1197; the present building was commenced in 1238 and is now in almost the same state as when at the Reformation, though stripped of its ornaments, it was saved by the citizens from the fury of the mob. Other notable structures are the municipal buildings, in the style of the Italian Renaissance, the Royal Infirmary, the Western and Victoria infirmaries, the city art galleries (Spanish Renaissance), a people's palace, and the University of Glasgow, founded in 1451. The university is attended by over 2,000 students annually, and includes the Hunterian Museum, with its famous anatomical collection. The Glasgow and West of Scotland Technical College, founded in 1886, has a large attendance. Among other noteworthy institutions are St. Mungo's College and Anderson's College, the Mitchell Library, containing about 150,000 volumes, the Corporation Public Libraries and the Glasgow Art Gallery and Museum. Glasgow commenced very early to manufacture woollens, and acquired a fame for its plaids. In the 18th century were added muslin-weaving, distilling, ink-making, of which the secret was stolen from Holland, and the manufacture of tobacco, shalloons, cotton, leather, and furniture. The first cotton-mill was erected in 1792; and the greater part of the textile factories in the city are concerned with this fiber. There are also numerous calico-printing and bleaching works. Linen comes next in importance. The iron trade, introduced in 1732, is now the dominant one in Glasgow. The city contains blast-furnaces, iron- and steel-works and forges, and engineers' and boiler-makers' shops. The manufactures of chemicals, leather, clothing, whiskey, furniture, and timber are of the first importance. Ship-building is a leading industry at Clyde ports, the annual output aggregating half a million tons. Glasgow is the seat of an Episcopalian bishop and of a Roman Catholic archbishopric. It was in this city that Watt conceived the idea of the steam-engine; on the Forth and Clyde Canal, Symington ran the first steamboat in 1801; and ten years later Henry Bell built the steamship "Comet" which plied between Glasgow and Helensburgh.

Glauchau, Germany (Kg. Saxony), is one of the busiest manufacturing centers of the kingdom, its specialties being woollen dress stuffs, though it has also dye-works, calico-printing works, iron-foundries, breweries, flour- and sawmills.

Gleiwitz, Germany (Prussia), is the seat of iron industries; produces also bricks and glass.

Glens Falls, New York (Warren Co.), is a manufacturing and trade center on the Hudson River, where there is a succession of falls, with a descent of about 60 ft. The water-power is utilized by a number of manufactories, making flour, lumber, lime, cement, paper, etc. There are quarries of stone, limestone, and black marble. The island below the falls is the scene of some well-known incidents in Cooper's "Last of the Mohicans."

Gloucester, England (Gloucester), is a port on the Severn River, connected with the Bristol Channel by a canal. It contains a famous cathedral, built around a Norman core, with a stately tower, vast eastern window, and the canopied tomb of the murdered Edward II. Other public buildings are St. Mary le Crypt, the bishop's palace, shire hall and guildhall; the first prison built on Howard's plan; the public library and technical schools.

Gloucester, Massachusetts (Essex Co.), is a port of entry with an extensive fishing trade. It is one of the most important fishing ports and fish-markets in the world; cod, haddock, halibut, herring, and mackerel are the principal catches. It also has large manufactories of machinery, oil, fish-glue, shoes, twine, etc. It is a great resort of artists, attracted partly by the picturesqueness of the town itself and partly by the fine scenery of Cape Ann.

Gloversville, New York (Fulton Co.), is the greatest glove-manufacturing center in the United States and one of the largest in the world. It also has manufactories of gauntlets, mittens, leather goods, etc.

Goldfield, Nevada (Esmeralda Co.), is the center of a comparatively new and very productive gold-mining section. It has a large distributing trade, especially in lumber and mining machinery.

Gomel, Russia (Mohilef), has sugar-refineries and some ship-building.

Gonaïves, Haiti, is a port on the Gulf of Gonaïves, with exports of cotton, coffee, and mahogany.

Gorakhpur, India (United Provinces), contains a fine 17th century mosque, and carries on a river trade in grain and timber.

Görlitz, Germany (Prussia), manufactures cloth, mixed woollen goods, machinery, glass, bricks, and other commodities. The town possesses some fine Gothic churches (especially St. Peter and St. Paul, built in 1423-97, one of the noblest churches in Eastern Germany), and a 14th century town hall. Boehme, the mystic, lived and died in Görlitz.

Gotha, Germany (Saxe-Coburg-Gotha), is one of the busiest industrial towns in Thuringia, and produces sausages, toys, shoes, rubber tubes, sugar, etc. Here, too, is the geographical institute of Justus Perthes. The famous Almanach de Gotha, and Petermann's Mitteilungen are published in the town. The dominant feature is the ducal castle of Friedenstein (1643), crowning a hill south of the old town. Here also are the former ducal palace and the castle of Friedrichsthal.

Gottenborg, Sweden (cap. Gottenborg och Bohus), is a port and the second largest city of Sweden, remarkable for its beautiful parks and pleasure-grounds. It is the seat of a bishop and has a cathedral built in 1815; a museum, founded in 1833, is housed in the old East India Company's buildings. There is also a famous free technical school. The city has ship-building and machinery factories, sugar-refineries, breweries, tanneries, weaving and spinning factories, etc. Owing to its excellent harbor, which is almost always free from ice, it has a large trade. The principal exports are iron, timber, wood-pulp, corn, butter, and fish. Gottenborg was founded by Gustavus Adolphus in 1619.

Göttingen, Germany (Prussia), is the seat of a famous university founded in 1737. Göttingen manufactures sausages and other eatables, mathematical and scientific instruments, cloth, chemicals, sugar, and beer. In 1626 the town was taken by Tilly. Göttingen is famous for its Academy of Sciences, founded by Haller in 1751.

The celebrated aqueduct of the Aguas Livres, finished in 1749, crosses the valley of Alcantara on a bridge of 35 pointed arches, the largest 204 ft. high, with a span of 95 ft. The cathedral was originally a fine Romanesque building, but has been disfigured by earthquakes and modernization. The royal palace of Ajuda is a large building in a commanding situation above the Tagus, with a library considered the finest in Portugal. Lisbon was an ancient Roman city; was captured by the Saracens about 716; was taken from them by Alfonso I. in 1147; was made the capital in 1422; was in its most flourishing state about 1500; was occupied by the Spaniards 1580-1640; was nearly destroyed by an earthquake Nov. 1, 1755 (with a loss of about 40,000 lives); and was held by the French 1807-08.

Lisle, France (cap. Nord), is a first-class fortress, and is one of the chief industrial towns of France, specially noted for its textile factories, in which linen, cottons, velvets, ribbons, and woollen goods are produced. There are also sugar, soap, and tobacco factories, dye-works, chemical works, and distilleries, while large bleach-fields are found in the outskirts. Among its buildings may be noted the citadel (designed by Vauban) in the northwest, the church of Notre Dame de la Treille, the town hall, the bourse, and the museum, which contains exceptionally rich art collections. Lisle was taken by the Duke of Marlborough (1708). In 1792 it successfully withstood a terrible bombardment by the Austrians.

Little Falls, New York (Herkimer Co.), has extensive manufactures of knit goods, paper, carriages, bicycles, leather, knitting machinery, foundry and creamery products, etc. The Mohawk River furnishes abundant water-power, since it falls here about 44 ft. in less than a mile. It was settled about 1770, and in 1782 the settlement was destroyed by Indians and Tories. No successful efforts were made to rebuild it until 1790, when a colony of Germans took possession.

Little Rock, cap. Arkansas (c. h. Pulaski Co.), is the largest city of the state, and has extensive manufactures of cotton, cottonseed-oil, foundry and machine-shop products, railway shops, etc. In addition to the State Capitol, it has the Arkansas Military Academy, the Philander Smith School for colored youths, a state school for the blind, a lunatic asylum, and the state penitentiary. The University of Arkansas has branch schools of law and medicine located here.

Liverpool, England (Lancashire), is a port and coaling station on the Mersey, 3 miles from the Irish Sea. It is the second city of England, one of the most important ports of the world, the terminus of many transatlantic steamship lines, and has extensive ship-building, manufactures of rope, sugar, iron, chemicals, etc. It has a very extensive export trade in cotton, iron and steel manufactures, woollens, and machinery, and is the chief raw cotton importing port of Great Britain. Its harbor has 36 miles of quays, and a total dock area of 1,614 acres. It is the seat of an Anglican and of a Roman Catholic bishop. At the head of the numerous educational institutions stands the University, founded in 1903, which contains besides all the usual departments of a complete university, a school of tropical medicine. Among the city's architectural features the first place is given to St. George's Hall. This modern basilica is of the Corinthian order of architecture, and possesses a dignity, refinement, and style which makes it one of the finest buildings of the classical Renaissance. The town hall is also in the classic style, as are most of the public buildings of the city. The municipal offices form imposing buildings in the Palladian style. Among other important municipal buildings are the library and museum, erected by Sir William Brown; the Picton Reading Room, an extension of the library, erected by the city; the Walker Art Gallery, erected by Sir Andrew B. Walker; the technical schools; and the Exchange Buildings, in the style of the Flemish Renaissance. Liverpool received a charter from King John in 1207; was incorporated in 1229; and was taken by Prince Rupert in 1644. The commencement of its prosperity dates from the last half of the 17th century. It was largely engaged in the African slave-trade and in smuggling. It developed greatly in the 18th and still more in the 19th century. Liverpool was the birthplace of W. E. Gladstone, Mrs. Hemans, and Mrs. Oliphant.

Lockport, New York (c. h. Niagara Co.), is an important trade and manufacturing center, with extensive water-power obtained from the Erie Canal, which has here 10 large locks making a descent of 66 ft. There are large limestone and sandstone quarries in the vicinity.

Lodz, Russia (Poland), is one of the largest industrial towns in Russia, and its population has grown faster than any other town in the empire. The chief industry is cotton; after this come silk, wool, linen, cloth, flour, beer, spirits, and iron. There are also extensive dye-works, flour mills, and agricultural implement manufactures. It has several good technical schools. The population is mainly composed of Poles, Germans, and Jews, each amounting to nearly a third of the whole.

Logansport, Indiana (c. h. Cass Co.), is an important trade center in a fertile agricultural region. It has extensive manufactures of automobiles, car-trucks, motors, baskets, brooms, flour, lumber products, wagons, carriages, lime and cement. The Northern Indiana Hospital for the Insane is located here.

London, cap. England, is the largest city in the world, the seat of government of the British Empire, a port and coaling station on the Thames about 50 miles from the North Sea. Foremost among its many structures and institutions are St. Paul's Cathedral, designed by Sir Christopher Wren, erected in 1675-1710, and measuring 500 ft. in length and 364 ft. in height to the top of the cross on its vast dome; Westminster Abbey, the Walhalla of the English nation, dating in its present form (in part) from the later half of the 13th century, and measuring 513 ft. in length, one of the most famous churches of the world; Buckingham Palace, the residence of the King of England; St. James's Palace, the residence of the Prince of Wales; the Houses of Parliament, a vast Gothic pile dating from 1840, which extends along the left bank of the Thames for a distance of 940 ft., and whose square Victoria Tower is 340 ft. high; the Mansion House, the official residence of the Lord Mayor; the Guildhall, or Council Hall of the City; the New Law Courts, a magnificent Gothic edifice with a frontage of 500 ft., opened in 1882; Lambeth Palace, the seat of the Archbishop of Canterbury; the British Museum, with a vast collection of Egyptian, Assyrian, Greek, and Roman antiquities, the famous Elgin Marbles, British prehistoric remains, an unrivalled collection of original drawings, engravings, and etchings, and a library of upward of 2,000,000 volumes; the Natural History Museum, containing the natural history collections properly belonging to the British Museum, and occupying a building that is the largest in the world devoted to collections of its class; the South Kensington Museum (or Victoria and Albert Museum), containing magnificent collections of ornamental or applied art, oriental and other collections, the National Art Library, etc.; the National Gallery, one of the greatest galleries of paintings in the world; the Bank of England, founded in 1694 and occupying a building which covers about 4 acres,—a huge but dreary edifice, in whose vaults are usually housed twenty million pounds sterling in gold and silver; and the Tower, dating from the time of William the Conqueror, historically the most interesting structure of all England,—at first a royal palace and stronghold, and afterwards a gloomy dungeon, or state prison, of London, and now containing the crown jewels and a large collection of old armor. The most famous monument of the city is the Albert Memorial, erected to the memory of Albert, Prince Consort, and adorned with reliefs in marble of 178 figures. Among its institutions of learning may be mentioned the University of London, founded as an examining body in 1836, and reorganized in 1900-01 into a body which, in addition to its examining functions, has control of the higher education in the metropolis, the principal institutions, including most of the medical schools, being subject to it; University College, opened in 1828; King's College, opened in 1831; Royal College of Science, founded as the Royal School of Mines in association with the Geological Survey of Great Britain; Central Technical College; Gresham College; St. Bartholomew's Hospital (founded in 1123) and College; London Hospital Medical College; Guy's Hospital Medical School; Royal College of Surgeons (with the famous Hunterian Museum); the schools of art of the Royal Academy and South Kensington Museum; the Inns of Court; the Imperial Institute of the United Kingdom, the Colonies and India, with a huge building erected in 1887-93 at South Kensington; British Academy (founded in 1901); British Association for the Advancement of Science; Institute of Architects; Institute of Civil and Mechanical Engineers; Royal Geographical Society; Royal Asiatic Society; the Geological, Zoological, Botanical, Linnæan, Astronomical, Archaeological, Chemical, and Physical societies; Society of British Artists; Society of Painters in Water Colors; and Society of Arts. Other institutions are denominational colleges for theology, sometimes combined with general education; the Royal Naval College at Greenwich; the Royal Military Academy at Woolwich; the Royal College of Science; Royal Academy of Music; Royal College of Music; Trinity College, chiefly for music; several colleges for women, etc. Among the grammar and secondary schools are: St. Paul's School, founded in 1509, which provides a free education for 153 boys, with scholarships to Oxford and Cambridge; the Merchant Tailors' or Charterhouse School; Westminster School, founded by Queen Elizabeth in 1560; University College School; King's College School; City of London School; Mercer's School; and schools of the several city companies. Christ's Hospital School, founded by Edward VI. and commonly known as the Blue Coat School, from the uniform of its scholars, has been removed to Sussex. In Regent's Park there is a most famous zoological garden, and Hyde Park and Kensington Gardens, are of international fame. The Kew Botanic Gardens, with immense greenhouses, museums and the like, and Hampton Court are among the many park spaces on the Thames. The manufacturing industries of London are on a vast scale. It contains the largest breweries, distilleries, and sugar-refineries in the kingdom; was long the principal seat of silk-weaving; has extensive manufactures in metal, including machinery of all kinds, plate, jewelry, watches, and brass work, and an enormous production of books and prints. Millinery and the making of clothes, also of boots and shoes, are extensive branches of industry. Besides these, there are cabinet-making, coopering, coach-building, rope-making, mast-making, and much ship-building. London appears to have been resettled by the Romans about 43 A. D., and Londinium (called also Augusta) was the capital of Britannia in the last part of the Roman period. After the departure of the Romans (about 412) and in the early Saxon period, its history is obscure, though there were bishops of London from the 7th century. It was plundered by the Danes and rebuilt by Alfred and Athelstane. It received a charter from William I. and many privileges from Henry I. By the 14th century its commerce had greatly developed. The insurrection of Wat Tyler occurred in 1381. London sided with the Yorkists in the Wars of the Roses, and with the Parliamentarians in the Civil War. It was scourged by the plague in 1665, and was almost entirely destroyed by the great fire of 1666. A financial panic occurred in 1720, and the "No Popery" riots in 1780. London is the seat of an Anglican bishop and of a Roman Catholic archbishop.

London, Ontario, Canada, is the center of a rich agricultural district and has iron-foundries, chemical works, and extensive petroleum refineries. The sulphur springs in the neighborhood are a favorite resort. It is the seat of the Western University, of Huron and Hellmuth colleges, and of other collegiate institutions.

Londonderry, Ireland (cap. Londonderry), is the seat of a bishop, and has a cathedral, built in the 17th century. Shirt-making is the principal industry, and there are distilleries, foundries, tanneries, and ship-building yards. In 1688-9 took place the memorable siege by the forces of James II.

Long Beach, California (Los Angeles Co.), is a residential suburb of Los Angeles and a resort on San Pedro Bay.

Long Branch, New Jersey (Monmouth Co.), is one of the older summer resorts of the Atlantic Coast visited by many thousands of people during the hot summer months. The avenue along the bluff is a favorite walk, and on the beach there are excellent bathing facilities. It was settled about 1607.

Longton, England (Stafford), manufactures china and earthenware, and there are valuable coal and iron mines in the vicinity.

Lorain, Ohio (Lorain Co.), is a trade center in an agricultural and natural gas region, and a shipping port for central Ohio coal, iron ore, and lumber. Its chief industries are ship-building, coal-shipping, steel manufacturing, and fishing.

Lorca, Spain (Murcia), was the scene of much strife between Moors and Christians in the 12th and 13th centuries. Wine is produced, and there are some lead mines in the neighborhood.

Lorient, France (Morbihan), is a seaport and fortified naval arsenal. The dockyard is used for the construction and equipment of men-of-war, and is one of the finest in France. The exports are wheat, wines, sardines, etc. The town was founded in 1670 by the French East India Company, and on the dissolution of the company in 1770 it became a naval station.

Los Angeles, California (c. h. Los Angeles Co.), is the largest city of Southern California, the second city of the state, and one of the greatest winter resorts in the world. Its phenomenal growth is largely due to the influx of tourists, health-seekers, and others from the eastern states. It has a semi-tropical climate, remarkable for its equability and dryness, with little frost, no snow, and moderate winter rains. It is an important railroad and banking center, and has a large wholesale and distributing trade with southern California, Arizona, New Mexico, and old Mexico. The manufacuring industries have been greatly stimulated by the supply of petroleum fuel, also by the bringing of electricity from the mountain streams, a distance of over 100 miles. It has a large transshipment trade in oranges and other citrus fruits. It was founded by the Spaniards in 1781 and passed into American possession in 1846. It was, however, of no great importance till after 1880, when it underwent an almost unprecedentedly rapid increase in wealth and population. Its population rose from 11,183 in 1880 to 50,395 in 1890, to 102,479 in 1900, and to 319,198 in 1910.

Louisville, Kentucky (c. h. Jefferson Co.), is the largest city of the state, and one of the most important manufacturing and jobbing centers of the south. It has extensive manufactures of whiskey, cement, wagons, agricultural implements, leather, etc. It has large pork-packing establishments, and is the largest market in the world for Bourbon whiskey and leaf tobacco. It is also an important educational center, being the seat of the University of Louisville (800 students) with its law and medical departments, a manual training school, a normal school, several medical colleges, theological seminaries, and other educational institutions. It is the seat of the State Blind Asylum, containing the American Printing House for the Blind. Louisville was founded in 1778 and named in honor of Louis XVI. of France. In March, 1890, this city was visited by a terrific tornado, which destroyed property valued at over $3,000,000 and killed 76 persons.

Louvain, Belgium (Brabant), is famous for its university, founded in 1426, now attended by some 1,600 students. Its town hall (one of the finest on the Continent) and the church of St. Gertrude, both of the 15th century, are the chief features of the town. It manufactures beer, lace, starch, and tobacco.

Lowell, Massachusetts (c. h. Middlesex Co.), is noted for its great number of manufactories and its annual output of manufactured articles. Its power is obtained from the falls of the Merrimac, which here has a descent of 32 ft., and from the Concord River, but considerable steam-power is also used. It has a canal system, completed in 1825, through which water-power is furnished to manufactories in Lowell and then returned to the Merrimac to turn the wheels of mills in cities further east. Its woollen and cotton factories, hosiery and knitting mills, carpet and felt factories, bleacheries, dye-works, machine-shops, patent medicine works, and furniture factories are among the leading industries. It has an old ladies' home.

Lubeck, Germany (Lübeck), is a free city, one of the three remaining Hansa towns, a port on the Trave River, 10 miles from its mouth. Of its numerous churches the Marienkirche, founded in 1170, contains valuable works of art, and its dome, enlarged during the 13th century, possesses an altar painting by Hans Memling. The town hall (1250) is built of black glazed bricks in the style of the Renaissance period. The principal shipping trade is with Denmark, Sweden, Russia, and Finland, chiefly in machinery, chemicals, preserved food, linen goods, and cigars. Lübeck was made a free imperial city in 1226, and became the leader of the Hanseatic league in 1241. In 1866 it joined the North German Confederation, and in 1870 became, with its adjacent territory, one of the states of the new empire.

Lublin, Russia (Poland), has considerable trade, especially in corn, wine, and linen cloth. Distilleries, breweries, tanneries, brick works, soap, tobacco, candle manufactures, and flour-mills are the main industries. It has a 13th century cathedral and a palace of the Polish king John Sobieski.

Lucca, cap. Italy (Lucca), is an ancient city and has several interesting buildings. Its cathedral of San Martino (11th century) is rich in paintings and sculptures, and many of its churches, which are fine examples of mediæval architecture, are built of Carrara marble. The ducal palace possesses a fine picture gallery. It is the seat of an archbishop. The town has extensive silk-mills; jute, velvets, tobacco, and cottons are also manufactured.

Lucerne, Switzerland (cap. Lucerne), is picturesquely situated on the shores of the Lake of Lucerne, and is now the chief center of foreign tourists in summer. To the east rises the celebrated view of the Rigi, and to the southwest that of Pilatus. The main features of interest in the town are mediæval towers and walls; the 5 bridges, including the covered wooden bridge, with its paintings representing scenes from the lives of patron saints and a "Dance of Death"; the Quai National and the Schweizerhof Quai, the latter with a fine avenue of chestnut trees; the Hofkirche, erected in 1506; the town hall, containing antiquarian and art collections; and the "Lion of Lucerne," a rock monument chiseled by Thorwaldsen, commemorating the heroic defence of Louis XVI.'s Swiss Guards during the attack on the Tuileries (Aug. 10, 1792). The glacier garden exhibits remarkable pot-holes.

Lucknow, India (United Provinces), is an important commercial and railroad center, with manufactures of muslins and shawls, gold and silver embroidery, glass and pottery ware. Its chief architectural features are the fort, the Imambara, or mausoleum of Asaf-ud-Daula, and the Jama Masjid. It is an important educational center, having, besides the Canning and Martinière Colleges, numerous missionary schools. Lucknow was defended (at first under Sir Henry Lawrence) against the Indian mutineers, July-Sept., 1857; was relieved by Havelock, Sept. 26; again relieved by Campbell, Nov. 16; and finally captured by Campbell, March, 1858.

Ludwigshafen, Germany (Bavaria), has very extensive manufactures of aniline dyes and soda, and considerable trade in timber, iron, and coal.

Lüneburg, Germany (Hanover), has several historic churches and public buildings dating from the 14th and 15th centuries. Its manufactures include chemicals, ironware, and carpets.

Luton, England (Bedford), has brass and iron works, cocoa works, and manufactures of felt hats and straw plait.

Luxemburg, cap. Luxemburg, has manufactures of gloves, pottery, vinegar, and machinery and large tanning industries.

Lynchburg, Virginia (Campbell Co.), is an important trade and manufacturing center, and has a large trade in tobacco, both raw and manufactured. It has manufactures of iron and brass products, cotton goods, agricultural implements, shoes, dyes, hardware, lumber, and flour. There are granite quarries near the town and large coal-fields and iron ore in Campbell and the neighboring counties. It is the seat of a woman's college and other educational institutions.

Lynn, Massachusetts (Essex Co.), is noted for its shoe factories, which employ over 25,000 people, and for its large electrical works. It also has manufactures of cut leather, shoe machinery, electrical supplies, lamps, morocco, patent medicines, etc. It was settled in 1629 and incorporated in 1630.

Lyon, France (cap. Rhône), is the third city of the country, and is a strongly fortified town, a leading industrial and commercial center, and an important railway and waterway junction. The silkworms reared in the Rhone valley and the proximity of coal and iron, at St. Etienne, have made Lyon the first town in France in silk manufacture, an industry first established here in 1450 by Italian refugees. Other manufactures are those of cotton, hardware, dyes, sulphuric acid, chemical manure, starch, candles, soap, paper-hangings, and machinery, and much business is done in chestnuts, cheese, and wine. Lyon is adorned with numerous interesting and beautiful buildings, among which may be mentioned the cathedral of St. Jean (12th to 15th century); the archiepiscopal palace (15th century); the church of St. Martin d'Ainay, which is built on the site of a Roman temple and contains the remains of a Roman votive altar; the City Hall (1646); and several extensive and admirably arranged picture-galleries and museums, in addition to a state university ranking next to that of Paris in the number of its students (2,500), and a public library, which boasts some of the earliest specimens of printing. Lyon is the seat of a bishop. It was founded by Greeks in 560 B. C.; was greatly developed under the Roman emperor Augustus; was the capital of the first Burgundian kingdom (478), afterward passing to the Franks; was plundered by the Saracens in the 8th century; and was united to France at the beginning of the 11th century. Two important councils were held here in 1245 and in 1247.

McAlester, Oklahoma (c. h. Pittsburg Co.), is a trade center in a rich agricultural region. Coal-mining is the leading industry.

McKeesport, Pennsylvania (Allegheny Co.), is a trade center, originally noted for its fields of bituminous coal and natural gas. It has extensive manufactories of steel and iron, and tube works which employ 12,000 men; also railroad shops, glass-works, locomotive works, etc. It has a large trade in coal and lumber.

Maastricht, Netherlands (cap. Limburg), is an ancient city, and contains the church of St. Servatius, founded in the 6th century. South of the town are the tufa quarries of Petersberg, worked since Roman times; they have yielded many fossils, including saurians. Glass, pottery, and carpets are manufactured. Maastricht was, till 1878, one of the strongest fortresses in Europe, and suffered many sieges.

Macao, China, is a port belonging to Portugal, situated on an island at the mouth of the Canton River. Exports tobacco, preserves, and essential oils, and has a transit trade in tea, silks, etc. The old Collegiate church of the Jesuits is the most striking architectural feature. The town is notorious for its gambling-houses.

Macclesfield, England (Cheshire), is the chief silk-manufacturing center in England, producing brocades, plain and fancy silks and satins, ribbons, gimps, and fringes. Silk-throwing is an important branch of the industry.

Macao, Brazil (cap. Alagoas), is a seaport with extensive exports in cotton, sugar, cotton-seed, and hides; and manufactures of cottons and sugar.

Macon, Georgia (c. h. Bibb Co.), is an important trade and manufacturing center on the Ocmulgee River, which has a fall of about 90 ft. seven miles above the city, furnishing immense power. It is a railroad center and lies in the midst of a fast developing cotton district. It is one of the most important inland cotton markets in the United States, and is at the edge of the Georgia peach belt. It has extensive cotton manufactories, and yarn, duck, cordage, twine, hosiery, and knit underwear works. It also has extensive manufactures of cotton-seed-oil, cottonseed meal and cake for live-stock, agricultural implements, brick, and fertilizers. Here also are railroad shops, lumber-mills, etc. Near by is a large vein of kaolin.

Madison, Wisconsin (c. h. Dane Co.), is situated in a rich agricultural region, and is the seat of the University of Wisconsin (4,000 students). Its observatory is one of the best in America, and its departments of history, economics, geology, agriculture, and engineering are well equipped and have a national reputation. In addition to the State Capitol, containing the State Law Library of 40,000 volumes, another building of note is that of the Wisconsin Historical Society, the most important institution of the kind west of the Alleghenies, possessing a reference library of nearly 250,000 volumes and an historical and ethnological museum. A soldiers' orphan home is located here, and a state fish-hatchery is near the city. The chief manufactures are boots and shoes, agricultural implements, tools, flour, electrical machinery, wagons, and carriages.

Madras, India (cap. Madras), is a port and coaling station, where loading and discharging is done largely by lighter; but nevertheless it is one of the foremost seaports of India. It exports cotton, sugar, indigo, rice, hides, cocoanut-oil, oil-seeds, pepper, etc. It has a number of handsome edifices, such as the Government House, St. George's cathedral, the Scottish church of St. Andrew, the university buildings, the new law courts, Pateeshappah's Hall, Memorial Hall, and the Chepauk Palace. There is a large arsenal. Besides the university, an examining institution, Madras possesses Presidency College, schools of law, medicine, agriculture, engineering, and art, Victoria Technical Institute, a teachers' college, the Madras Christian College, a botanical garden, and a valuable museum. Madras is the seat of an Anglican and of a Roman Catholic bishop. It manufactures cottons, known as "Madraases", and has dye-works, tanneries, potteries, glass-works, etc. In 1504 the Portuguese founded here the town of St. Thomé. In 1639 the rajah of Chandragiri granted to the East India Company a site close to St. Thomé, where the town of Madras was founded.

Madrid, cap. Spain (cap. Madrid), has a university, a normal school, veterinary school, schools of commerce, engineering, architecture, music, and the fine arts. The National Library contains 600,000 volumes and 30,000 manuscripts; while the National Museum of Painting and Sculpture has a fine collection of the works of Raphael, Titian, and Rubens, in addition to the most famous productions of Velasquez. The Church of San Francisco, finished in 1784, is a great rotunda, with a dome 163 ft. high, an apse, and three domed chapels radially arranged on each side. The interior is remarkable for its spaciousness, and for its profuse decorations with sculpture and painting by modern masters. The royal palace, begun in 1737, is imposing from its great size and its fine situation on a lofty terrace. In the royal armory is a unique collection of splendid mediæval and Renaissance armor, arms, banners, and trappings, a large proportion of which was actually used by some of the most famous personages in Spanish history. Industrially it is not very active, tobacco being the chief manufacture. Madrid was a Moorish outpost; was taken from the Moors in 1083; became the favorite residence of Charles V.; and was made the capital by Philip II. in 1560.

Madura, India (Madras), was for centuries the religious and political capital of South India, and contains some of the finest extant examples of Hindu architecture, including the granite temple of Minarchi, or the Fish Mother. Rebuilt in the 2nd or 3rd century, it was nearly destroyed during the Mohammedan conquest of the 14th century. Its present splendor is due to Tirumulla Nayak (1623-59). The town has coffee and cotton-mills and cigar factories. Brass ware and dyed cotton cloth are also made. Madura is the center of the American missionary effort in South India.

Magdeburg, Germany (Prussia), is one of the leading commercial centers of Germany and a strongly fortified city. Its industries comprise ship-building, and the construction of engines, machinery, armor-plate, and ordnance. The principal articles of commerce are sugar, chicory, and tobacco. It has a 13th century cathedral and a municipal museum of industries.

Mahanoy City, Pennsylvania (Schuylkill Co.), is a trade center in the anthracite coal region, and in the vicinity are also found fire-clay and an excellent building stone. The chief manufactures are pottery, foundry products, flour, hosiery, and lumber.

Mährisch-Osttau, Austria (Moravia), has iron foundries, rolling-mills, chemical works, oil refineries, etc. There are coal mines in the vicinity.

Maldstone, England (cap. Kent), has among its principal buildings the mediæval church of All Saints, the College of All Saints, and the curious 16th century manor-house, which contains a valuable museum. Its industries include paper-mills, breweries, malt-kilns, and agricultural implement works. Stone is quarried, and hops and fruit are grown. The town was taken by Fairfax in 1648.

Malkop, Russia (Kuban Territory), is a fortified town and trade center.

Mainz, Germany (Hesse), is a fortified town and one of the most important commercial centers on the Rhine, and carries on a brisk shipping trade with Holland and Belgium. Its principal exports are leather goods, furniture, and wine, while printing, lithographic and otherwise, is a flourishing industry. Gutenberg, the inventor of movable type for printing, was born here. The picturesque cathedral dates back to 978. The old castle of the electors, built in 1627-78, contains rich collections of Roman and Germanic antiquities, and the Gutenberg museum was established in 1901.

Mako, Hungary, has oil-mills and a fine episcopal palace.

Malaga, Spain (cap. Malaga), is a port on the Mediterranean, with export trade in fruits and wine, and cane-sugar and distilling industries. The cathedral is a vast structure, mainly Gothic. The climate in winter is beautifully mild, and favorable for invalids. Of Phoenician origin, Malaga was for centuries a Moorish city and one of the principal ports of the kingdom of Granada. Ferdinand the Catholic captured it, after a long siege, in 1487.

Malden, Massachusetts (Middlesex Co.), is a suburb of Boston, with extensive manufactories of rubber boots and shoes, boot-trees, boot and shoe lasts, wire cord, leather, sand and emery paper, cotton goods, hosiery, knit goods, furniture, and soap.

Malmö, Sweden (cap. Malmöhus), is a fortified port and coaling station, with one of the largest artificial harbors in Scandinavia. Malmö has iron-works, woollen mills, dockyards, machinery, sugar, steam-mill factories, and breweries.

Malstatt-Burbach, Germany (Prussia), has coal-mines and iron-works.

Managua, cap. Nicaragua, has a national palace, and an industrial, commercial, and scientific museum. It exports coffee.

Manaos, Brazil (cap. Amazonas), is a port on the Rio Negro, a few miles above its junction with the Amazon. It has modern docking facilities and storage houses for the immense trade of the region in rubber, Brazil-nuts, cocoa, and copaiba oil. It has a cathedral, a magnificent theater, and all modern improvements.

Manchester, Connecticut (Hartford Co.), has extensive silk-mills, cotton and woollen mills, needle works, paper-mills, and electrical supply works. A large quantity of tinware is made here.

Manchester, England (Lancashire), is the greatest industrial town of England, and the center of its cotton industry, chiefly engaged in the spinning and weaving of cotton, and in the bleaching, printing, and making up of "Manchester goods." There are also a vast number of engineering works. The shipping houses of Manchester export cottons, silk and woollen goods, steam, gas, and electrical machinery, chemicals, india-rubber, iron, steel, and copper goods. It is now a port accessible for the largest sea-going vessels by means of a ship-canal, 35½ miles long, which connects it with the river Mersey, near its estuary. It is the seat of a university and of an Anglican bishop. It was the first town in England to adopt free libraries, and has numerous educational institutions, an art gallery containing a noteworthy collection, one of the finest town halls (1877) in England, etc. It was known as a manufacturing place as early as the 14th century; developed rapidly during the last half of the 18th century; was a leading center of the reform agitation in the early part of the 19th century (the scene of the "Peterloo massacre" in 1819); and became the center of the anti-corn-law and free trade movements under the lead of Cobden and Bright.

Manchester, New Hampshire (c. h. Hillsboro Co.), is an important trade and manufacturing center, the Amoskeag Falls above the city providing extensive water-power, which is made available by canals. It has extensive cotton-mills, and manufactures foundry and machine-shop products, hosiery, paper, boots and shoes, woodenware, needles, knit goods, woollen goods, carriages and furniture. A state industrial school is located here.

Mandalay, India (Upper Burma), is composed of the original town, a square encompassed by a wall, and an open city. Its gates are surmounted by curious wooden towers, and in the center of the town is the picturesque palace of the former kings of Burma. It has a famous pagoda containing an image of Buddha that attracts thousands of pilgrims. Silk-weaving is the chief industry.

Mangalore, India (Madras), is a seaport with exports of coffee, pepper, etc. It is the seat of a Roman Catholic bishop and the headquarters of the Basel Lutheran mission in India.

Manila, cap. Philippine Islands (Rizal), is a port, coaling station, the commercial metropolis of the Philippine Islands, and the seat of the United States military, naval, and civil administration in the Far East. It is an archiepiscopal see and possesses a cathedral and a university (1,200 students). Its industries are extensive, especially in tobacco, cigars, cheroots, cord, rope, thread, and ice. There are also sugar-refineries, breweries, and manufactures of machinery. The climate of Manila is enervatingly tropical and generally uniform in temperature, which, as a mean for the year, is about 80°. The principal public buildings are palaces of the governor and the archbishop, the town house, churches of the different religious orders, monasteries, convents, arsenal, barracks, supreme court, prison, civil and military hospitals, and custom-house. Manila was founded by the Spaniards in 1571; was taken by the English in 1762; and has often been devastated by earthquakes. The bay was the scene of the first naval battle of the Spanish-American war of 1898, in which Dewey destroyed a Spanish fleet (May 1). The city surrendered to the United States' forces on August 13th of the same year.

Manipur, India (Assam), is the capital of a native state of the same name, and has a trade in opium, indigo, silk, rice, and tea.

Manisa, Turkey in Asia, is a busy trading place and has many mosques. Among the notable buildings are the palace of Kara Osman Oglu and the government house.

Manistee, Michigan (c. h. Manistee Co.), has extensive manufactories of timber products, leather, etc. There are large salt deposits, and the vacuum evaporating salt plant produces annually about 6,300,000 bushels. It has extensive shipping interests, and its transportation facilities make it an excellent distributing point for the interior of the northern part of the upper peninsula of Michigan.

Manitowoc, Wisconsin (c. h. Manitowoc Co.), is an important lake shipping port, with manufactures of leather, dairy products, flour, foundry and machine-shop products, agricultural implements, furniture, cigars, beer, etc.

Mankato, Minnesota (c. h. Blue Earth Co.), is an important trade and manufacturing center, with manufactures of knit goods, lime, cement, dairy products, flour, lumber, foundry and machine-shop products, and candy. Valuable stone quarries are in the vicinity. A state normal school is located here. Mankato was the scene of several battles during the Sioux Indian war, 1862-3.

During King Philip's war (1676), the Indians destroyed nearly the whole town.

Marquette, Michigan (c. h. Marquette Co.), is a port on Lake Superior having a fine harbor with the best of facilities for loading steamers with the iron ore and other minerals which are shipped from here in large quantities. Near the city are large quarries of brownstone. The chief industrial establishments are planing-mills, blast-furnaces, and stone-quarries. A state normal school, the Upper Peninsula State Prison, and a house of correction are located here.

Marsala, Italy (Trapani), is a fortified seaport, noted for its wines. It has a cathedral and occupies the site of the ancient Lilybæum, the chief fortress of the Carthaginians in Sicily.

Marseille, France (cap. Bouches-du-Rhône), is the leading port in the Mediterranean, a coaling station, and the second city of the country. The manufactures yield sugar, soda, metals, the products of lead-smelting, macaroni, and leather; but the city's specialties are oil-refining and soap-making. The fishing industry, especially for tunny, is flourishing. Marseille exports wine, fruits, cork, anchovies, silks, cotton, wool, etc., but the leading articles of trade are coal, oil-seeds, grain, soap, and petroleum. Of the older structures, the most interesting is the church of St. Victor, with its 11th century crypt. Originally perhaps settled by Phœnicians, Marseille owes its historical foundation to a Greek colony of Phœnicians (800 B. C.). Having espoused the cause of Pompey, it was besieged and captured by Caesar (B. C.

49), and under Roman domination was famous alike for its commerce and its culture. Semi-independent through the middle ages, Marseille was deprived (1660) of many of its privileges as a free port by Louis XIV. In 1720 it was fearfully ravaged by the plague.

Marshalltown, Iowa (c. h. Marshall Co.), is a trade center in an agricultural and stock-raising region. It has flour-mills, grain elevators, glucose factories, meat-packing plants, furniture factories, carriage works, foundry and machine-shops, etc. The Iowa State Soldiers' Home is located here.

Its trade, once considerable, has decreased since the completion of the Russian railway from the Caspian Sea to Samarkand. Fine silks, carpets, shawls, and sword blades are manufactured.

Messina, Italy (cap. Messina), manufactures silks, muslin, linen, and coral ornaments. The principal exports are wine, oranges, lemons, almonds, licorice, and pistachios. It is the seat of an archbishop, and has a cathedral, commenced in 1098, and the church of Sta. Annunziata, dating from the Norman period. Its university contains a valuable library collected by the Jesuits, and has nearly 700 students. In 829 Messina was taken by the Saracens, who, in turn, were expelled by the Normans in 1072. The town suffers periodically from earthquakes, and was nearly destroyed in December, 1908.

Metz, Germany (Alsace-Lorraine), is a fortified town, with a 14th century cathedral, a museum, and several learned societies. It has trade in leather goods, preserved fruit, and wine. Known to the Romans as Divodurum, it was called Mettis in the 5th century, when it became the capital of the kingdom of Austrasia. It was frequently besieged, notably, and in vain, by the Emperor Charles V. in 1552. Metz remained in the possession of the French, to whom it was secured by the Peace of Westphalia in 1648, until 1870, when it capitulated to the Germans.

Mexico, cap. Mexico (Federal District), is the most imposing city of Latin America, and the metropolis of Mexico. Its famous cathedral, occupying the site of the chief Aztec temple (Teocalli), begun in 1573 and dedicated in 1667, is the second largest in the world. The National Museum contains valuable and interesting historical collections. The government offices, houses of Congress, Museum of Fine Arts, mint, school of mines, industrial museum, school of medicine, and conservatory of music are among the many notable buildings and institutions. The Palace of Chapultepec occupies the site of Montezuma's Palace, and dates from 1783-5, with later additions; it is now occupied by President Diaz and by the National Military School. The commerce of the city is mainly in transit. Its manufactures include cigars and cigarettes, gold and silver work, pottery, feather-work, saddlery, paper, religious pictures, hats, and beer. The present city was founded in 1522 on the site of the Aztec capital, Tenochtitlan, then situated in the lake Texcoco. The water of the lake afterwards retired, but the valley was subject to serious inundations until a few years ago. Numerous attempts have been made at various epochs to drain the valley of Mexico, but none of these proved successful until the completion in 1898 of the great Drainage Canal, constructed at a cost of $10,000,000. It is 30 miles long and crosses the mountains by a tunnel 6 miles in length. Its width at the top varies from 45 ft. to 168 ft., and it is crossed by numerous bridges of stone and iron. Elevation 7,850 ft.

Its industries include car shop and foundry works, factories for boilers and other iron goods, cotton factories, cordage factories, ginning and compress plants, cottonseed-oil and cake works, wood-working and lumber plants, roofing material plants, etc. There are located here a state normal school and other educational institutions. In the State House the Confederate Government was inaugurated by Jefferson Davis on Feb. 18th, 1861, whence Montgomery has been called the "Cradle of the Confederacy". It was also the scene of Yancey's celebrated secession speech on Jan. 11th, 1861.

Montlucon, France (Allier), has blast-furnaces and iron-works, and engineering shops. Mirrors are a specialty.

Montpellier, France (cap. Hérault), is chiefly important as a wine center and for silk culture. There are also manufactures of blankets, soap, and candles. Montpellier possesses not only the oldest botanical garden in Europe, but one of its most famous universities, constituted (in 1289) from the already existing schools of medicine, law, and arts. Moorish physicians founded the school of medicine and science, with which are associated the names of De Villeneuve, Rabelais, Rondelet, the anatomist, Bauhin, Magnol, Tournefort, and De Jussieu. At the university, too, Petrarch was a student and Casaubon a professor. The town has a cathedral.

Montreal, Quebec, Canada, is a port at the head of navigation of the St. Lawrence River, nearly 1,000 miles from the ocean, and is the largest city of Canada. It is the chief commercial and financial center of Canada, and has extensive manufactures of woollen and cotton, boot and shoe factories, breweries, iron-foundries, railway works, clothing, sugar, and tobacco factories. More than half of its population are French. The city, which is predominately Roman Catholic, contains many fine churches, notably the cathedral of Notre Dame, St. James' Cathedral, St. Patrick's, and the Jesuit Church, noted for its frescoes. The Anglican cathedral, Christ Church, is said to be the finest specimen of Decorated Gothic in America. Mention must also be made of the fine group of buildings in which McGill University is housed. When Jacques Cartier sailed up the St. Lawrence in 1535, he found here the Indian town of Hochelaga. In 1760 Montreal surrendered to the English under Lord Amherst. During the war of independence, it was occupied by the Americans (1775-6). The riot of 1847 resulted in the destruction of the parliamentary buildings by fire, and the removal of the seat of government to Quebec.

Montreuil, France (Seine), is a suburb of Paris, and contains a beautiful 13th century church. It is celebrated for its culture of peaches, and has manufactures of colors, glue, varnish, and soap.

Monza, Italy (Milan), is an ancient city, and has a cathedral, founded in 505, where the famous iron crown of Lombardy is preserved. The town hall dates from 1293, and the royal palace from 1777. It has manufactures of coarse cottons, hats, leather, and silk; also dye-works. In 1900 King Humbert of Italy was assassinated here.

Moosejaw, Saskatchewan, Canada, is in the midst of a prosperous agricultural district, and has large flour-mills and stock-yards.

Moradabad, India (United Provinces), has manufactures of cotton, and is noted for engraved metal ware. It has ruins of Rustam Khan's fort, dating from the foundation of the town in 1625.

Morelia, Mexico (cap. Michoacan), has manufactures of cottons, pottery, and sugar. It possesses a cathedral and two colleges.

Morioka, Japan (cap. Iwate), is noted for silks and kettles.

Morocco, cap. Morocco, is an inland walled town, of oriental aspect, which contains the imperial residence of the Sultan. It was formerly important as the place of manufacture of morocco leather.

Morristown, New Jersey (c. h. Morris Co.), is a residential suburb of New York, and is noted for its beautiful homes, country-seats, etc. It was settled in 1709-10 and was called West Hanover. In 1740 the name was changed to Morristown in honor of William Morris, then colonial governor of New Jersey. It was incorporated in 1865. This place figured prominently in the Revolution; in 1777, from January to May, and from December, 1779 to June, 1780, Morristown was Washington's headquarters. An historical museum, in the house occupied by Washington, is now owned by the Washington Association, who preserve here many mementoes of Revolutionary and pre-Revolutionary times.

Morshansk, Russia (Tambov), carries on a large trade, and has manufactures of soap, tallow, spirits; also breweries, saw-mills, and fisheries.

Moscow, Russia (cap. Moscow), is the ancient and still, in a sense, joint capital of Russia, the second largest city of the empire, and the chief railway and manufacturing center. The Kreml or Kremlin, Moscow's acropolis, is entirely surrounded by a wall (40 ft. high), enclosing a space of more than 80 acres. Inside is the cathedral of the Assumption, built in 1474-9, in Lombardo-Byzantine style, and here the Russian emperors are crowned. The cathedral of the Annunciation, founded at the beginning of the 14th century, contains 15th century paintings. The cathedral of St. Michael contains life-sized frescoes of early Russian sovereigns round the walls. The isolated bell-tower of Ivan Velikii has a head of gilded copper, some 260 ft. above the pavement. One of the bells weighs almost 64 tons. The Caar Kolokol, or King of Bells, stands on a pedestal at the foot. It is the largest bell in the world, and weighs some 200 tons. Cast in 1735, it was broken in 1737 without having once sounded. The old imperial palace, the former residence of the Czars, was built in 1487; the Great Palace, an immense pile built in 1806 by Alexander I., contains a collection of ancient robes and armor; the Little Palace, built by Nicholas I., contains valuable pictures and a great collection of books relating to Moscow. Among other wonders of the Kremlin are the Treasury of the Patriarchs, the Chudov Convent, the House of the Holy Synod, and the Saviour Gate. The cathedral of St. Basil (built in 1554), is one of the strangest erections of Christian art. Moscow is the seat of the metropolitan, the chief prelate of the Russian Orthodox Church. The university, founded in 1755, has a library of 300,000 volumes. The city has woollen, silk, and metal manufactures, cotton-mills, tanneries, and candle factories. The principality of Moscow was united with that of Vladimir, and Moscow became the capital of the grand principality of Moscow and the seat of the metropolitan in the first part of the 14th century. It was taken and burned by Lithuanians and Tatars in the 14th century, was nearly destroyed by fire in 1547, and burned by the Khan in 1571. The capital was removed to St. Petersburg by Peter the Great in 1711. Moscow was burned by its inhabitants during its occupation by Napoleon in Sept., 1812.

Mosul, Turkey in Asia, was very prosperous between the 10th and 13th centuries, and was for long afterwards a great trading center, noted particularly for its manufactures of muslin, to which it gave its name. Its importance has greatly declined since the opening of the Suez Canal. Near Mosul are the mounds which mark the site of ancient Nineveh, the capital of Assyria.

Motherwell, Scotland (Lanark), is situated in a rich coal-mining district, and has iron- and steel-works. A growing industry is iron bridge-building.

Mountain Ash, Wales (Glamorgan), has coal-mines and iron-works.

Mount Carmel, Pennsylvania (Northumberland Co.), is a trade center in the midst of valuable coal-fields and nearby are a number of anthracite mines. It has manufactures of mining implements, miners' lamps, hats, caps, men's clothing, flour, cigars, etc.

Mount Clemens, Michigan (Macomb Co.), is a celebrated health resort with several mineral springs.

Mount Vernon, New York (Westchester Co.), is a residential suburb of New York, and has several industrial establishments and a considerable trade. It was founded in 1852 and chartered in 1892.

Mukden, China (cap. Manchuria), is an important banking and commercial center, especially for furs. It has an arsenal and a mint, and outside its walls four conspicuous Lamaist monasteries. During the Boxer rising in 1900 the city was much injured by fire. Inside the east gate is the famous "Fox" temple, much frequented by those who seek to have their diseases miraculously cured. After a fiercely contested battle of fourteen days, duration, the Russians were here defeated by the Japanese, who entered the city on March 10, 1905.

Mulhausen, Germany (Alsace-Lorraine), is a most important manufacturing center, principally for cotton goods and chemicals. Machinery and railway materials are also produced.

Mulheim-on-Rhine, Germany (Prussia), has chemical and engineering works, and manufactures silks, satins, and plush.

Mulheim-on-Ruhr, Germany (Prussia), has iron-works, engineering shops, and glass-works. A large coal trade is carried on.

Multan, India (Punjab), is a railroad center, with extensive trade and important bazaars and banking business. It manufactures textiles, including brocades.

Muncie, Indiana (c. h. Delaware Co.), is a trade and manufacturing center in the natural gas belt of Indiana. In the vicinity are coal-fields and glass sand, and the White River furnishes good water-power. The chief industrial establishments are iron- and steel-works, glass-works, machine-shops, canneries, pulp and paper-mills, manufactories of silver and plated goods, flour, etc. It has numerous educational institutions.

Munich, Germany (cap. Bavaria), contains a royal residence, a magnificent pile, commenced in the beginning of the 17th century, under Maximilian I. The cathedral dates from 1368. Among other buildings of great architectural beauty are the Glyptothek, the new Pinakothek (both picture and sculpture galleries), the National Theatre, the new Courts of Justice (1897), and the Imperial Bank (1901). In addition to the university (4,500 students), and the famous Academy of Arts, there are numerous educational institutions. The royal library is one of the most valuable in Germany, while the art collections are unrivalled. Munich is the home of countless literary, scientific, geographical, and other societies. The principal industry is brewing, but leather goods, gloves, machinery, artificial flowers, embroideries, gold and silver articles, and scientific instruments form other branches of commerce. The town was founded by Henry the Lion, Duke of Saxony, in the middle of the 12th century. It was taken by the Swedes under Gustavus Adolphus in 1632. King Louis I. (1825-48), a great patron of the arts, did much towards embellishing the town. In his reign the university, originally established at Ingolstadt in 1472, and removed to Landshut in 1800, was transferred to Munich. King Maximilian II. (1848-64) followed in his father's footsteps, but devoted more care to the development of the sciences. He founded the Maximilianeum and the National Museum, and gathered round him many of the principal scientists of the day.

Munster, Germany (Prussia), has numerous mediæval buildings, including the 14th century Gothic church of St. Lambert. In the town hall, built in 1335, was signed the Peace of Westphalia on October 24, 1648, which terminated the Thirty Years' war. The university was founded in 1771. The principal manufactures are linen and cotton goods, while Westphalian hams and pumpernickel, a coarse, black rye-bread, are exported. Distilling, brewing, wood-carving, and glass-painting are thriving industries.

Murcia, Spain (cap. Murcia), is the seat of a bishop and has a cathedral in the Gothic Romanesque style begun in the 14th century, with a striking tower completed in 1766. Cloth, gunpowder, and flannel are manufactured.

Muscatine, Iowa (c. h. Muscatine Co.), is a trade center in a fertile agricultural and manufacturing region. Its chief manufactures are farm and machine-shop products, oatmeal, flour, wagons, carriages, pottery, rolling-mill products, lead-works, and lumber.

Muskegon, Michigan (c. h. Muskegon Co.), is a port on Lake Michigan and an important trade and manufacturing center. It has extensive manufactures of furniture, curtain rollers, refrigerators, flour, beer, knit goods, pianos, iron products, chemical engines, tin-plate products, electric cranes, leather, and cutlery.

Muskogee, Oklahoma (c. h. Muskogee Co.), is in size the second city of Oklahoma, and an important trade center in a rich agricultural region. It has an extensive trade in grain, lumber, and general merchandise. Its industries are chiefly machine and boiler works, planing-mills, iron-works, etc. It is the seat of an Indian university.

Muttra, India (United Provinces), was once the center of the Buddhist faith. It is the reputed birthplace of Krishna and his brother Balarama, and is consequently a great pilgrim resort.

Mysore, India (Madras), is the capital of a native state of the same name, and has manufactures of carpets, silks, and jewelry.

Nafa, Japan (cap. Okinawa), is a port with exports of sugar, cotton, and silks.

Namding, Tonkin, French Indo-China, is a fortified town with a trade in silk and cottons.

Namur, Belgium (cap. Namur), manufactures cutlery, pottery, porcelain, and glass, and produces coal, iron, and limestone. The cathedral (18th century) and the church of St. Loup (17th century) are handsome edifices.

Nanaimo, British Columbia, Canada, has a fine harbor and is a trade center in a fruit growing and farming section. It has extensive fishing and fish curing interests and ships considerable coal.

Nanchang, China (cap. Kiangsi), is the center of the porcelain trade of the country.

Nancy, France (cap. Meurthe-et-Moselle), was formerly the capital of the duchy of Lorraine, and it possesses a university, a large public library, and a famous school of forestry. It is an important railway center, and its chief manufactures are embroidery, cambric, muslin, jaconets, cotton and woollens, and artificial flowers. Outside the town Charles the Bold of Burgundy was killed in the battle against the Swiss (1477).

Nankin, China (cap. Kiangsu), is a port on the Yangtze River, 130 miles from its mouth. Its silks and satins are famous in China, its nankeens in Europe. It contained the remarkable "porcelain tower", and the tomb of the first Ming emperor (Hung Wu) is near the city. An arsenal stands outside the city.

Nantes, France (cap. Loire-Inférieure), exports wine, preserved provisions, and hardware, and has manufactures of sugar, leather, soap, preserved meats, fruits, and sardines, as well as cotton-mills, iron-foundries, and ship-building yards. In its 14th century castle Henri IV. signed the Edict of Nantes (1598). The somewhat unsightly cathedral (1434-1852), contains an exquisite Renaissance monument by Colomb to the last Duke and Duchess of Brittany.

Nantleoke, Pennsylvania (Luzerne Co.), is a trade center in an anthracite coal region. Has extensive water-power, which is utilized in manufacturing mining and agricultural implements, hosiery, knit goods, lumber, flour, etc. The industry contributing most to the wealth of the town is coal-mining.

Naples, Italy (cap. Naples), is a port, coaling station and the largest city of Italy, famous for its beautiful situation. It has extensive ship-building, is an important port of embarkation of emigrants, and has a large export trade in wine, silk, hemp, flax, fruit, etc. It is the seat of an archbishop, and has a cathedral, commenced in 1272 and completed in 1316. The university (5,550 students) was founded by the Emperor Frederick II. in 1224. Among other public buildings are the castle of St. Elmo (1334); the new castle, built by Charles I. in 1283; the Borbonico (now National Museum), founded in 1586; the royal palace, dating from 1600; and the San Carlo theatre, opened in 1737. Naples was a Greek colony from Cumæ; flourished under Roman rule; suffered in the barbarian invasions; was taken by Belisarius in 536, by Totila in 543, and by the Normans in 1130; and became the capital of the kingdom of Naples and of the Two Sicilies in 1139.

Nara, Japan (cap. Nara), was from 709 the first fixed capital of Japan. It has beautiful temples, a Shinto dating from 767, and a Buddhist from 752; also a huge bell, weighing 37 tons (cast in 732), and a gigantic image of Buddha. Fans and toys are manufactured.

Narbonne, France (Aude), is an ancient city, and has a cathedral dating from the 13th century and a town hall, also from the 13th century, which is now a museum. It makes brandy and wine, and is famous for its heather honey.

Nashua, New Hampshire (c. h. Hillsboro Co.), is an important manufacturing city. Its water-power is obtained from the Nashua River by means of a canal 3 miles long, 60 ft. wide and 8 ft. deep. The chief manufactures are cotton goods, paper, shoes, iron and steel products, edged-tools, saddlery, refrigerators, registers, sash, doors, and blinds, ice-cream freezers, etc. It has a United States fish-hatchery. The first settlement was made in 1655.

Nashville, cap. Tennessee (c. h. Davidson Co.), is the second city of the state, and the most important educational and publishing center in the South. It is the seat of Vanderbilt University, attended by upwards of 1,000 students; the University of Nashville, attended by about 1,500 students; and the Peabody teachers' college, 1,000 students. Fisk University, 600 students, the Roger Williams University, 250 students, and Walden University, 1,000 students, are the leading seats of learning for colored persons. There are numerous other educational institutions. The most prominent public building is the State Capitol. The state library contains 40,000 volumes, and the Tennessee Historical Society has a large and valuable library, with many rare MSS., portraits, etc. The city has manufactures of hardware, large flour-mills, copper mills, tobacco works, etc.; also a large and extensive wholesale trade in dry goods and other merchandise; and is a leading lumber-market. Several large sectarian publishing houses are located here. Nashville was settled in 1780 and became the permanent state capital in 1843. The Federal army occupied the city in 1862 and around it, in 1864, was fought one of the greatest battles of the Civil War, in which Gen. Hood, at the head of the Confederate army, was defeated by Gen. Thomas.

It has extensive manufactures of rubber, wall-paper, cigars, etc. It was settled in 1681 and chartered as a city in 1784. It was the scene of much of the trouble during the Revolutionary War, and was occupied by the British during the winter of 1776-7.

Newburgh, New York (Orange Co.), has extensive manufactures of cotton and woollen goods, silk, powder, paper, carpet, flour, lumber, and cigars. It has shipyards and extensive coal, brick and lumber-yards. Large quantities of coal from Pennsylvania are brought here to be loaded on coasting vessels and barges. The Haabrouck Mansion, which was Washington's headquarters from 1782-3 and dates in part from 1750, contains interesting relics; it was here that Washington was offered the title of king by the officers of the army. In the ground surrounding this building is the so-called Tower of Victory with a statue of Washington. The city was incorporated in 1865.

Newburyport, Massachusetts (c. h. Essex Co.), has boot and shoe factories, cotton factories, hat shops, etc. It was settled in 1635 and chartered as a city in 1851.

Newcastle, England (Northumberland), is a port and coaling station near the mouth of the Tyne. Has large ship-building yards, engineering and steel-works, locomotive works, glass-works, and other extensive industries. It is the largest coal market in the world. It is the seat of a bishop, and the Church of St. Nicholas, dating from the 14th century, is now the cathedral. The Norman castle, built in 1080 and rebuilt by Henry II., was long a noted stronghold. Newcastle was a Roman and a Saxon town; was taken by the Scots in 1640 and 1644; and long held an important place in border warfare.

Newcastle, New South Wales, Australia, is a port with an extensive export trade in coal, wool, and frozen meats.

New Castle, Pennsylvania (c. h. Lawrence Co.), is a trade center in a productive agricultural region, and in the vicinity are extensive coal-fields and deposits of iron, sandstone, limestone, and fire-clay. The chief manufactures are glass, iron, flour, paper, agricultural implements, stoves, nails, tin-plate, and lumber. It was settled in 1712 and received its city charter in 1869.

New Guatemala, cap. Guatemala, Central America, manufactures muslins, cotton yarns, silver articles, and embroidery, and is the center of the trade of the entire republic. It has most of the government offices, a museum, a cathedral, and a university.

New Haven, Connecticut (c. h. New Haven Co.), is the largest city of Connecticut, and the seat of Yale University, attended by over 3,000 students and having, besides the academic department, schools of science, theology, medicine, law, forestry, music, and fine arts. A state normal school, a manual training school, and other educational institutions are located here. It has extensive manufactures of clocks, watches, hardware, firearms, ammunition, carriages, engines, automobiles, rubber goods, etc. New Haven was settled in 1638 and incorporated as a city in 1784.

New London, Connecticut (c. h. New London Co.), is a port on the Thames River, three miles from its entrance into Long Island Sound. It has large manufactories of silk, woollen goods, furniture, foundry and machine-shop products, and shipyards. A small government naval station is near by. It was settled in 1646 and incorporated in 1784. On September 6, 1781, a British force under Benedict Arnold attacked the town, destroyed the wharves and many of the buildings, and killed a number of the people.

New Orleans, Louisiana (c. h. Orleans Parish), is the largest city of the Southern States, the second largest cotton market in the world, and ranks next to New York City in value of exports. It is a port and coaling station on the Mississippi River, 107 miles from its mouth. It is the outlet of the greatest agricultural valley in the world and exports large quantities of cotton, sugar, molasses, rice, pork, corn, wool, timber, hides, and tobacco. It manufactures extensively cottonseed oil, machinery, timber products, flour, rice, tobacco, and sugar. It is the seat of Tulane University, an important and well-equipped institution with nearly 2,000 students, and of other educational institutions. It has an archiepiscopal palace dating from 1737. The Cabildo, now occupied by the state Supreme Court, was erected in 1795 and was formerly the government building; here the cession of Louisiana from France to the United States took place in 1803. A United States mint and a marine hospital are located here. A national cemetery nearby contains 12,000 graves of Union soldiers of the Civil War. New Orleans was settled in 1718, and in 1726, it was made the capital of the French colony of Louisiana, which then included nearly all of the Mississippi Valley. It was incorporated as a city in 1804. When, in 1812, Louisiana was admitted to the Union as a state, this city was its capital and remained such until 1852. In 1865-80 it was again the state capital. On January 8, 1815, occurred the battle in which Gen. Andrew Jackson defeated the British army under Gen. Pakenham. Soon after the secession of Louisiana from the Union and the establishment of the Confederate government, New Orleans was blockaded by the Federal fleet under Farragut and was captured in April, 1862.

Newport, England (Monmouth), has manufactures of steam-engines, railway material, agricultural implements, glass, pottery, chemical manures, ship-building, and brewing. Coal, iron, and steel are exported. It is an ancient city, and many Roman remains have been discovered here.

Newport, Kentucky (c. h. Campbell Co.), is a residential suburb of Cincinnati, and has manufactures of cigar boxes, iron, carriages, watch-cases, and furniture. Fort Thomas, a government military post, is nearby.

Newport, Rhode Island (c. h. Newport Co.), is a port and famous summer resort on Narragansett Bay. It is a favorite watering-place of people of great wealth who have here many costly summer residences. Overlooking and guarding the harbor are Fort Greble and Fort Adam, and a United States torpedo station, war college, and naval hospital are near by. It has a large trade in fish. Newport was settled in 1639 by William Coddington and other dissenters from the Puritan church of Massachusetts, and a century later had about 5,000 inhabitants. In 1770 Newport was surpassed by Boston only in the extent of its trade, which was considerably greater than that of New York. It suffered greatly during the Revolution, however, and never recovered its commercial importance, so that in 1870 its population was no larger than in 1770. During part of the Revolutionary struggle Newport was occupied by the French allies of the Americans, who were so favorably impressed with Rhode Island, that they sought to have it ceded to France.

Newport News, Virginia (Warwick Co.), is a port on Hampton Roads and an important railroad terminal. It has an extensive export trade in grain, a large ship-building plant, and other industries.

New Rochelle, New York (Westchester Co.), is a

Newton, Massachusetts (Middlesex Co.), is a suburb of Boston, and has manufactories of boots and shoes, silk-mills, rubber works, printing works, worsted mills, etc. It has a theological seminary and other institutions of learning. It was settled in 1631 and was incorporated in 1688 under the name of New Cambridge, which name it retained until 1692. The city charter was granted in 1873.

New Westminster, British Columbia, Canada, is a fresh water port on the Fraser river, 13 miles from the Strait of Georgia and is a center of lumbering, farming and fishing industries. Its industries include large sawmills, many fish canneries, iron works, railway car building works, etc.

New York, New York (c. h. New York Co.), is the largest city of the state and of the United States, the second largest city of the world, a port and coaling station, and the chief portal of the foreign commerce of the United States. It is a great manufacturing as well as trading center, with extensive manufactures of sugar, tobacco, clothing, brass and copper, chemicals, patent medicines, iron and steel, boats and sails, glass and glassware, india-rubber and leather products, instruments for scientific purposes, gold and silver wares, malt liquors and distilled spirits, products of cotton, wool, and wood. It has large printing, lithographing, engraving, and map-making works, in which industries New York holds the first place in America. It is noted for its magnificent public and commercial buildings, especially for those of extraordinary height called "sky-scrapers." Among its prominent buildings are the Custom-House, with its splendid sculptured groups emblematic of the continents, a large quadrangular granite building in the French Renaissance style, erected in 1902-7, and occupying the site of Fort Amsterdam; the Stock Exchange, the Produce Exchange, the United States Sub-Treasury, the Singer Building, the Metropolitan Life Building, the Hudson Terminal Building, the City Hall, the Hall of Records, and the Appellate Court-House. Trinity Church, a handsome Gothic edifice of brownstone, dates from 1839 and occupies the site of a church of 1696. Grace Church, with its rectory, chantry, and church-house, forms, perhaps, the most attractive ecclesiastical group on the continent. St. Patrick's Cathedral, a white marble building in the decorated Gothic style, is doubtless the most important church edifice in the United States. It was designed by James Renwick and erected in 1850-79 at a cost of $3,500,000. The Cathedral of St. John the Divine, designed by Heins and La Farge, the corner-stone of which was laid in 1892, is in course of construction and is intended to be the largest and most important cathedral of the Episcopal church. The Metropolitan opera-house is a large and handsome building. New York is the seat of Columbia University, attended by upwards of 5,000 students and ranking with the foremost universities of America; it was founded in 1754 as King's College; in 1890, the institution was reorganized on a broad university basis and now consists of Columbia College proper for men, Barnard College for women, and schools of law, medicine, mines, engineering, chemistry, architecture, music and design, education (teachers' college), pharmacy, political science, philosophy, and pure science. Its library contains 427,000 volumes. Among the other educational institutions are the Normal College, the Union Theological Seminary, the College of the City of New York, attended by 4,000 students, and New York University, also attended by 4,000 students. The Metropolitan Museum of Art contains, perhaps, the foremost collection of paintings, antiquities, and statuary in the western hemisphere. The American Museum of Natural History is the most important institution of its kind in America, and its buildings, planned to cover an entire city block of 18 acres, house one of the largest and most interesting collections of the kind in the world. The New York Public Library contains over 1,000,000 volumes and over 400,000 pamphlets. The first settlement of Manhattan Island was made by the Dutch in 1624 and the little town was christened Amsterdam, which, by 1650, had about 1,000 inhabitants. In 1664 the town was seized during a time of peace by the English, and, though retaken by the Dutch in 1673, it passed permanently into English possession by a treaty in the following year. The name of the town was then changed to New York in honor of the Duke of York. In 1765 delegates from nine of the thirteen colonies met in New York to protest against the Stamp Act and to assert the doctrine of no taxation without representation, and the first actual bloodshed of the Revolution took place here in 1770. The town was occupied by Washington in 1776 but, after the battles of Long Island and Harlem Heights, the Americans retired, and New York became the British headquarters for seven years. The British troops evacuated the city on November 25, 1783. From 1785 to 1790 New York was the seat of the Federal government; and it was the state capital down to 1797. In 1807 the first steamboat was put on the Hudson River and in 1825 a great impulse was given to the city's commerce by the opening of the Erie Canal. In July, 1863, the opposition in New York to the draft act culminated in a riot, which lasted three days, cost over 1,000 lives, and destroyed property worth about $1,500,000. In March, 1888, New York was visited by a terrible blizzard. In 1890 a Commission was appointed by the state legislature to inquire into the expediency of the consolidation of New York with Brooklyn and other contiguous towns and cities, and in 1896 the act to make this consolidation became a law. In 1897 the charter of Greater New York was finally passed. In 1909 New York was connected with New Jersey by underground tunnels.

Neshin, Russia (Chernigof), is a trade center in a tobacco growing district.

Niagara Falls, New York (Niagara Co.), is famous on account of the Falls, one of the great scenic wonders of the world, and is visited annually by thousands of tourists. The power of the falls is utilized for extensive manufactures of paper, flour, cereals, electrochemical products, machinery, lumber products, etc.

Niagara Falls, Ontario, Canada, is a popular summer resort and manufacturing center. Power is supplied by natural gas and electric generating plants. Its industries include cereal foods, carborundum, wire chain, etc.

Nice, France (cap. Alpes-Maritimes), is one of the largest winter health resorts of the Riviera, picturesquely situated at the foot of the Maritime Alps. It exports wine and liqueurs, olive-oil, glass, pottery, fruits, and soap, and manufactures art pottery and olive-wood inlay work. It is the birthplace of Garibaldi.

Niigata, Japan (cap. Niigata), manufactures coarse lacquer ware, and there are coal and petroleum deposits in the vicinity.

Nijmegen, Netherlands (Gelderland), produces tobacco, metal wares, and beer. The principal church (1272) contains a fine monument to Catherine of Bourbon. Here treaties of peace were signed between Spain, France, Austria, and the Netherlands (1678-9).

Nikolaief, Russia (Cherson), is a fortified port and naval station on the Bug River, 20 miles from its mouth. It has an Orthodox cathedral, Admiralty buildings, an observatory (1821), and a school of navigation. The dock-yards and naval arsenal are important, and there are industries of rope, tallow, tobacco, and candies. It is, with Sevastopol, the principal naval station of Russia on the Black Sea.

Nîmes, France (cap. Gard), manufactures shawls, carpets, silks, wine, and brandy. It is an episcopal see, and possesses a modern cathedral. Nîmes is noted for its Roman antiquities, among which are the amphitheater, in excellent preservation; the Maison Carrée one of the finest Corinthian temples of the Roman period, now a museum; and an aqueduct. The town was the birthplace of the historian Guizot (1787) and of the novelist Daudet (1840).

Ningpo, China (Chekiang), is a treaty port with large exports of rice, cotton, varnish, oils, rapia, and bamboo. It is noted for its wood-carving and embroideries, and is the meeting-place of large fishing fleets.

Nissa, Servia, is a fortified city and the seat of a bishop. It was the birthplace of Constantine the Great, and was long a bone of contention between Hungarians and Turks.

Niuchwang, China (Shengking), is a treaty port in South Manchuria, on the Liao River, 25 miles from its mouth. Exports beans and bean-cake, castor-oil, tobacco, silk, etc.

Nishni Novgorod, Russia (cap. Nishni Novgorod), is a port on the Volga and the seat of one of the greatest European fairs, held annually, from July to September, to which some 400,000 visitors and traders resort. In the Kremlin are the cathedrals of the Transfiguration (founded in 1227) and of the archangel Michael (founded in 1222), the governor's palace, the tower of Prince Dmitri (1374, rebuilt in 1869), the tower of the Czar Ivan III. (1500), the arsenal, a military cadet school, and the law-courts. The principal industrial establishments are flour-mills, metal foundries, machine-works, and distilleries. Nishni Novgorod was founded in 1212, and became the capital of a separate principality in 1350. It was sacked by the Tartars in 1377, and united to Moscow in 1392.

Nishni Tagilsk, Russia (Perm), is a mining and iron and steel manufacturing city. Iron, copper, gold, and platinum are found in the vicinity.

Nome, Alaska, is the center of an important mining district on Seward Peninsula, and, next to Fairbanks, is the largest place in Alaska. In 1898 gold was discovered here in the beach sands of the coast and shortly afterwards rich placer deposits in the interior were found.

Nordhausen, Germany (Prussia), has distilleries, and manufactures of tobacco, cigars, chicory, sugar, leather, wall-paper, and machinery.

Norfolk, Virginia (Norfolk Co.), is the second largest city of Virginia, also a port and coaling station, situated on an arm of the Chesapeake Bay. It is an important railroad and steamship terminus, and has an extensive trade in lumber, coal, grain, cotton, peanuts, oysters, fruit, and vegetables. The manufacturing industries include cotton knitting mills, cotton compress mills, fertilizer factories, shipyards, tobacco and sugar factories, iron-foundries, machine-shops, steel-works, lumber mills, silk-mills, etc. It was settled in 1608. The Norfolk navy yard, located at Portsmouth, on the opposite side of the Elizabeth River, is one of the largest naval stations in the United States. It was bombarded and nearly destroyed by the British on Jan. 1, 1776. Norfolk was incorporated as a borough in 1736 and chartered as a city in 1845.

Norristown, Pennsylvania (c. h. Montgomery Co.), is a manufacturing center in a rich agricultural section. It has manufactures of knitting-machines, hosiery, glass, iron, wire, agricultural implements, furniture, etc. Valley Forge and other places of historical interest are in the vicinity. It was settled in about 1688 and incorporated as a borough in 1812.

Norrköping, Sweden (Oster Gotland), is a port with a good harbor, situated at the head of Braviken Bay. It manufactures cottons, paper, tapestries, and sugar, and has ship-building yards.

North Adams, Massachusetts (Berkshire Co.), has extensive manufactures of cotton and woollen goods, boots and shoes, cigars, etc. It is the seat of a state normal school, and was settled in 1785.

Northampton, England (cap. Northampton), is one of the oldest towns in the country, and has several ancient interesting churches, such as St. Sepulchre's (12th century), one of the few round churches still remaining in England, and St. Peter's, a fine example of Norman architecture. It is the center of the boot and shoe manufacture of England.

Northampton, Massachusetts (c. h. Hampshire Co.), is a trade center in an active agricultural section, and has extensive manufacturing and commercial interests. A state asylum for the insane, Smith College, and a classical school for girls are located here. The "Home Culture Club", founded by George W. Cable and endowed by Andrew Carnegie, gives instruction in household arts and amusements. The city was settled in 1854.

North Tonawanda, New York (Niagara Co.), is a manufacturing suburb of Buffalo. It has large lumber yards and manufactories of steam-pumps, merry-go-rounds, pig-iron, and lumber products.

North Yakima, Washington (c. h. Yakima Co.), is the largest city of central Washington and the trade center of the rich Yakima Valley, an agricultural region largely under irrigation. It has a large trade in fruits, grains and agricultural produce. Its industries are chiefly canneries, flour-mills, and wood-working establishments.

Norwich, Connecticut (c. h. New London Co.), is at the head of navigation of the Thames River, about 14 miles from Long Island Sound. Its exceptional water-power has contributed to extensive development of manufacturing industries. The chief manufactures are firearms, leather, silk fabrics, cotton and woollen goods, machinery, stoves, iron products, and furniture. A state armory and a state insane hospital are located here.

Norwich, England (cap. Norfolk), has manufactures of boots and shoes, ready-made clothing, and agricultural implements, iron-foundries, tanneries, breweries, and flour-mills, as well as mustard, starch, and vinegar works. The cathedral begun in 1096 is said to preserve its Norman plan with less alteration than any other English cathedral. The largest church, St. Peter Mancroft, is a handsome 15th century edifice; St. Andrew's was built in 1506; St. Michael Coslany is an example of fine flint and stone work; St. Andrew's Hall, a handsome Gothic structure, was formerly the nave of the Blackfriars monastery church. Norwich was a British and Roman town; was burned by Sweyn; became the seat of the bishopric of East Anglia in 1094; received a colony of Flemish weavers in the 14th century and became an important center for cloth manufactures. It was one of the leading towns in England in the 17th century.

Nottingham, England (cap. Nottingham), is the center of the English lace and hosiery manufacture, and has also manufactories of silk, leather, and machinery. It has a castle, built by William the Conqueror, which contains now a museum and an art gallery, a University College, and a very large market-place. It is the seat of a Roman Catholic bishop. Nottingham was one of the Five Boroughs of the Danelas, and was reconquered by Edward the Elder. Here Mortimer and Queen Isabella were captured in 1330. Charles I. raised his standard here, in 1642, at the beginning of the civil war.

Novara, Italy (cap. Novara), has manufactures of silks, cottons, and linen. It has several fine churches, notably a Romanesque cathedral, dating from the 14th century and rebuilt in 1870. The Italian army was totally defeated here by the Austrians under Radetsky in 1849.

Novgorod, Russia (cap. Novgorod), is one of the oldest, and in mediæval times was one of the largest cities of Russia. It was one of the leading commercial centers of Europe, and was a member of the Hanseatic League. It was the capital of an independent state, but was brought under the dominion of Moscow about 1478, and was sacked by Ivan the Terrible in 1570. Its commercial importance has been entirely destroyed by the foundation of St. Petersburg, and by the building of railroads. It is the seat of a Greek Orthodox archbishop. The Cathedral of St. Sophia, within the walls of the highly picturesque Kremlin, or citadel, was built in the middle of the 11th century by workmen from Constantinople; and, despite several restorations, it retains in great measure its Byzantine character.

Novocherkassk, Russia (cap. Don Cossacks), has extensive vineyards, fisheries, and flour-mills. An Orthodox cathedral has been building since 1893; the library and museum illustrate the history of the Don Cossacks. There are coal-mines in the vicinity.

Nuka, Russia (Elizavetpol), has silk raising and spinning interests.

Nuremberg, Germany (Bavaria), is one of the richest towns on the continent in mediæval buildings and works of art, and still retains its ancient walls and moat. The churches are full of priceless paintings, statuary, and carvings. Of its many famous collections the Germanic museum is the most valuable, and a remarkable library, dating from 1445, is preserved in the old Dominican monastery. The castle, dating from 1050, was enlarged by Frederick Barbarossa, and has served as residence for many German emperors. The principal industries are the manufacture of toys, optical and other scientific instruments, cycles, automobiles, bronzes, and the brewing of beer. Nuremberg was made a free city in 1219, and retained its independence till 1803, when Napoleon I. bestowed it upon the king of Bavaria.

Nyireggyhaza, Hungary, has manufactures of soda, saltpeter, and matches, and there are large vineyards in the neighborhood.

Oakland, California (c. h. Alameda Co.), is situated on the east shore of San Francisco Bay, and is connected with San Francisco by ferries. Its harbor accommodates the largest ocean vessels and the city has 15 miles of water frontage. High-tide jetties, forming the harbor entrance, are built of rubble stone. Its excellent facilities for transportation are greatly increasing the amount of its shipments each year, and it is the commercial center of a large agricultural region. The principal industrial establishments are iron-works, ship-building works, canneries, flour-mills, planing-mills, and lumber-yards. It has numerous educational institutions, including a Baptist college, a Roman Catholic academy, etc.

To these may be added Somerville Hall (1879), Lady Margaret Hall, and St. Hugh's Hall, all for women. The authentic annals of Oxford begin in 912, when it was annexed by Edward the Elder, king of the West Saxons. It was a place of strategical importance and one of the political centers in the middle ages; it was a meeting-place of the witenagemot. Harold Harefoot was proclaimed king there in 1036, and died there in 1039. The population in the time of Edward the Confessor is estimated at 3,000; in 1086 it was only 1,700. The castle was besieged by Stephen in 1141-42, Matilda escaping then over the frozen river. The city was the Royalist headquarters in the Civil War, and was taken by Parliamentarians under Fairfax in 1646. Oxford is the seat of an Anglican bishop.

Pachuca, Mexico (cap. Hidalgo), has rich silver mines and a meteorological observatory.

Padang, Sumatra, is a seaport with large export trade in coffee, spices, rubber, tobacco, hides, and copra.

Padua, Italy (cap. Padua), is the seat of a bishop, and has a cathedral (16th century), with a collection of valuable miniatures. The Palazzo della Ragione was built as law-courts (1172-1219); and the university, especially famous in the 13th century, was founded in 1222. Padua, the ancient Patavium, was the birthplace of Livy, and an important Roman commercial center.

Paducah, Kentucky (c. h. McCracken Co.), has extensive manufactures of pig iron, lumber products, stoneware, pottery, saddles, tobacco products, knit goods, etc. It has a large ore milling plant and in the vicinity are deposits of fire-clay, glass sand, zinc, etc. It was settled in 1821.

Paisley, Scotland (cap. Renfrew), has manufactures of cotton thread, carpets, textiles, chemicals, corn-flour, starch, and preserves, engineering and electric works, and ship-building. The scholastic buildings include the John Neilson Educational Institution (1852) and the technical school (1899). There was here a Cluniac priory, raised to an abbey (1219), burnt by the English (1307), and rebuilt between 1445-1525. The present edifice formed the nave of the sanctuary, which was restored in 1902.

Pakhoi, China (Kwangtung), is a treaty port, opened to foreign trade in 1876, and has large exports of indigo.

Palembang, Sumatra (cap. Palembang), is a port on the Palembang River, 60 miles from the sea. It is a health-recruiting station for the troops of the Dutch East Indies. It contains a fine mosque (1740), and the ancient palace and tombs of the former native dynasty. Cotton, sago, pepper, honey, rattans, dyewoods, and gutta-percha are exported.

Palermo, Italy (cap. Palermo), is a seaport, and the principal town of Sicily. It is the seat of an archbishop, and has a magnificent cathedral in the Gothic style, begun in 1180, which contains the tombs of Roger the Norman and Emperor Frederick II. It has a university, founded in the 14th century; a famous observatory, located in the royal palace; and large barracks, which occupy the former Palazzo Sclafani. The principal exports are olive-oil, wines, sulphur, and fruits. Palermo is a very ancient town, and was founded by the Phoenicians. It was occupied by the Romans in 254 B. C., and became one of their principal naval stations.

Palestine, Texas (c. h. Anderson Co.), is a trade center in a rich agricultural region, of which cotton is the leading product. It has cotton gins, lumber mills, machine shops, etc.

Palma, Spain (cap. Balearic Islands), is a fortified seaport, and has manufactures of flour, soap, starch, alcohol, liqueurs, glass, and leather, as well as ship-building yards and exports of fruit, wine, and olive-oil. It is the seat of a bishop, and has a fine cathedral in the Gothic style. It has a seminary for priests, a normal school, a school for painting, and a fine picture gallery.

Pamplona, Colombia, is the seat of a Roman Catholic bishop. It has breweries and match factories.

Pamplona, Spain (cap. Navarra), is a strongly fortified town, and has a cathedral dating from the middle ages. It has manufactures of paper, leather, etc.

Panama, cap. Panama, is a port and coaling station, and exports pearls, mother-of-pearl, rubber, and mahogany. It has a large transit trade. The original Panama, founded in 1518, lay 4½ miles to the northeast, and was destroyed in 1671 by the buccaneer Morgan. The present town dates from 1673. Its most noteworthy sights are the cathedral, the bishop's palace, and a few famous ruins.

Pantin, France (Seine), is an industrial suburb of Paris, and has glass-works, sugar-refineries, and railway shops.

Paoiting, China (cap. Chili), is a trade center, which figured prominently in the Boxer insurrection of 1900, and was captured by the French.

Para, Brazil (cap. Para), also called Belem, is a port on the estuary of the Para River, 85 miles from the Atlantic Ocean, and forms the principal entrance for ships into the Amazon River. It is, therefore, a great trading center, and has large exports of rubber, cocoa, sugar, coffee, cinchona, and hides. Its exports of rubber exceed that of any other port in the world. Para is the seat of a bishop, and has a cathedral dating from 1720. It has a museum, botanical gardens, a fine theater, and several educational establishments. Para was founded in 1615, but its actual prosperity dates from the last quarter of the 19th century.

Paramaribo, cap. Dutch Guiana, is a port and the center of trade of the colony. Coffee, cocoa, sugar, and rum are exported.

Parana, Argentina (cap. Entre Rios), was the capital of Argentina from 1852 to 1861, and is now the residence of a bishop.

Paris, cap. France (cap. Seine), is the third largest city of the world, and as much of a center for commercial and manufacturing occupations as it is for art, literature, science, fashion, and kindred interests. The fancy goods industry takes the first place, including gold and silver-work, jewelry, dressmaking, high-class cabinet-making, and all manufactures known as French goods, and employs 500,000 work-people. Paris is strongly fortified, and extends along both northern and southern banks of the Seine, in which lies the Ile de la Cité, the earliest original site of the city. On this small island, the heart of Paris, are some ancient buildings; one group includes the Palais de Justice, the Conciergerie, a prison which won evil fame during the Revolution, and the exquisite Sainte Chapelle. At the eastern end of the island stands the noble cathedral of Notre Dame. The two banks of the Seine are connected by numerous bridges, some of them old and of handsome design. On the left, or southern, bank are the Quartier St. Germain, the home of the French aristocracy, and the Diplomatic Corps; and the Quartier Latin, famous for its picturesque student life. Here are located schools of art, medicine, law, science, literature, and the like, the Institute of France and the University of Paris, including the Sorbonne, for the faculties of literature and science, with about 12,000 students. Here, also, is Mont Ste. Geneviève, crowned by the Pantheon, set apart as a mausoleum for Frenchmen considered worthy of fame, the interior of which is decorated by well-known artists depicting episodes in France's history. The gardens of the Luxembourg containing the Luxembourg Palace, where the Senate convenes, and the noted gallery of modern painting and sculpture; the Observatory; the Chamber of Deputies; the Hôtel des Invalides, containing a museum of artillery, and Napoleon I.'s tomb; the great Salpêtrière hospital; the factory of the Gobelins; the Odéon theater; and the Jardin des Plantes are among the more celebrated institutions on the south bank of the Seine. The Hôtel Cluny, an old mansion containing collections of mediæval objects, lace, carriages, etc., is built on the site of the palace of the Frankish kings, and shows ruins of Roman baths. On the right bank of the Seine lies the magnificent open space known as the Place de la Concorde, flanked by the broad tree-bordered Champs Elysées, near which is the Elysée Palace where the President of the Republic resides, and by the gardens of the Tuileries, a royal palace destroyed during the Commune. These gardens extend to the Louvre, one of the most beautiful palaces in the world, which was at first a fortress and was rebuilt by Francis I. in 1541. It contains priceless treasures of art, both paintings and sculpture. The social life of Paris and much of its business concentrate about the grand boulevards, broad tree-shaded avenues which girdle the older part of the city. Two triumphal arches, erected by Louis XIV., the Porte St. Martin, and the Porte St. Denis, divide the stream of traffic on the busiest of these boulevards, and in their vicinity are the Madeleine, a church fashioned like a Greek temple, and the magnificent Opéra, celebrated alike for its music and its architecture, and for its museum of dramatic history. The Palais Royal, built by Cardinal Richelieu, the scene of many notable gatherings of historical personages and containing the Théâtre Français; the Hôtel de Ville, a reproduction of the one burned in 1871, splendidly decorated; the national library, of about 2,500,000 books, and considered to be the richest library of the world as regards rare books and old and modern bindings; the Bourse; the quaint little church of St. Germain l'Auxerrois, dating from the 13th century, from whose belfry sounded the signal for the massacre of the Huguenots of France on St. Bartholomew's Day; and the curious tower of St. Jacques, a fragment of an ancient church are all clustered on the right bank. There, also, are the Halles Centrales, the great markets of Paris. There are numerous columns, monuments, and triumphal arches, the largest of which is the Arc de Triomphe de l'Etoile commenced by Napoleon I., commemorating various events in the turbulent history of France. The Palace of the Trocadéro, erected for the Universal Exhibition of 1878, has a hall capable of holding 5,000 spectators; and across the Seine the Eiffel tower, erected for the exhibition of 1889, reaches a height of 984 feet. There are many churches of interest in the city, both for age or architecture or for decoration, but the most prominent is the church of the Sacré Cœur, which stands alone on the top of Montmartre, and commands the whole capital. It is modern, and as yet unfinished, and forms a vast basilica in the Roman style, with a Byzantine dome 272 ft. high. The Bois de Boulogne is a great park in the city, affording a fashionable driving place and promenade and there are other splendid parks in and about Paris, including the grounds about the palaces of St. Cloud, Chantilly, and the more distant Fontainebleau and Versailles. Even the cemeteries of Paris are renowned, especially that of Père Lachaise, crowded with mortuary chapels and sculptured memorials. Other educational institutions of Paris are the Collège de France; Musée d'Histoire Naturelle; Conservatoire des Arts et Métiers (applied sciences); Ecole Normale Supérieure; Ecole des Ponts et Chaussées (for civil engineers); Ecole des Beaux-Arts, founded in 1648, one of the most famous schools of painting, sculpture, engraving, and architecture in the world; Ecole Polytechnique; and the Conservatory of Music and Declamation. Paris was the ancient capital of a small Gallic tribe, the Parisii; was the capital of Constantius Chlorus (292-306); was made the capital of the Frankish kingdom by Clovis in 508; was ruled by counts under the Carolingians; became again the capital under the Capetians (10th century); was largely developed under Philip Augustus and St. Louis; suffered from civil strife under Charles VI.; was entered by Henry V. of England in 1420, but expelled the English in 1436; was the scene of the massacre of St. Bartholomew in 1572; and was the scene of many of the leading events in the first revolution and in those of 1830 and 1848, as well as during the Commune in 1871. International expositions were held here in 1855, 1867, 1878, 1889, and 1900.

Parkersburg, West Virginia (c. h. Wood Co.), has oil-refineries, oil-well supply works, flour and lumber mills, and an extensive trade in manufactured goods, farm products, and coal. In the vicinity are valuable clay and coal deposits, gas and petroleum wells and several medicinal springs noted for their quality. It was settled in 1773.

Parma, Italy (cap. Parma), is the seat of a bishop, and has a cathedral dating from the 11th century, which contains Correggio's "Assumption." It possesses a university founded in 1599, and among other notable buildings are the 12th century baptistery; a former ducal palace; a library; a museum of antiquities; and a picture-gallery, with famous paintings by Correggio, Giulio Romano, and Parmigiano. Parma has a seminary for priests, an agricultural college, a school of fine arts, and an academy of music. It has manufactures of silk, woollens, linen, hats, and tobacco, and large printing establishments. The town, known to the ancient Romans as Gallia Cispadana, was colonized in 183 B. C. The Roman road Via Emilia crosses it, dividing it into two equal parts. In 1346 it passed into the possession of the Visconti family, and until 1512 its fate was linked with that of the duchy of Milan.

Parsons, Kansas (Labette Co.), is a trade center in a productive agricultural region. It has extensive grain elevators, creameries, agricultural implement works, and railroad shops. A state hospital for the insane is located here.

Partick, Scotland (Lanark), has ship-building yards, brass and other foundries, cotton factories, and flour mills.

Pasadena, California (Los Angeles Co.), is a health resort and residential city, famous for its beautiful homes and gardens. Its annual floral parade attracts thousands of visitors.

Passaic, New Jersey (Passaic Co.), is a manufacturing suburb of New York. It has good water-power and the chief industrial establishments are large rubber works, silk-mills, woollen mills, chemical works, etc. It was settled in 1692, and is near the scene of several of the engagements of the Revolutionary War. Washington crossed the Passaic River here in 1776, when he was retreating through New Jersey.

Paterson, New Jersey (c. h. Passaic Co.), is the third city of the state, and one of the most important manufacturing centers in the country, with abundant water-power afforded by the Passaic River, which here makes a descent of about 70 ft. over the Passaic Falls. It is the principal silk manufacturing center of the western hemisphere, this industry alone employing 16,000 wage-earners. It also has extensive works for dyeing and finishing textiles. Steel and iron manufactures rank next in importance. There are large breweries and many smaller industries. Paterson was founded in 1791; on February 8, 1902, the heart of the business section of the town was destroyed by fire, causing a loss of over $6,000,000. Less than a month later, the greatest flood ever known in the Passaic Valley caused great loss of property, and, in October, 1903, another great flood occurred, with heavy loss. Notwithstanding these calamities, the city is prosperous and progressive.

Patiala, India (Punjab), is the capital of a native state of the same name, and has marble quarries and copper mines.

Patna, India (Bengal), has a government college and a Roman Catholic cathedral. Patna rice is famous, and other articles of export are cotton, oil-seeds, and salt. Opium is manufactured.

Patras, Greece (cap. Achaia), is a fortified seaport on the north coast of Morea. The principal buildings are the citadel, the cathedral, and the castle. Its principal exports are currants, olives, olive-oil, and lemons.

Pau, France (cap. Basses-Pyrénées), is a favorite winter resort in the foothills of the Pyrenees. It possesses golf links, laid out in 1854, which, except Blackheath, are the oldest links in the world outside Scotland. Pau was the ancient capital of French Navarre and Béarn. Its history centers round the castle, rebuilt in 1363 by Gaston Phoebus, Comte de Foix. Pau was the birth-place of General Bernadotte, who became King of Sweden.

Pavia, Italy (cap. Pavia), is the seat of a bishop, and has a cathedral dating back to 1488. The university (1,500 students), said to have been founded by Charlemagne in 774, was restored by Galeazzo Visconti, Count of Pavia, in 1361. The municipal museum, a valuable collection of paintings and engravings, is housed in the Palazzo Malaspina. Charlemagne took the town, which was known to the ancient Romans as Ticinum, in 774. Church councils were held here in 1081, 1160, and 1423. Here also was fought in 1525 the great battle which resulted in the defeat of the French and the capture of their king, Francis I., by the troops of the Emperor Charles V. The town was annexed by Austria in 1714, and was joined to the kingdom of Italy in 1859.

Pawtucket, Rhode Island (Providence Co.), is an important manufacturing city with extensive water-power furnished by the Blackstone River, which, at this place, has a fall of 50 ft. It has extensive cotton and woollen mills, silk factories, foundries, machine-shops, electrical supply works, wire-works, yarn mills, hosiery mills, knit goods factories, textile dyeing and finishing establishments, lumber products and factories, boot and shoe factories, etc. It has a state armory and a state emergency hospital. It was settled in 1654, and cotton manufacturing was first introduced into the United States at Pawtucket.

Paysandu, Uruguay, is the second port of the country, and has a large export trade in preserved meat.

Peabody, Massachusetts (Essex Co.), has extensive manufactories of leather, shoes, electrical supplies, thermometers, and glue. It contains the Peabody Institute, founded in 1852 by George Peabody.

Peekskill, New York (Westchester Co.), has knit goods factories, brick works, foundries, machine-shops, etc. A Roman Catholic home for children has over 1,000 inmates. The state military camp ground is just north of the village. It was settled by the Dutch in 1664.

Peking, cap. China (Chili), is the largest city of China and consists of an inner and outer—that is, a Manchu and a Chinese—city. The former is 14½ miles in circuit, and has 3 gates on the south and 2 on the northwest and east sides. The wall is about 45 ft. high and 47 ft. thick. Within the Manchu city lie the imperial palace and parks, the palaces of the nobles, the public offices and barracks, the examination hall, the Confucian and other large temples, and many private residences. In the Chinese city, which projects on the south of the Manchu city, and is enclosed by a wall 22 ft. high with 7 gates, are shops, theatres, restaurants, club-houses, the temples of heaven and agriculture; but large spaces are unoccupied, and other ground is under cultivation or used for desiccating manure. The summer palaces of Yuan-ming-yuan, Wan-shou-shan, and I-ho-yuan lie from 5 to 6 miles north of the city; and in the plain surrounding the city are many picturesque graveyards belonging to noble families. The tombs of the last dynasty lie about 20 miles north of the city, and those of the present dynasty from 2 to 3 days' journey east and west of Peking. Peking has, except for short intervals, been an imperial residence for more than 900 years, and was an important place long before that date. It probably owes its choice as a capital in large measure to its favorable position from a geomantic point of view. As the country around it is too poor to support its population, supplies have to be imported from the south. This need led to the construction of the Grand Canal, and of a shorter canal across the promontory of Shan-tung. Peking became one of the capitals of the Khitan Tatars at the end of the 10th century; was rebuilt by Kublai Khan; and has been sole capital since the beginning of the 15th century. It surrendered to the Anglo-French force in 1860, and was taken by the allied forces sent in 1900 for the relief of the foreign legations.

Pelotas, Brasil (Rio Grande do Sul), has a trade in jerked meat, and has flour-mills and glass factories.

Penza, Russia (cap. Pensa), has breweries and tanneries, iron and bell foundries, brick works, sawmills, and flour-mills, and manufactures soap, candles, wax, cloth, paper, and celebrated camel's-hair stuffs. It is the seat of a Greek Orthodox bishop and possesses a fine cathedral. It has a botanical garden, a school of agriculture, and several technical colleges.

Pensacola, Florida (c. h. Escambia Co.), is a port of entry on Pensacola Bay, 6 miles from the Gulf of Mexico, and an important railroad terminus. It has large domestic trade in lumber, fish, naval stores, phosphate, cotton, and coal. A United States navy yard and a state armory are located here. Pensacola was settled in 1696.

Peoria, Illinois (c. h. Peoria Co.), is the commercial and industrial center of a large extent of country. The chief manufacturing establishments are meat-packing houses, distilleries, strawboard factories, breweries, flour and lumber mills, glucose works, wagon and carriage factories, wire fence works, and agricultural implement works. Peoria ranks first among the cities of the Union in the products of distilleries; it is also noted for the quality and annual output of fine wine. It has a large trade in grain, live stock, and manufactures. A polytechnic institute and a Roman Catholic academy are located here. Near by are large bituminous coal-fields.

Périgueux, France (cap. Dordogne), contains the remarkable cathedral of St. Front, in the Byzantine style (984-1047). Périgueux was the Vesunna of the Romans, and has a large amphitheatre and the circular tower of Vesone, 89 ft. high. It trades in building-stone, figs, and truffles; has industries of chinaware, iron, and woollens; and is famous for its pâtés de foie gras and truffled partridges.

Perm, Russia (cap. Perm), is a river port, and has tanneries, brick fields, distilleries, machinery and chemical works, sawmills, copper foundries, soap, candle, rope, and pottery manufactures, and a cannon foundry. It is the seat of a Greek Orthodox bishop, and has a fine cathedral.

Pernambuco, Brasil (cap. Pernambuco), also called Recife, is a port and coaling station, with exports of cotton, sugar, carnauba wax, hides, and skins. The public buildings include the palace of the governor and bishop, and the Pernambuco Archaeological and Geographical Institute.

Perpignan, France (cap. Pyrénées-Orientales), is a fortress of great strength, commanding the passage from Spain across the east Pyrenees. Perpignan did not become French till 1642, and is still half-Spanish, half-Moorish in appearance, while its people resemble those of Catalonia. It has a 14th century cathedral, and from 1349 to the revolution had a university. Trades in red wine, brandy, cork, silk, and wool.

Perth, Scotland (cap. Perth), is, on account of the charming scenery of its surroundings, called the "Fair City." It is the chief center of the Scottish dyeing industry, and has manufactures of linen, carpets, glass and ink. It has also large cattle markets. The salmon fisheries of the Tay are very important. Perth has been prominent in Scottish history. The kings of Scotland frequently resided here. James I. was murdered here in 1436. It was taken by Bruce in 1311, by Montrose in 1644, by Cromwell in 1651, and by the Jacobites in 1715 and 1745.

Perth, cap. West Australia, Australia, has numerous fine buildings, including a town hall, Anglican and Roman Catholic cathedrals, council chambers, banks, museum, library and art gallery, mechanics' institute, and hospital. It is the seat of a Roman Catholic and of an Anglican bishop.

Perth Amboy, New Jersey (Middlesex Co.), is a port of entry with an extensive shipping trade. The chief manufacturing establishments are smelting and refining plants, ship-building yards, brick, terra-cotta, iron and steel works, chemical works, and railroad shops. In the vicinity are valuable deposits of fire-clay. The first settlement was made in 1683.

Perugia, Italy (cap. Perugia), is an ancient town, and contains many interesting mediæval buildings. It is the seat of a bishop, and has an unfinished Gothic cathedral, begun in the 15th century, which contains a library with a valuable collection of manuscripts. Other interesting buildings are the Collegio del Cambio, with the celebrated frescoes of the Chief Virtues by Perugino; and the Palazzo del Municipio, which contains a picture gallery with fine paintings by Perugino and Pinturicchio, a valuable collection of Umbrian remains, and a library with rare mediæval manuscripts. It has a university founded in 1308, which contains a valuable collection of Etruscan, Roman, and mediæval antiquities; a seminary for priests; an academy of arts; and an agricultural college. It has manufactures of silk, and a trade in wine and olive-oil. Perugia was an important Etruscan town, and was taken by the Romans in 309 B. C. It was incorporated with the Papal states in 1512, and annexed to Italy in 1860.

Pesaro, Italy (cap. Pesaro e Urbino), has manufactures of majolica ware, silk and woollen goods, sealing-wax, and cream of tartar. Figs, for which the neighborhood is famous, wine, oil, silk, soap, wax, iron, and lead are exported. It contains a ducal palace, built in 1455 by Francesco Sforza, and an academy of music. It is the seat of a bishop.

Peshawar, India (cap. Northwest Frontier Province), is an important strategic point near the Khyber Pass, on the route from India to Kabul.

Peterborough, England (Northampton), is a town grown up around a Benedictine monastery, founded in 655, destroyed by the Danes in 870, rebuilt in 970, burnt in 1116, and refounded in 1117. The greater part of the building was completed previous to 1200. The magnificent west front of 3 arches, the distinguishing feature of the cathedral, was erected between 1200 and 1238, and the eastern chapel in the 15th century. During the restoration of 1887-8 the foundations of the second Saxon church (burnt in 1116) were discovered. Two queens were buried here—Catherine of Aragon, and Mary Queen of Scots, the latter only till 1612. Portions of the cloisters and of other monastic buildings still remain, and within the precincts are the museum and Young Men's Institute. The town has trade in agricultural produce, manufactures bricks, and has large railway locomotive works.

Peterborough, Ontario, Canada, is a trade center noted for its canoes. It has manufactures of sawmill machinery, packing houses, etc.

Petersburg, Virginia (Dinwiddie Co.), is a trade center in an agricultural region of which tobacco is one of the chief products. Owing to its good water-power and the abundance of raw material near at hand, it has large manufacturing interests. The chief manufacturing establishments are tobacco factories, cotton-mills, knitting mills, silk factory, machine-shops, and lumber mills. A state hospital for the colored insane, a state normal and collegiate institute for colored students, and several other educational institutions are located here. It was founded in 1733. It was the scene of several engagements during the Revolutionary War, and twice it was occupied by the British troops under Gen. Philips. During the Civil War it was the scene of many of the engagements of the famous Virginia campaign.

Petropolis, Brasil (cap. Rio de Janeiro), is a popular watering-place, and has cotton and other factories.

Pforzheim, Germany (Baden), has manufactures of gold and silver ornaments, chemicals, paper, and machinery.

Philadelphia, Pennsylvania (c. h. Philadelphia Co.), is the third city of the United States in extent and population. Its commerce by sea and land is very large, and, as a manufacturing center, it ranks next to New York and Chicago. It has on its 2 rivers over 30 miles of frontage, docks and wharfrage. The chief manufactures are machinery, locomotives, ironware, ships, cotton and woollen goods, silk, leather, cigars, drugs, and chemicals. It is the seat of the University of Pennsylvania with about 3,000 students, which maintains in its college department, besides its usual arts course, courses in architecture, mechanical engineering, music, etc. Its medical school has about 500 students and its law school about 400 students. Girard College, founded in 1831 by Stephen Girard, for the education of poor white male orphans, is one of the richest and most notable philanthropic institutions in the United States. It now accommodates over 1,500 boys, and the value of Mr. Girard's bequest of $5,260,000 has been increased to about $35,000,000. Hahnemann College and Hospital is one of the chief homoeopathic institutions of the kind in the country. The Drexel Institute, founded by A. J. Drexel and opened in 1892, is an institution for "the extension and improvement of industrial education as a means of opening better and wider avenues of employment to young men and women." The Free Library of Philadelphia contains 280,000 volumes and has 19 branches in different parts of the city. Ridgway Library contains 120,000 volumes, including many rarities. The Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts, founded in 1805, has an extensive collection of over 500 paintings, sculptures, casts, and engravings, and maintains an important art school. The Academy of Natural Sciences, founded in 1812, contains large collections of natural history and a library of 50,000 volumes. Independence Hall is, in some respects, the most interesting building in the United States; here the Continental Congress met during the American Revolution (1775-81) and here, on July 4, 1776, the Declaration of Independence was adopted. A United States Navy Yard, with a dry dock measuring 750 ft. by 134 ft., is located on League Island. The Philadelphia Mint, established here in 1792, is the parent mint of the United States. Philadelphia was founded in 1682 by a Quaker colony under William Penn, who purchased the site from its Indian owners. The city received its charter from Penn in 1701, when it had about 4,500 inhabitants. From that time to about the 19th century, it rivaled Boston as the leading city of the country, and was the scene of the most important official acts in the Revolution. The first Continental Congress assembled here in 1774; the Declaration of Independence was signed here on July 4, 1776. The Constitution of the United States was drawn up and promulgated here in 1777. The first President of the United States resided here, and here Congress assembled until 1797. From September, 1777, to June, 1778, the city was in the possession of the British. During the 19th century, its history was one of quiet and rapid growth. In 1876 Philadelphia was the scene of the Centennial Exhibition, held in honor of the 100th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

Philippopolis, Bulgaria (Eastern Roumelia), manufactures silk, cloth, woollens, leather, and tobacco, and prepares and exports large quantities of attar of roses. It is the seat of a Greek Orthodox archbishop. In Roman times it was the capital of Thracia.

Phillipsburg, New Jersey (Warren Co.), has large railroad shops, foundries, and machine-shops, horseshoe works, stove works, silk-mills, etc. It was settled in 1749.

Phoenix, cap. Arizona (c. h. Maricopa Co.), is the trade center of the fertile Salt River Valley, and one of the most important commercial cities of Arizona. It has creameries, flour-mills, olive-oil mills, etc. The remains of several prehistoric towns have been found in the vicinity.

Piacenza, Italy (cap. Piacenza), is an important strategic and commercial center, and has manufactures of silk, cottons, hats, and pottery. It is the seat of a bishop and has a cathedral in the Lombardo-Romanesque style (dating from the 12th century), with an immense crypt, a campanile 223 ft. high, and paintings by Carracci, Guercino, and others. The church of San Sisto (1499) formerly contained the famous Sistine Madonna by Raphael. There is a public library possessing a valuable collection of manuscripts. Founded as a Roman colony at the same time as Cremona, Placentia, as it was then called, was destroyed by the Gauls in 200 B. C. The French, under Louis XII., took it, but it was recaptured by Pope Julius II.; and it remained a papal domain until 1545, when Paul III. gave it to his son, Peter Farnese. It formed part of the duchy of Parma until incorporated in 1860 with the kingdom of Italy.

Platna, Roumania (Moldavia), has a large trade in timber.

Pietermaritzburg, cap. Natal, Africa, has government buildings, a town hall, hospital, and asylum, and is the see of an Anglican bishop.

Pilsen, Austria (Bohemia), is famous for its beer, though it also produces sugar, clothing, porcelain and pottery, machinery, furniture, hardware, spirits, leather, sulphuric acid, and paper. Coal, iron, and alum are mined. The 13th century church of St. Bartholomew, the town hall (1555), and the museums are the chief public buildings.

Pine Bluff, Arkansas (c. h. Jefferson Co.), is an important trade center in an agricultural region in which cotton is one of the chief crops. It has cotton-gins, cotton compresses, cottonseed-oil mills, foundry, furniture factory, sheet iron works, railroad shops, etc. The annual state fair is held here. It is the seat of the state colored normal college and other educational institutions.

Pingyang, Korea, is an ancient city, and was the scene of battles between Japan and China in 1592 and 1894, China winning the former, Japan the latter.

Pinsk, Russia (Minsk), has potteries, tanneries, breweries, oil and soap works, and leather manufactories.

Piotrkof, Russia (Poland), is one of Poland's oldest towns, and has remains of a royal medieval castle.

Piqua, Ohio (Miami Co.), has large lined-oil works, strawboard mills, woollen mills, furniture factory, rolling-mills, iron-works, and sheet steel mills.

Piræus, Greece (Attica), is the chief port of entry of Greece, and exports olives, olive-oil, and marble. It has an arsenal, and some cotton-mills. It was founded by Themistocles and Pericles; was destroyed by Sulla in 86 B. C.; and was rebuilt in the 19th century. It was in ancient times connected with Athens by the "Long Walls."

Pirmasens, Germany (Bavaria), manufactures boots and shoes and leather goods.

Pisa, Italy (cap. Pisa), has cotton manufactures and exports olive-oil and marble. It is the seat of an archbishop and has a magnificent cathedral in the Gothic style, commenced in 1063, and completed in 1118. In front of the cathedral stands the circular marble baptistery (12th century), adorned with numerous columns and a dome nearly 200 ft. high. The Campo Santo, or cemetery, dates from the 13th century, and contains numerous interesting monuments, sarcophagi, friezes, etc. The famous leaning tower, a campanile, built entirely of marble, 178½ ft. high, was commenced in 1174 and completed in 1350. Amongst secular buildings are the university, founded in 1343; the Agostini and Toscanelli palaces; the Palazzo del Comune; the municipal museum; and the Academy of Arts. Pisa is an ancient Etruscan town, and became subject to Rome in the 2nd century B. C. Between the 11th and 14th centuries it was a powerful commercial republic, the rival of Genoa and Venice. After its great naval defeat by Genoa in 1284, Pisa began to decline until at the beginning of the 15th century it became subject to Florence.

Pistoia, Italy (Florence), is the seat of a bishop, and its 12th century cathedral is rich in works of art. Among other famous churches and secular buildings are the Madonna dell' Umiltà, San Giovanni, San Domenico, the Palazzo del Comune (1294), and the Ospedale del Ceppo (1277). Pistoia is famous for its gun-barrels and pistols, the latter of which are said to have derived their name from the town. It was here that Catiline fell in the battle of 62 B. C.; while during the middle ages the feuds between the Bianchi and Neri frequently devastated the town.

Pittsburg, Kansas (Crawford Co.), is a trade center in a productive agricultural region and has extensive railroad shops, foundries and machine-shops, packing houses, planing-mills, rolling-mills, glass factories, brick plants, etc. In the vicinity are coal-mines, and a state manual training normal school is located here. It was settled in 1876.

Pittsburg, Pennsylvania (c. h. Allegheny Co.), is the second city of Pennsylvania, and one of the chief industrial centers of the United States, situated at the junction of the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers, which here unite to form the Ohio. The sister city of Allegheny, situated on the north bank of the Allegheny and extending down to the Ohio, was incorporated with Pittsburg in 1907, and is now known as the North Side. The great basis of the prosperity of the "Iron City" has been the fact that it stands in the center of one of the richest coal districts of the globe, and of the chief supply of natural gas, the use of which as a fuel gave a great impetus to its manufacturing industries, although the gas is now mainly used for domestic purposes. The staple manufactures of Pittsburg are iron, steel, and glass. The Pittsburg district produces 65 per cent. of all the coke manufactured in the United States, and the output of bituminous coal is enormous. Pig iron, structural iron and steel, steel rails, armor-plate for battleships, electrical machinery, air-brakes, locomotives, steam-engines, and other machinery are extensively manufactured. The largest manufacturing of corks in the world is located here. It also has one of the most famous establishments for the manufacture of instruments of precision. It is engaged in the manufacture of salt, fire brick, building brick, stoves, brass ware, bronze ware, white lead, pottery, leather, paper, and lumber. It is also the center of large and important chemical industries and is heavily engaged in the production of food products, meats, preserves, and pickles. The Western University of Pennsylvania, founded in 1787, has about 1,000 students in its various departments of law, literature, engineering, medicine, dental surgery, and pharmacy. Theological seminaries of the Presbyterian, United Presbyterian, and the Reformed Presbyterian churches are located here. The Pennsylvania College for Women is an important institution, and there is a large number of denominational schools and private academies. The University of Pittsburgh has about 1,000 students. The Carnegie Institute, with an extensive gallery of art, one of the largest museums in America, and an exceptional and perfect music hall, has, in recent years, achieved a world-wide reputation as a center of artistic and scientific activity. Connected with the institute is a school for industrial training, for which Andrew Carnegie has given an endowment of $2,000,000. The Carnegie Free Library of Pittsburg, founded by the princely benefactor whose name it bears, is the greatest establishment of its kind in America, contains upwards of 300,000 volumes, and maintains branch libraries and numerous agencies for the free distribution of literature within Greater Pittsburg. Pittsburg occupies the site of the French Fort Duquesne, erected in 1754 and abandoned on the advance of Gen. Forbes in 1758. Its place was taken by the English Fort Pitt, and the laying out of the town of Pittsburg may be dated from about 1765.

Pittsfield, Massachusetts (c. h. Berkshire Co.), noted for its beautiful homes, is situated in the center of the Berkshire Hills. The chief industrial establishments are foundries and machine-shops, electrical works, paper-mills, etc. The Berkshire Athenaeum, the Crane Art Museum, and a public library with 50,000 volumes, are among the institutions of note. It was settled in 1743.

Pittston, Pennsylvania (Luzerne Co.), is in the midst of the anthracite coal region, and its chief industries are connected with the mining and shipping of coal. It has large flour and lumber mills, knitting mills, foundries, machine-shops, brick and terra-cotta works, stove and engine works, breweries, etc. It was settled in 1770.

Plainfield, New Jersey (Union Co.), is a residential suburb of New York, and has a number of manufacturing establishments, the chief of which are tool works, machine-shops, kid glove factories, silk and cotton mills, aluminum works, etc. It was settled in 1684.

Plattsburg, New York (c. h. Clinton Co.), is a port of entry on Lake Champlain and the center of a region in which there are many famous summer resorts. The chief manufacturing establishments are lumber mills, sewing-machine works, flour-mills, pulp-mills, etc. It is the seat of a state normal and training school, and has numerous other educational institutions. Adjoining the village on the south is a United States military reservation. It was settled in 1784. The first naval battle between American and British forces took place on October 11, 1776, off Valcour Island, a short distance from Plattsburg.

Ploiesti, Roumania (Wallachia), has a considerable trade in wool, and large petroleum refineries.

Plymouth, England (Devon), is a strongly fortified port, and one of the chief naval stations of the country, with large naval and military establishments. It has an extensive trade, and exports lead, tin, copper, fish, and machinery. Plymouth was the starting-point of the expedition against the Armada in 1588, and the last European point touched by the Mayflower in 1620. It was unsuccessfully besieged by the Royalists in the civil war.

Plymouth, Massachusetts (c. h. Plymouth Co.), is of abiding interest as the landing-place of the Pilgrim Fathers, and the site of the first settlement in New England. The Plymouth Rock, on which the Pilgrims landed from the Mayflower in December, 1620, is carefully preserved and is now covered by a granite canopy. Other places of interest in the town are Pilgrim Hall, where books, pictures, and other valuable relics of early times are kept, and Cole's Hill and Burial Hill, where many of the first settlers are buried. Plymouth also has the national monument to the Pilgrims, dedicated in August, 1889. Its manufactures include duck, cordage, wire nails, and electrical supplies; its fisheries are of considerable importance. On account of its beautiful situation and historic interest, Plymouth is a popular summer and tourist resort.

Plymouth, Pennsylvania (Luzerne Co.), is situated in the anthracite coal region, and its chief industries are the mining and shipping of coal. It also manufactures drills and other mining machinery. It was settled in 1768.

Point de Galle, Ceylon, was for a long time the chief port of the island, but since the transference of the shipping traffic to Colombo, trade has much declined, although coconut, plumbago, and tea are still exported.

Poitiers, France (cap. Vienne), is the seat of a bishop, and has a cathedral founded in 1161 by Eleanor of Aquitaine, queen of Henry II. of England. Other noteworthy buildings are the church of St. Hilaire le Grand, in which rest the remains of the famous bishop of Poitiers (320-68), and the church of St. Radegonde, long a place of pilgrimage. In the neighborhood Clovis defeated Alaric, king of the Visigoths, in 507, and in 1356 the Black Prince defeated the French.

Pola, Austria (Coastland), is the principal naval station of Austria, with a snug, strongly fortified natural harbor. There are many Roman and mediæval remains, and a modern cathedral. Pola was taken in 1148 by Venice, and repeatedly destroyed during the contests between the Venetians and the Genoese.

Poltava, Russia (cap. Poltava), has breweries, brick works, tanneries, flour-mills, and manufactories of cloth, flannel, soap, candles, tobacco, carts, and carriages. Poltava is the seat of a Greek Orthodox bishop, and contains a cathedral (1710) and a military school. Two monuments (besides the cathedral) commemorate the victory of July 9, 1709, when Russia, under Peter the Great, definitely worsted Sweden under Charles XII.

Ponce, Porto Rico (cap. Ponce), is the second largest city of Porto Rico, and the first in commercial importance. Coffee is its most important export. It also exports sugar, rum, molasses, and tobacco. At its port, Playa Ponce (2½ miles), are a large harbor, accommodating vessels drawing 25 ft., and the custom-house. Ponce has a cathedral, hospitals, theatres, fine residences, and gardens, and in the vicinity are many extensive plantations.

Pondichery, India (Madras), is the chief settlement of the French in India. It has no harbor, and is dependent on artesian wells for its water-supply. The chief industry is weaving and dyeing. The French first settled here in 1674; the town was taken by the Dutch in 1693, and by the British in 1761, 1778, 1793, and 1803. It was finally restored to the French in 1815.

Pontiac, Michigan (c. h. Oakland Co.), has large carriage manufactories, machine-shops, flour and lumber mills, gasoline engine works, etc. The Eastern Michigan Asylum for the Insane, with 1,200 patients, is located here. Pontiac was settled in 1818.

Pontypridd, Wales (Glamorgan), has mines of iron and coal, foundries, and chain and cable works.

Poona, India (Bombay), is the headquarters of the Bombay army, and the seat, during the rainy season, of the government of the presidency. Gold, silver, and brass ware, ivory-carving, paper-making, and the modelling of small clay figures are its chief industries. It has two arts colleges and a college of science. Poona is the center of Brahmanical influence in Western India.

Portage la Prairie, Manitoba, Canada, is a railroad and trade center in a rich agricultural section. It has numerous grain elevators, threshing machine and farm implement works, oatmeal mills, etc.

Port Arthur, China (Manchuria), is a fortified port on Kwangtung peninsula. Port Arthur was taken by the Japanese in 1894 during their war with China, and in 1898 it was leased by China to the Russians, who strongly fortified it, and made it the terminus of the Siberian Railway. Here the Japanese commenced war with Russia in February, 1904, by a torpedo attack, and early in January, 1905, the town capitulated to the Japanese after a siege of 7 months.

Port Arthur, Ontario, Canada, is a port on Thunder Bay, Lake Superior, with a large transhipment trade. Its industries include a blast furnace, boiler works, stock yards, elevators, etc.

Port au Prince, cap. Haiti, is a port at the inner extremity of Gulf of Gonaive and is the seat of the bulk of the foreign trade of Haiti. Exports coffee, cocoa, mahogany, etc. It is partially fortified, and is an archbishop's see.

Port Elizabeth, Cape Colony, Africa, is a port on Algoa Bay, and the third city of the colony. Exports wool, skins, and hides.

Port Huron, Michigan (c. h. St. Clair Co.), is a port of entry, the southern outlet of Lake Huron, and is a favorite summer resort. The chief industries are ship-building works, engine and thresher works, fiber works, etc. A tunnel under the Saint Clair River, over a mile long, connects this city with Sarnia, Ontario. It was settled in 1790.

Portland, Maine (c. h. Cumberland Co.), is the largest city of Maine, and an important seaport and railroad terminus, which is noted for its exports of grain, fruit, and live stock. Its industries include boot and shoe factories, rolling-mills, foundries, machine-shops, locomotive works, engine and boiler works, petroleum refineries, lumber mills, etc. Fishing and the shell-fish industry are extensively pursued. A United States marine hospital and a state hospital are located here. Its harbor is deep, and well protected by 6 forts. Casco Bay, an admirable yachting water, is crowded with pretty wooded islands, many of which are favorite summer resorts. The Wadsworth-Longfellow Mansion, erected by Gen. Peleg Wadsworth, the poet's grandfather, in 1785-6, is of note and, in an addition built in 1903, contains the library of the Maine Historical Society. The town was founded in 1633. It suffered severely at the hands of the French and the Indians in 1775; and was almost totally destroyed by the Indians. After the war it was rebuilt.

Portland, Oregon (c. h. Multnomah Co.), is the largest city of the state, a port of entry with an extensive coastwise and transpacific trade, and an important railroad terminus, located on the banks of the Willamette River, 120 miles from the Pacific Ocean. Its exports are chiefly wheat, flour, wool, fish, and timber. The country surrounding Portland is rich in timber and minerals, and a vast agricultural region is tributary to this rapidly growing metropolis. Its principal manufactures are lumber, flour, furniture, woollen goods, cordage, clothing, canned goods, wagons, and carriages. Excellent water-power for manufacturing purposes is obtained from the Willamette Falls, Oregon City, 12 miles distant. Among the educational institutions are the Portland University and the medical and law schools of the State University. Portland ranks among the wealthiest cities of its size in the country. It was settled in 1843 and its growth since has been rapid and uninterrupted.

Port Louis, cap. Mauritius, is a port and coaling station, and the chief commercial center of the colony. In 1810 it was taken by the British.

Porto Alegre, Brazil (cap. Rio Grande do Sul), is a port and the most important city of southern Brazil. It exports tobacco, Paraguay tea, hides, and cattle.

Port of Spain, cap. Trinidad, is a port and coaling station, and exports cocoa, sugar, and asphalt. It contains a royal college, governor's house, and botanical gardens.

Porto Novo, cap. Dahomey, Africa, has considerable trade in palm-oil, kola-nuts, etc.

Porto Praya, Cape Verde Islands, exports coffee.

Port Said, Egypt, is a port and coaling station at the Mediterranean entrance to the Suez Canal. Exports cotton and oil-seeds.

Portsmouth, England (Hampshire), is a fortified port, coaling station, and the chief naval station of England. It has the greatest arsenal, and is the most strongly fortified place in the kingdom. The church of St. Thomas Becket is notable. Portsmouth rose to importance in the 13th century, and was strongly fortified in the 16th century.

Portsmouth, New Hampshire (Rockingham Co.), is the only seaport of the state, with some coasting trade, principally in coal, but very little foreign commerce. It has cotton-mills, marble works, boot and shoe factories and some ship-building. It contains many colonial houses of historical interest, chief among which are the Wentworth house and the Langdon house. The Athenaeum contains a library of 25,000 volumes. The United States Navy Yard, which is officially known as the Portsmouth Navy Yard, is situated on an island named Piscataqua, within the limits of the township of Kittery, Maine. It has a large dry dock, and, in the days of wooden ships, many were built here. The treaty of peace between Russia and Japan was signed here on September 5, 1905. Portsmouth was first settled in 1623 and was under the jurisdiction of Massachusetts until 1679, when New Hampshire became a separate colony. It was incorporated as a town in 1653, when it received the name of Portsmouth, and became a city in 1849. It was the capital of the state for some time and is now, alternately with Concord, the seat of the sessions of the United States district court of New Hampshire.

Portsmouth, Ohio (c. h. Scioto Co.), is a commercial center of an extensive mining and manufacturing section, situated at the confluence of the Scioto and Ohio rivers, and at the southern terminus of the Ohio canal. In the vicinity are valuable deposits of fire-clay. The chief manufactures are foundry and machine-shop products, paving and building brick, cars, lumber products, stoves, rectified spirits, carriages, furniture, etc. In the vicinity are interesting remains of the Mound Builders. It was settled in 1803.

Portsmouth, Virginia (c. h. Norfolk Co.), is an important trade and railroad center opposite Norfolk, with which it is connected by ferry. It has a good harbor and considerable coastwise trade. It exports large quantities of lumber, cotton products, naval stores, pig iron, fruit, and vegetables. It has a United States navy yard, which has a plant for constructing steel ships, and there are two dry docks. It has also a United States navy hospital. It was settled in 1752.

Posen, Germany (cap. Posen), is the most important fortress on Germany's eastern frontier. Agricultural implements, machinery, liqueurs, beer, and cigars are the principal products. Posen was a flourishing member of the Hanseatic League during the middle ages.

Potosi, Bolivia, was long famous for the silver mines in the neighboring mountain (Cerro de Potosi), where silver was discovered in 1546, but the production has greatly decreased of late. The tin mines are, however, still extensively worked. The town has a university, a Bolivian mint, and a metallurgical museum.

Potsdam, Germany (Prussia), contains the palace of Sans-Souci and the castle of Babelsberg, the former built by the Great Elector in 1660. Frederick the Great greatly embellished the town and its surroundings. To the Friedenskirche is attached a mausoleum, in which lie the Emperor Frederick and his consort, the Princess Royal of Great Britain. Cottons, woollens, tobacco, and sugar are manufactured.

Pottstown, Pennsylvania (Montgomery Co.), is the trade center of a fertile agricultural region. There is a considerable amount of mineral wealth in the vicinity. It has large manufactories of iron and steel, rolling-mills, blast-furnaces, steel-mills, bridge works, boiler works, carriage works, automobile factories, etc.

Pottsville, Pennsylvania (c. h. Schuylkill Co.), is one of the most important mining centers and shipping points in the Schuylkill anthracite coal region. Has steel mills, blast-furnaces, rolling-mills, and foundries. Here anthracite coal was first successfully used in smelting iron ore. It was settled in 1800.

Poughkeepsie, New York (c. h. Dutchess Co.), is an important commercial center on the east bank of the Hudson River, which is here spanned by a cantilever bridge 1 1/2 miles long and 200 ft. above high water. Its chief industrial establishments are foundry and machine-shops, lumber mills, mowing-machine works, flour-mills, etc. Two miles north of the city is the Hudson River State Hospital for the Insane. Two miles east of the city is Vassar College, with about 1,000 students, the first and perhaps the best known of the American colleges for women, founded in 1861 by Matthew Vassar.

Prague, Austria (cap. Bohemia), is the commercial and manufacturing center of Bohemia, and has engineering and iron-works, and manufactures of chemicals, cement, earthenware, porcelain, furniture, cottons, carpets, paper, and hats, as well as breweries, distilleries, flour and lumber mills, and printing establishments.

Prague contains many historic buildings. The stone Charles's Bridge (1357-1503), adorned with statues and groups, is an object of pilgrimage to Czechs, because of the martyrdom there of John of Nepomuk (1383). The Týn church (1360-1460) played a prominent part in the religious troubles of Bohemia, and contains the tomb of the Danish astronomer Tycho Brahe (1546-1601). The Clementinum contains the archiepiscopal seminary, the university library, the astronomical observatory, and part of the university. The last named, founded in 1348, was in 1882 divided into a German and a Czech section. Other buildings of note are the cathedral (begun 1344), and the Bohemian parliament palaces. Prague contains two polytechnic schools, an academy of music, an academy of fine arts, the Bohemian National Museum, and several big monasteries. It is the seat of a Roman Catholic archbishop. Founded apparently about the 8th century, Prague was developed in the 13th and 14th centuries. It became the center of the Hussites, having been taken by them in 1418. The Thirty Years' War commenced there in 1618. It was taken by the Imperialists in 1620, the Saxons in 1631, Wallenstein in 1632, the Swedes in 1648, the French and Bavarian troops in 1741, the Imperialists again in 1743, and Frederick the Great in 1744. Near it, May 6, 1757, the Prussians under Frederick the Great defeated the Austrians under Charles of Lorraine. It was taken by the Prussians in 1866.

Prato, Italy (Florence), has a cathedral dating from the 12th century and containing a Madonna by Andrea della Robbia (1480). Another noted church is that of the Madonna delle Carceri. It has manufactures of straw, woollen and cotton goods, and near by are quarries of serpentine.

Pressburg, Hungary, is a strongly fortified town, and the trading center of a fertile wheat and wine growing district. It has manufactures of furniture, musical instruments, gloves, silks, flour, spirits, and wine. It is the seat of a Roman Catholic bishop, and has a cathedral, founded in the 11th century, where the kings of Hungary were crowned. On the capture of Buda by the Turks in 1541, Pressburg was declared the capital of Hungary, which, with a short interval, it remained until 1784.

Preston, England (Lancashire), is a port 12 miles from the mouth of Ribbles River, and a center of the cotton-spinning industry. It has, besides, ship-building, iron and brass foundries, machine and electrical engineering works, and other industrial establishments.

Pretoria, cap. Transvaal, Africa, was laid out in 1855, and named after Pretorius, first president of the South African Republic. It became the seat of government in 1863. In 1900 it was entered by Lord Roberts. The Parliament House is the principal building.

Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, Canada, is an important trade and railroad center with extensive lumber interests, flour-mills, etc.

Prince Rupert, British Columbia, Canada, is the Pacific terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific railway, with extensive harbor facilities. It has sawmills and other lumber industries.

Prisrend, Turkey (Kosovo), is famous for its manufacture of weapons; there are also steel, glass, pottery, and saddlery industries. It is the seat of a Roman Catholic and of a Greek Orthodox archbishop, and has a Greek Orthodox seminary for priests.

Prossnitz, Austria (Moravia), has manufactures of clothing, shoes, agricultural machines, and beer.

Providence, cap. Rhode Island (c. h. Providence Co.), is the largest city of the state, and a port of entry on the Providence River, a tidal arm of the Narragansett Bay, 25 miles from the Atlantic Ocean. It is the second city of New England, and one of the great industrial centers of the United States, noted for the variety of its manufactured products and the greatness of its industries. It has extensive manufactures of jewelry, silverware, cotton goods, gold and bronze ware, woollen goods, steam-engines, fine tubes and machinery, screws, locomotives, leather belting, rubber goods, boilers, stoves, as well as scores of other manufacturing plants.

Brown University, founded in 1764, with upwards of 1,000 students, a state normal school, Rhode Island School of Design, Williams College, and other educational institutions are located here. The Athenaeum contains a library of 70,000 volumes and some interesting portraits. The city was founded by Roger Williams in 1636 after his expulsion from Massachusetts.

Przemysl, Austria (Galicia), is a strongly fortified town, and trades in wood, leather, corn, and linen. It is the seat of a Roman Catholic and of a Greek Orthodox bishop, and has two cathedrals.

Pskof, Russia (cap. Pskof), has tanneries, distilleries, saw-mills, flour-mills, manufactures of tobacco, cordage, flax materials, and sail-cloth. Pskof is the seat of a Greek Orthodox archbishop, and has a cathedral (1699-98) in the Russo-Byzantine style. From 1348 to 1510, when it was finally conquered by Moscow, Pskof formed an autonomous city-state, closely similar to Novgorod.

Puebla, Mexico (cap. Puebla), is one of the oldest cities of the republic, and contains a fine cathedral, a state college, episcopal palace, and the Palafoxiana library. It has cotton and woollen mills, iron and bronze works, and potteries.

Pueblo, Colorado (c. h. Pueblo Co.), is an active commercial and industrial city and an important railway and mining center. In the vicinity are extensive coal and oil fields, also deposits of limestone and iron ore. The city is noted for its smelting and steel works, with many thousand employees. It also has large railroad car shops. There is a state mineral palace, with a complete collection of the minerals of Colorado. A temporary Mormon settlement was located here in 1846 and a trading post was established in 1850. In 1854 the Ute Indians massacred the residents of the post, and, in 1859, the present city was laid out.

Puerto Cabello, Venezuela (Carabobo), is a seaport with modern docks and an export trade in coffee, cocoa, hides, and cattle. It has handsome buildings, including the finest custom-house in Venezuela.

port with good anchorage, and has considerable trade in tobacco.

Punta Arenas, Chile (cap. Magellanes), is the southernmost town in the world, but only as far south as Dublin in Ireland is north. It has good wharves and warehouses and a growing trade in cattle, sheep, and furs. It is a Chilean naval station and a coaling station for the ships of all nations.

Quebec, cap. Quebec, Canada, is a port and coaling station on the St. Lawrence River, 400 miles from its mouth; the third city of Canada; and the most important military position in the Dominion. It is picturesquely situated, being largely built on the precipitous flanks of a bold headland, which is crowned by an ancient citadel. It is an important railroad and steamship terminal, and the largest ocean steamers can reach the city, but the port is usually closed by ice from the middle of December to April. It exports grain, cattle, and lumber, and has manufactures of iron, leather, and cotton. Quebec is the seat of a Roman Catholic cardinal archbishop and of an Anglican bishop, and has Roman Catholic and Protestant cathedrals. The fine Parliament house (1887) is also worth mentioning. Among the educational institutions are Laval University and Morrin College. The site of Quebec was visited by Cartier in 1535; the city was founded by the French under Champlain in 1608; taken by the British in 1629 and restored in 1632; unsuccessfully attacked by the British in 1690; besieged by the British under Wolfe in 1759, and taken after the battle of Quebec in Sept., 1759; ceded to Great Britain in 1763; and unsuccessfully attacked by the Americans under Montgomery in 1775. In the battle of Quebec, on the Plains of Abraham, near Quebec, Sept. 13, 1759, a victory was gained by the British under Wolfe over the French under Montcalm. It resulted in the fall of Quebec, and ultimately in the loss of Canada by the French.

Querétaro, Mexico (cap. Querétaro), was the scene of many patriotic episodes in Mexican history. The movement for independence began here, and here also the Emperor Maximilian was shot in 1867. Cotton and woollen goods are manufactured and opals are found in the vicinity.

Quetzaltenango, Guatemala, Central America, has manufactures of cotton, linen, and woollen fabrics. In the vicinity are numerous interesting antiquities.

Quincy, Illinois (c. h. Adams Co.), is a trade center in a productive agricultural region, with extensive commercial and manufacturing interests. It has large machine-shops, stove factories, wire fence and brass casting works, lumber mills, canning factories, engine and plow works, flour-mills, etc. Among the educational institutions are a Roman Catholic college, opened in 1860, a Roman Catholic institute, with nearly 1,000 students, and a Methodist Episcopal school for boys. A soldiers' and sailors' home and a home for the aged and infirm are located here. It was settled in 1822.

Quincy, Massachusetts (Norfolk Co.), is a residential suburb of Boston, with many places of historic interest and some buildings of Revolutionary days. It has extensive quarrying industries, a large ship-building plant, and numerous educational institutions. It was settled in 1625 and came into great prominence in the last quarter of the 19th century, on account of an educational movement under the leadership of Francis Wayland Parker. It was the birthplace of John Adams, John Quincy Adams, and John Hancock.

Raleigh, cap. North Carolina (c. h. Wake Co.), has, in addition to the various departments of the state government, state institutions for the insane, the blind, the deaf and dumb, also a state penitentiary. A national cemetery and a federal cemetery are located here. Among the educational institutions are a state college of agricultural and mechanical arts, with 600 students, a Baptist university, a Presbyterian institute, etc. Cotton and tobacco products are the leading articles of commerce. The largest manufacturing establishments are flour-mills, phosphate works, cotton-mills, and cottonseed-oil mills. The site of the present city was selected in 1792 by the legislature for the location of the state capital, and, in the same year, the city was founded and named in honor of Sir Walter Raleigh. In 1794 the legislature held its first session here. The city was occupied by Gen. Sherman during a part of 1865.

Rampur, India (United Provinces), is the capital of a native state of the same name, and has manufactures of damask, pottery, and jewelry.

Ramsgate, England (Kent), is a popular seaside resort with very bracing air, and has a handsome esplanade and a marine drive. Queen Victoria, before her accession to the throne, often resided here. It contains a Jewish theological college (1867), which has a valuable collection of Hebrew manuscripts.

Randers, Denmark (Jutland), has manufactures of iron, machinery, gloves, and watches. It possesses an interesting church dating from the 14th century.

Rangoon, India (cap. Lower Burma), is the chief port and coaling station of Burma, situated on a branch of the Irrawadi River, 21 miles from the sea. It exports teak, petroleum, rice, and spices. Rangoon came into British possession in 1852, and since then it has been transformed into a prosperous modern mercantile city.

Ratibor, Germany (Prussia), has railway shops and manufactures of glass, iron, and steel.

Ratisbon, Germany (Bavaria), is exceptionally rich in mediæval remains and works of art. The cathedral of St. Peter was commenced in 1275. It has manufactures of tobacco, machinery, pencils, and soap. Six miles below the town, above the Danube, stands the Walhalla, or hall of fame for distinguished Germans. The town was founded by Tiberius, and was known to the Romans as Castra Regina. It was the capital of the Eastern Franks in the 9th century. Near the cathedral is the hall in which the German Diets held their meetings from 1645 to 1806. Numerous ecclesiastical councils have been held here.

Ravenna, Italy (cap. Ravenna), has numerous churches and monasteries, notably the cathedral or Basilica Ursiana, San Giovanni in Fonte, San Francesco (with Dante's tomb, 1482), Santo Spirito, and San Vitale. There is an Academy of Fine Arts and a famous library. It is the seat of an archbishop. The principal trade is in wine, silks, musical instruments, glass, soap, and starch. It was in old times a seaport and Augustus made it the headquarters of his Adriatic fleet. Under the succeeding emperors it became one of the chief cities of Italy. It was because of its strength as a fortress (owing to the marshes) that in 404 A. D., the emperor Honorius took up his abode there. From that time until about 750 Ravenna was considered the capital of Italy.

Rawalpindi, India (Punjab), has a military cantonment and an arsenal. It was the scene of the surrender of the Sikhs after the battle of Gujarat (1849).

Rawtenstall, England (Lancashire), has cotton, woollen, slipper, and carpet-felt factories, coal-mines, and stone-quarries.

Reading, England (cap. Berkshire), has considerable trade, and manufactures of biscuits, iron, ale, etc. It contains ruins of a Benedictine abbey, founded in 1121. It was the headquarters of the Danes in their inroad on Wessex in 871, and the scene of one of their defeats; was burned by the Danes in 1006; and was taken by the Parliamentarians under Reading, Earl of Essex in 1643.

Reading, Pennsylvania (c. h. Berks Co.), is a trade and manufacturing center in an agricultural region, in which there is great mineral wealth. The chief industries are connected with iron and steel productions, but the coal-mines and limestone quarries contribute much to the industrial wealth of the city. It has large railroad shops, machine-shops, foundries, potteries, paper and wood pulp mills, carriage works, and iron and steel works. It was first settled by the Germans, but later a number of English colonies settled here and named the place after Reading, England. It was laid out in 1748.

Recklinghausen, Germany (Prussia), has manufactures of damask, tobacco, cabinet wares, etc. Coal is mined here.

Reggio, Italy (cap. Reggio di Calabria), is the seat of an archbishop, and has a fine cathedral. It manufactures perfumes, silks, and terra-cotta. Reggio, the ancient Rhegium, was founded by Calcidians about 720 B. C. It was partially destroyed by an earthquake (91 B. C.). Having become a Roman municipium (88 B. C.), it was made the headquarters of the Roman fleet and army by Octavius in the war with Sextus Pompeius. It was annexed to the kingdom of Naples early in the 16th century. Enormous damage was done by earthquakes in 1783, 1894, and 1908.

Reggio nell' Emilia, Italy (cap. Reggio nell' Emilia), is the seat of a bishop. Among the numerous churches the most picturesque is that of the Madonna della Ghiara, constructed in 1597. Reggio is the birthplace of the poet Ariosto and of the astronomer Secchi.

Regina, cap. Saskatchewan, Canada, is a railroad and trade center in the midst of a rich agricultural district. It has considerable wholesale trade in agricultural implements and merchandise. It is the seat of a collegiate institute and a normal school. A Dominion land-office is located here.

Reichenberg, Austria (Bohemia), is a center of cloth industry, and woollens, carpets, machinery, and leather are manufactured. The industrial Museum for Northern Bohemia is located here.

Remscheid, Germany (Prussia), is the center of the German cutlery trade, and does an enormous export business.

Rennes, France (cap. Ille-et-Vilaine), is an important railway center, and has manufactures of sailcloth, table linen, leather, and agricultural implements. The ancient capital of Brittany, it was almost destroyed by fire in 1720. The principal edifice is the stately law-courts (1618), the parliament house of the states of Brittany. Rennes is the seat of an archbishop. The town hall contains an exceptionally fine picture-gallery. It is the birthplace of General Boulanger (1837-91), and here, in 1899, Dreyfus was tried for the second time.

Reno, Nevada (c. h. Washoe Co.), is a railroad and trade center in an agricultural region, largely under irrigation. It has large reduction works and manufactures of machinery, brick, etc. It is the seat of the state university.

Rensselaer, New York (Rensselaer Co.), is a residential and manufacturing suburb of Albany, and has felt factories, tannery, aniline works, etc.

Resht, Persia, has a trade in raw silk and cocoons, and exports rice, fruit, tobacco, textiles, cotton dyes, and wood.

Reus, Spain (Tarragona), has silk, calico, soap, and leather manufactories, and iron-smelting works.

Reval, Russia (cap. Esthonia), is a port and coaling station on the Gulf of Finland. It has a 13th century Danish castle, now the governor's residence, and other noteworthy buildings. The chief manufactures are cotton, paper, leather, hosiery, liquors, and ices. The chief exports are cheese, flax, oats, rye, linseed, joiners' materials, skins, pigs' bristles, game, hides, leather, and spirit of wine. Reval was founded in 1219-28 as a Danish town, and from 1238 it was a Hanseatic trade center. In 1346 it was sold by Denmark to the Teutonic Knights; in 1561 it became Swedish; in 1710 it was captured by Peter the Great, and definitely became Russian in 1721.

Revere, Massachusetts (Suffolk Co.), is a residential suburb of Boston and a summer resort. It has a state bath-house built and maintained by the state. It was settled in 1627.

Rheims, France (Marne), is a strongly fortified town, and an important railway center. It lies in a sheep-feeding district; hence its large manufacture of woollens, especially merino, and mixed silk and wool fabrics. It is also the headquarters for the production of champagne. Rheims is the seat of an archbishop, is renowned for its historic associations, and, above all, for its cathedral, begun in 1212, one of the finest specimens of Gothic architecture in Europe. Other notable structures are the archbishop's palace; the Romanesque church of St. Rémy or Remigius (1160-80), which contains the saint's tomb; and the Porta Martis, one of the old Roman gates of the city. Christianity became established here in the 4th century, and under Rémy, who was its bishop (459-533), Rheims first asserted its claim to be the coronation place of the kings of France—a privilege abolished in 1830. It is the birthplace of Colbert, the famous finance minister of Louis XIV.

Rheydt, Germany (Prussia), has manufactures of silks and velvets, cotton goods, machinery, and colored paper.

Rhondda, Wales (Glamorgan), is a center of coal-mining and iron industry.

Richmond, England (Surrey), is a suburb of London, and was for centuries a favorite royal residence; here died Edward III. and Queen Elizabeth. The Old Park on the north includes Kew Gardens; on the south is the New Park. White Lodge, in the park, was long the residence of the Duke and Duchess of Teck, and here was born Prince Edward of Wales (1894).

Richmond, Indiana (c. h. Wayne Co.), is the commercial and industrial center of a productive agricultural region. The chief manufactures are agricultural implements, carriages, milling machinery, threshing-machines, clothing, flour, and dairy products. A Friends' college and a Roman Catholic academy are located here; as well as a state insane hospital. It was settled in 1816 by Friends from North Carolina.

Richmond, cap. Virginia (c. h. Henrico Co.), is the largest city of the state, and a thriving commercial and industrial center, situated at the head of navigation on the James River. The chief industries of the city are connected with the preparation of tobacco, there being over fifty establishments for this purpose. It also has large foundries and machine-shops, locomotive works, extensive fertilizer works, carriage works, lumber mills, railroad car shops, etc. It has an extensive wholesale trade with all parts of the South. The James River furnishes water-power, which is used largely for manufacturing, also for propelling the street cars and lighting the city. It was settled in 1737 on the site of the home of the famous Indian chief, Powhatan, and had still only a few hundred inhabitants when made capital of the state in 1779. In 1861, it became the seat of government for the seceding states, and the capture of Richmond became ultimately the chief objective point of the Union troops. It was defended with great stubbornness by the Confederates, who threw up strong lines of earthworks all around it. On April 2, 1865, the city was evacuated, and a large part of it was destroyed. All traces of this devastation have been removed, and the city is now in thriving condition.

Riga, Russia (cap. Livonia), is a port and coaling station on the Duna, 5 miles from the Gulf of Riga, and an important industrial center. The chief exports are flax, timber, eggs, grain, hides and skins, oil-cake, and linseed. The harbor is ice-free from April to November. Riga has machine works, breweries, distilleries, and sawmills. The cathedral (with one of the largest organs in the world) and the castle are notable. It is the seat of a Greek Orthodox archbishop and of a Roman Catholic bishop.

Rimini, Italy (Forlì), has iron-works and silk-mills, and a trade in silks and sulphur. The church of St. Francesco, now the cathedral, built in the 14th century, assumed its present form in 1450. The municipal buildings contain a famous collection of paintings. Among the noteworthy monuments is a bronze statue of Pope Paul V., and a memorial, dating from the 15th century, of the crossing of the Rubicon by Caesar. The library was founded in 1617. Among the Roman antiquities is the Porta Romana, a triumphal arch. The Palazzo Ruffo was the scene of the murder (1285) of Francesca da Rimini, immortalized by Dante. Rimini, the ancient Ariminum, was made a bishopric in 260, and the celebrated council of Arians and Athanasians was held here in 359. The Malatesta family occupied the town in the 13th century, until it was ceded to Venice (1503).

Rio de Janeiro, cap. Brazil (Rio de Janeiro), is the largest city of Brazil, its chief commercial center, and a port and coaling station. It has under construction one of the finest systems of docks in South America. The Cattete palace is the residence of the president; the Palacete Itamaraty, official residence of the minister of foreign affairs, has been the scene of many historical events; and the government printing-office is one of the finest edifices in the city. The botanical garden, cathedral, university, national museum, and the observatory on Morro do Castello should be mentioned. There are also a conservatory of music, and military and naval academies. The climate is unhealthy, yellow fever and tuberculosis being very prevalent. Coffee forms two-thirds of the total exports, though gold, manganese, and hides are also exported. In 1762 it was made the capital of the state of Brazil, to which Maranhao (northern Brazil) was attached in 1774. It was the residence of the Portuguese court 1808-21, and became the capital of the empire of Brazil in 1823. Until 1834 it was also the capital of the province of Rio de Janeiro. The revolution of 1889 occurred here, and in 1893 the city was bombarded during the naval rebellion.

Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil (Rio Grande do Sul), has a good port and a large trade in hides, tobacco, and dried meats. It contains breweries and tanneries. The city is the location of a Protestant Episcopal missionary bishopric and has a theological seminary.

Riverside, California (c. h. Riverside Co.), is a rich residential city and winter resort in the heart of the orange growing region. Sherman Institute, a famous Indian school, is located here.

Rixdorf, Germany (Prussia), is a suburb of Berlin and has manufactories of linoleum, woollen and leather goods.

Roanne, France (Loire), is at the head of navigation of the Loire, and has a large transit trade, handling the manufactures of Lyons, the iron and coal of St. Etienne, and Levant wares. It has cotton manufactures, and is an entrepôt for agricultural produce.

Roanoke, Virginia (Roanoke Co.), is the trade center of a rich agricultural and mining section. It has extensive iron manufacturing interests, rolling-mills, locomotive and car shops, iron furnaces, bridge works, etc. The Virginia College for young ladies is located here.

Rochdale, England (Lancashire), manufactures woollens, cottons, velvet and plush; there are also large iron-works. The church of St. Chad (12th century) retains portions of ancient architecture. The town hall is a handsome modern structure, and a bronze statue commemorates John Bright, long closely associated with the town.

Rochefort, France (Charente-Inferieure), is a fortified port and naval arsenal. There are ship-building, cannon foundries, and similar military industries. The naval hospital is one of the best in Europe. Rochefort's commerce consists in salt, timber, oysters, salt fish, and colonial wares. It was here that Napoleon surrendered to Captain Maitland of the Bellerophon, July, 1815.

Rochester, England (Kent), has agricultural implement and cement works. The bishopric was founded early in the 7th century. The cathedral dates chiefly from the 11th and 12th centuries. The church of St. Margaret, rebuilt 1829, dates from the 11th century. A museum is installed in Eastgate House, 16th century. Other buildings are the 17th century Guildhall and Watt's Charity House (1579).

Rochester, New York (c. h. Monroe Co.), is the third city of the state, and one of the most important commercial and industrial centers of the country. The Genesee River, which runs through the center of the city, has here, in the upper and lower falls, a descent of 176 ft. Among the chief industrial interests are the manufactures of clothing, and of boots and shoes. Rochester is the home of the camera, and practically all of the film cameras that are made in the world are manufactured here, as well as a majority of all the plate cameras; the city leads in other photographic apparatus, also in the making of optical instruments. It has extensive fruit canning works. The nursery interests in and around the city are very extensive, and several large seed houses are located here. The University of Rochester, founded in 1850, has a faculty of 23 instructors, with upwards of 300 students. The Rochester Athenæum and Mechanics' Institute gives instruction in practical arts and sciences to about 4,000 students and ranks high among the technical trade schools of the country; there are numerous other educational institutions. A state hospital for the insane is located here. The city was settled in 1812. On March 17, 1865, a great flood damaged property to the extent of over $1,000,000 and on February 26, 1904, a fire devastated a large portion of the dry goods district, causing a loss of over $3,000,000.

Rockford, Illinois (c. h. Winnebago Co.), is one of the most important industrial centers of northern Illinois. The chief manufactures are agricultural implements, furniture, silver-plated ware, watches, flour, and grape sugar. It is the seat of Rockford College for women. It was settled in 1834.

Rock Island, Illinois (c. h. Rock Island Co.), is the seat of a government arsenal and armory located on an island in the Mississippi River. It has extensive manufactories of agricultural implements, lumber mills, and a number of smaller industries. A Lutheran college and several other educational institutions are located here. It was settled in 1728.

Rome, cap. Italy (cap. Rome), is the capital of the ancient world, the center of the Roman Catholic Church, and the most famous of all cities. The city is distinguished by its vast ruins, its many historic gates, and its monuments, ancient and modern. Modern Rome is enclosed by a circle of forts, 30 miles in extent. Among the existing remains of the ancient city, the Forum, Colosseum, Forum of Trajan, Cloaca Maxima, catacombs, Pantheon, column of Aurelius, theater of Marcellus, pyramid of Cestius, arches of Constantine, Titus, and Septimius Severus, baths of Titus and Caracalla, ruins on the Palatine, basilica of Constantine, temples of Concord, Fortune, Saturn, and Neptune, palace of Caligula, mausoleum of Hadrian, and column of Trajan are notable. Rome contains about 300 churches, many of them interesting from their historical associations or from the archaeological or artistic treasures preserved in them. At present St. Peter's is the largest church in the world, occupying 18,000 sq. yds.; the extreme height is 435 ft. Under the high altar is the tomb of the apostle. North of St. Peter's is the Vatican Palace, the largest in the world, covering 13½ acres, with over a thousand halls, chapels, and rooms. Originally built by Symmachus, it has been enlarged and embellished by successive popes, especially by Nicholas V. The famous Sistine Chapel, with frescoes by Michael Angelo, dates from Sixtus IV. (1481). The state apartments and loggie were adorned by Raphael with frescoes by order of Julius II. and Leo X. A picture gallery, founded by Pius VII. with the pictures restored by France in 1815, a collection of marble and bronze statuary, and a marvellous library containing 34,000 MSS., founded by Nicholas V., make the Vatican an unrivalled shrine of art and literature. A law of 1871 recognized the Vatican, with the Lateran and the Castello Gandolfo, as being outside civic jurisdiction. Another large palace is the Quirinal, the residence of the King of Italy. Rome contains many picture galleries and museums, filled with priceless art treasures, and several libraries with valuable collections of books and manuscripts. Many of the palaces and villas of the old Roman nobility have also collections of pictures and sculptures. Chief among them are the Borghese Palace, the Colonna, Doria, Farnese, Corsini, and Barberini palaces; and the Villa Borghese, Albani, Ludovisi, Medici, etc. The history of Rome was for centuries the history of the civilized world; and even after it ceased to be the capital of the empire, it was the center of civilization, and the most interesting and influential city of Christendom. Rome was the capital of a kingdom which gradually grew till the foundation of the republic in 509 B. C. The republic steadily extended, and after wars with Equians, Volscians, Latins, Samnites, Sabines, Tarentines, etc., Rome became mistress of Italy by the middle of the 3rd century B. C. Then came the wars with Carthaginians and Macedonians, with Jugurtha and Mithridates, and Rome made herself the mistress of southern Europe, northern Africa and western Asia. First Gaul, and then southern Britain were conquered by Julius Caesar (51 B. C.). The republic was overthrown, and Augustus, the first emperor, was at peace with all the world soon after the birth of Christ. The empire was extended to Germany and Dacia, in Parthia and Asia; but in the 3rd century A. D. the northern nations—especially the Goths and kindred tribes—began to do more than hold their own, and the empire contracted on the north. The seat of the empire was removed from Rome to Byzantium, or Constantinople, by Constantine in 330 A. D., and in 364 the empire was divided into an eastern and a western empire, Rome remaining capital of the western half. Ere long Rome was taken and retaken by the barbarians (410, 476), and, retaken again (553) by Belisarius, was made dependent on Constantinople. But as capital of the popes, new glories were in store for her; Charlemagne and Otto of Germany were crowned emperors of the West at Rome, and the city became the independent capital of the increasing papal dominions, or States of the Church, the Romagna, Bologna, and Perugia being conquered by Pope Julius II. in 1503. Rome remained the mother city of Christendom, and continued to flourish in spite of the temporary sojourn of the popes at Avignon and the short-lived republic of Rienzi (1347). Again in 1798 the French proclaimed Rome a republic, and in 1808 the city became part of the French kingdom of Italy. It was restored to the popes in 1814, who, save during the troubles of 1848-9, retained it as capital of the States of the Church, under French protection; but in 1860 the papal states revolted to Sardinia, and in 1870 Rome became part of the Italian kingdom and the national capital.

Rome, New York (Oneida Co.), is a trade and manufacturing city in a section devoted to farming and dairying. Its chief industrial establishments are brass and copper mills, locomotive works, knitting mills, and canneries. A state asylum for incurable insane is located here. It was settled in 1780.

Rosario, Argentina (Santa Fe), is a port and coaling station on the Parana River 240 miles from its mouth, the second city of Argentina, and an important railway center. It exports wheat, linseed-oil, wool, hides, etc. It is the seat of a national college.

Rostock, Germany (Mecklenburg-Schwerin), manufactures machinery, ships, chocolate, chemicals, furniture, and beer. The university, founded in 1419, is attended by some 540 students.

Rostof, Russia (Yaroslavl), is an iron-manufacturing center, and makes candles, wax, tallow, linen, vinegar, soap, leather, white lead, treacle, and sweetmeats; has also tanneries, breweries, distilleries, and brick works. The church of the Assumption was founded in 1230, and has a famous belfry built about 1590; the Spaso-Yakovlevskii monastery has a renowned treasury. It is a center of pilgrimage, and the seat of a Greek Orthodox bishop.

Rotherham, England (York), has steel and iron-works, glass manufactures, and coal-mines.

Rotterdam, Netherlands (South Holland), is the chief port and coaling station of Netherlands and its second city in size. About 50 per cent. of the total imports by sea into the Netherlands, and almost as large a proportion of the sea-borne exports, pass through Rotterdam, and in addition, 80 per cent. of the Rhine traffic. Grain, timber, dyewoods, metals, hardware, petroleum, drugs and chemicals, rice, coffee, tobacco, and palm kernels are the principal exports. The chief industrial establishments are machine and engineering shops, sugar, tobacco, and metal factories, and distilleries. There is also ship-building. It is one of the chief emigration ports of the continent. The principal church (15th century) possesses a famous organ. Rotterdam has a well-known picture gallery, the Museum Boymans (1864-7), with works by Rembrandt, Cuyp, Bol, Eeckhout, Hobbema, and others. There are also a national museum, a marine museum, an academy of the fine arts, and a music school. Erasmus, the poet Tollens, the statesman Van Hogendorp, Grinling Gibbons, and James, Duke of Monmouth, were natives of the town. Rotterdam was burned in 1563, and was taken by the Spaniards in 1572. It developed rapidly in the 19th century.

Roubaix, France (Nord), is the first woollen manufacturing town of France, and possesses a famous "conditioning house" for testing wool and woolsens.

Rouen, France (cap. Seine-Inférieure), is a port on the Seine, an important railroad center, and the chief cotton manufacturing city of France. It also has dye-works and manufactures of linen, wool, silks, hosiery, chemicals, confectionery, and paper, and engineering and ship-building works. Rouen is the seat of an archbishop, and has some of the grandest churches in France. Chief of these are the cathedral dating from the 13th century onwards, which once possessed the heart of Cœur de Lion (now transferred to the museum of antiquities); St. Maclou (15th century), in the florid style; St. Ouen (14th to 15th century), one of the most delicate and graceful of all Gothic churches; and St. Gervais, one of the oldest churches in France. Other interesting structures are the law-courts (15th century); the gate-house (1517); the famous Hôtel de Bourghéroule (1506); the belfry (1389) where the curfew still rings daily at 9 P. M.; the public library (140,000 vols.); and the museum of antiquities, which contains the finest painted glass in Europe. It is the birthplace of La Salle, the first explorer of the Mississippi River.

Roulers, Belgium (West Flanders), has manufactures of linen and cotton goods, lace, and silk ribbons.

Rowley Regis, England (Stafford), has iron-works, collieries, potteries, and manufactures of anchors, chains, rivets, nails, and gun-barrels.

Rugby, England (Warwick), is the seat of a famous public school, founded in 1567, which has had many renowned principals. The town has large engineering works, and important cattle markets.

Rustchuk, Bulgaria, is a port on the Danube, and has manufactures of tobacco, cigars, pottery, and soap. It is the seat of a Greek Orthodox archbishop and of an Armenian bishop.

Rutland, Vermont (c. h. Rutland Co.), is well known for its marble quarries, and the industries connected with the shipment of marble; the quarries are now in the suburban towns, but the marble works, which have been of considerable importance since 1830, continue here as formerly. Iron ore, fire-clay, and slate are found in the vicinity. The city also has extensive manufactures of machinery for quarrying and channeling marble, engine and boiler works, a scale factory, lumber mills, brick-yards, etc. It was settled in 1770.

rebuilt 1770) is one of the most striking in Russia. There are breweries, distilleries, and manufactories of candles, malt, cotton stuffs, and machinery.

Sacramento, cap. California (c. h. Sacramento Co.), is a port of entry and an important commercial, railway, and industrial center. Its industries include flour-mills, lumber-mills, railroad car shops, and manufactories for saddlery, harness, furniture, etc. The State Capitol building, completed in 1889, cost $2,500,000, and houses the state library of over 150,000 volumes. The Crocker Art Gallery contains pictures and California minerals, and has a school of art. In Fort Sutter Park is a reproduction of the fort established here in 1840, the first white settlement having been in 1839 by Capt. John A. Sutter. On November 3, 1852, a conflagration destroyed property exceeding $5,000,000 in value.

Saga, Japan (cap. Saga), is a port and commercial center, with trade in coal, tobacco, etc.

Sagar, India (Central Provinces), exports salt, sugar, and cloth. It has a fort and an arsenal.

Saginaw, Michigan (c. h. Saginaw Co.), is an important manufacturing, jobbing, and railroad center on the Saginaw River, 16 miles from Saginaw Bay. It manufactures a great variety of lumber products, furniture, pianos, iron and steel products, glass, salt, beet sugar, flour, etc. Bituminous coal is found in the vicinity. The Michigan Employment Institution for the Blind, a manual training school, and a German Lutheran theological seminary are located here. It was settled in 1815.

Saharanpur, India (United Provinces), is a trade center. It has an old Rohilla fort, a handsome mosque, and botanical gardens.

Saigon, cap. French Indo-China, is a port and coaling station on the Donoi River, 42 miles from the sea. It has a government palace, law-courts, cathedral, hospitals, botanical and zoological gardens, rice-mills, saw-mills, varnish, and soap factories.

Saint Catharines, Ontario, Canada, is a railroad and trade center in an agricultural and fruit growing section, with paper mills, flour mills, canneries, etc. It is the seat of Bishop Ridley College.

Saint Denis, France (Seine), is a suburb of Paris, and has a trade in corn, wine, wood, wool, and manufactures of machinery, rolling-stock, small steamers, chemicals, and soap. The abbey church of St. Denis, the patron saint of France, has been the burying-place of most of its kings since the time of Dagobert (638). Dagobert's church was rebuilt (1137-44) by Abbot Suger, and the building endured the caprices of many restorers down to the time of Napoleon III. Amongst the finest of the memorials are the tomb of Louis XII. (1498-1515); the cenotaph of Francis I. (1515-47); the tomb of Henry II. (1547-59); the monument to Francis II., and, in the 11th century crypt, the coffins of the last Bourbon sovereigns. In 1793 the contents of fifty-one tombs were flung into a heap and buried in a trench.

Saint Denis, cap. Reunion Island, is a port, with an exposed roadstead, and is the residence of the French governor of the island. It has a cathedral, and a botanical garden.

Saint Etienne, France (cap. Loire), is built on a coal-field and on an iron field, and can draw supplies of raw silk from the Rhone valley. The total annual value of ribbons made here and in the vicinity is about $20,000,000. The National Arms Factory turns out most of the small arms for the French army; and the general iron and steel manufactures include iron-mongery of all kinds, iron and steel plates, machinery castings, gun armor, and iron masts. Glass bottles are made.

Saint Gallen, Switzerland (cap. St. Gallen), is the center of the muslin, embroidery, and cotton trade. It grew up round the abbey founded in the 7th century by the Irish monk Gallus, and later became one of the principal literary centers of Europe. It was secularized in 1798, but still has a cathedral; the MSS. in its library are considered to form one of the most precious collections in Europe.

Saint Gilles, Belgium (Brabant), is a suburb of Brussels. Its industries include chemicals, perfumery, lace, flax-spinning, marble-dressing, and market-gardening.

Saint Helens, England (Lancashire), has manufactures of glass and chemicals, and coal and fire-clay are worked.

Saint Henri, Quebec, Canada, is a suburb of Montreal.

Saint Hyacinthe, Quebec, Canada, is a trade center in a prosperous agricultural region. Its industries include boots and shoes, spinning wheels, organs, threshing machines, etc. It is the seat of a Dominican college and convent.

Saint John, New Brunswick, Canada, is a port and coaling station on the Bay of Fundy, and the commercial metropolis of the province. It exports lumber, grain, and meat. It has large sawmills, extensive fisheries, and manufactories of iron castings, engines, machinery, tools, cotton goods, woollen goods, boots and shoes, pulp, etc. It was settled chiefly by American loyalists at the close of the Revolution; was chartered as a city in 1785, and was partly destroyed by fire in 1877.

Saint Johns, cap. Newfoundland, is a port and coaling station. Its harbor is one of the best on the Atlantic coast, and was formerly strongly fortified, but the fortifications have been allowed to fall into ruins. It has two cathedrals, the Roman Catholic being spared by the fire of 1892, which consumed more than half the city. The trade consists chiefly of supplies for the fisheries, and during the spring season the harbor is thronged with vessels. Settlement was made here by Sir Humphrey Gilbert in 1582.

Saint Joseph, Missouri (c. h. Buchanan Co.), is the third city of Missouri, and an important railroad, commercial, and industrial center on the Missouri River. It has many large wholesale establishments engaged in all branches of trade, while its stock-yards, slaughtering and packing industries are very extensive. It is also a great horse and mule market. It is located in one of the finest and wealthiest agricultural sections of the United States. A trading post was established here in 1826, which grew into a town, incorporated in 1845, and then into a city, incorporated in 1851. Its growth has been steady and, in recent years, very rapid.

Saint Louis, Missouri (c. h. Saint Louis City Co.), is the largest city of Missouri, and the principal commercial and banking center of the southwest. It is located on the west bank of the Mississippi River, 20 miles below the mouth of the Missouri River, and is a port of entry, and one of the most important railroad centers of the country, with a large river trade. Its position in the center of the great Mississippi Valley gives it an immense trade, among the staples of which are breadstuffs, packed meats, tobacco, live stock, timber, grain, wool, furs, etc. In manufactures, Saint Louis ranks fourth among the American cities, and high among the cities of the world in tobacco-making. It produces immense quantities of beer, flour, boots and shoes, hardware, stoves, railway cars, woodenwares, chemicals, drugs, etc. It has a horse and mule market which is one of the largest in the world. Washington University, noted for the breadth of its charter, includes an ordinary undergraduate department, schools of engineering, fine arts, law, medicine, dentistry, and botany, a manual training school, and schools for boys and girls. It is attended by about 2,000 university students and by about 1,000 others. Its group of buildings in the Tudor-Gothic style, is built of red Missouri granite. The School and Museum of Fine Arts is housed in the building originally erected as the Fine Arts Building of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition and contains a large collection of casts, sculptures, paintings, etc. A Roman Catholic university, founded in 1829, a College of Christian Brothers, and a state normal school are among the other educational institutions. The public library has over 200,000 volumes. The Missouri Botanical Garden contains 75 acres and is excellently equipped. The parks of Saint Louis have an area of over 2,300 acres, the largest of which is the Forest Park containing 1,370 acres. Jefferson Barracks, a United States military post, is 12 miles south of the city. Saint Louis was founded by the French in 1764 and still bears traces of its French origin in the names of some of its streets and leading families. In 1770, the Spanish authority was established here; in 1803, when the population of the city was still below 1,000, with the rest of the territory then known as Louisiana, it became a portion of the United States. It was incorporated as a city in 1822. On May 27th, 1895, Saint Louis was visited by a terrific tornado, which destroyed 300 lives and property to the value of $10,000,000. The floods of 1903 raised the river 38 ft. and did great damage in its suburb, East Saint Louis. In 1904, Saint Louis was the scene of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, held to commemorate the centenary of the purchase of Louisiana from France.

Saint Louis, cap. Senegal, Africa, is a seaport, and the terminus of caravan routes from the Sahara. It is one of the finest towns in West Africa, and has a cathedral, a governor's palace, and a normal training college.

Saint Nazaire, France (Loire-Inférieure), is a port on the Loire estuary. The chief exports include brandy, poultry, eggs, vegetables, butter, sardines, glass, and dyes. The main industry is iron ship-building.

Saint Nicolas, Belgium (East Flanders), has manufactures of textiles and other industries.

Saint Ouen, France (Seine), is a residential suburb of Paris.

Saint Paul, cap. Minnesota (c. h. Ramsey Co.), is situated at the head of navigation on the Mississippi River and ranks with its twin city of Minneapolis as the leading commercial, banking, and industrial center of the Northwest. It is a great railway center, and has a large wholesale trade by rail and river. The State Capitol, erected in 1898-1906, at a cost of $4,500,000, is a large and handsome edifice of granite and Georgia marble, and one of the most impressive and successful state capitol buildings in the United States. It has mural paintings by prominent American artists, and contains a state law library of 25,000 volumes and a state historical library of over 75,000 volumes. The Agricultural School of the University of Minnesota is located here. Another notable public building is the Auditorium, with a hall for meetings, conventions, etc., having a seating capacity of 10,000. The wholesale traffic of the city has grown to remarkable dimensions, extending over the entire western portion of the continent. It has a large trade in tea, furs, provisions, and general merchandise. It has extensive manufactures of furniture, stoves, lumber products, etc. Fort Snelling, a United States military post, lies on the west bank of the Mississippi, 6 miles southwest of the city. The first white settler, a Canadian voyager, built a house here in 1838, and in 1841 the place received its name from a chapel dedicated to Saint Paul by a French priest. In 1854, when it received a city charter, it contained 3,000 inhabitants, and since then its growth has been very rapid.

Saint Petersburg, cap. Russia (cap. Saint Petersburg), is a port and coaling station at the head of the Gulf of Finland. The Winter Palace, the center of court life in the capital, is an immense quadrilateral, built in 1732-62 (after the plans of Rastrelli), burnt in 1837, and rebuilt in 1837-8. It contains many magnificent state rooms. The other imperial and princely palaces include the Old and New Mikhailovskii residences, built in 1797-1801 and in 1819-25 by Paul I. and Alexander I. respectively; the Taurida palace, built by Catherine II. for Potemkin; the Anitchkov palace, a favorite residence of Alexander III.; the Marble or Orlov palace, another of the creations of Catherine II.; and the palaces of the Grand Dukes Vladimir and Michael. Several of these contain valuable art collections, though many of their treasures have been concentrated at the Winter Palace and the Hermitage. The last named (founded in 1765, rebuilt and greatly enlarged in 1840-52) is the Louvre of Saint Petersburg; it contains some of the finest artistic and archaeological collections in the world, including Greek antiquities from the Black Sea coasts. Nowhere else is there such a wealth of Rembrandt's masterpieces; only in Madrid is there a greater treasure of the best works of Velasquez and Murillo; and no continental gallery has so good a collection of English art. The imperial, or National Library, ranks after those of Paris and London; it possesses 1,500,000 printed volumes and 27,100 manuscripts. Among other libraries and collections are those of the Academy of Sciences (the chief learned society of the empire); of the Asiatic Museum; of the Academy of Fine Arts; of the National Museum of Alexander III., especially representative of Russian painting; of the university (which was founded in 1819, and has 2,000 students), of the School of Mines, of the Museum of Artillery, of the Semenof Gallery in Vasilii Ostrof, of the Imperial Geographical Society, and of the Historical, Archaeological, and Economical Societies. Besides the university, Saint Petersburg possesses a school of mines, with a mineralogical collection unsurpassed in Europe; a technological institute, a school of civil engineering, a forestry school, the military academy of the general staff, academies of artillery, military law, medicine, and engineering, of Greek Orthodox and Roman Catholic theology, of fine arts, and of music, as well as a naval academy. The great departmental state buildings include the Admiralty, founded in 1704 by Peter the Great, and containing the archives and official rooms of the ministry of marine and the naval museum; the general staff buildings containing the military archives of Russia, and the official quarters of the ministries of war, finance, and foreign affairs; the buildings of the governing Senate and the Holy Synod. Saint Petersburg also possesses thirteen cathedral churches, of which those of St. Isaac the Dalmatian, of the Kazan Mother of God, of St. Alexander Nevskii, of St. Peter and St. Paul, of the Resurrection, and of the Emperor Alexander II. are the most noteworthy. The greater industrial establishments of Saint Petersburg consist chiefly of metal works, iron-foundries, sugar-refineries, distilleries, breweries, ship- and boat-building yards, printing works, and manufactories of tobacco, crystal and glass, silk, cotton and cloth stuffs, leather, cordage, carts and carriages, gold embroidery, pottery and porcelain, and machinery. The chief exports are grain, linseed, oil-cake, flax, petroleum, wool, beer, eggs, and timber. Founded in 1703 by Peter the Great, the city was in 1712 formally created the imperial capital.

Saint Quentin, France (Aisne), has manufactures of cotton, woollens, silk, sugar, and machinery. Of great architectural interest are the City Hall (1331-1509), and a church (12th to 15th century), in the purest Gothic style. Near Saint Quentin were fought two great battles—the first in 1557, when the French were utterly defeated by a Spanish army; the second in 1871, when the Germans destroyed a French army which was attempting to relieve Paris.

Sakai, Japan (Osaka), is a port on Osaka Bay, and has manufactures of cotton goods, cutlery, bricks, and sake.

Salem, India (Madras), has industries of weaving, carpet manufactures and cutlery.

Salem, Massachusetts (c. h. Essex Co.), is known as the mother city of Massachusetts. It has a good harbor and considerable manufacturing interests, also a large cotton-mill, tanneries, a lead factory, chemical works, cordage works, and shoe factories. Essex Institute, containing an interesting collection of historical paintings, portraits, and relics; a library of nearly 400,000 volumes, and the Peabody Academy of Sciences, containing the East India Marine Museum, with important Japanese and other ethnological, maritime and natural history collections, are of note. Naumkeag, on the site of Salem, was first visited by Roger Conant, one of the Cape Ann immigrants, in 1626, and a permanent settlement was made here by Gov. Endicott two years later. Gov. Winthrop landed here in 1630, and for a time Salem was the capital of Massachusetts. In 1692 Salem was the scene of the extraordinary witchcraft delusion. The legislature of Massachusetts met at Salem in 1774, the last time under the English Crown, and issued a call for a Continental Congress. Privateersmen from Salem were very active during the war. After the war, Salem engaged in the East India trade, and many of its citizens attained great wealth and influence. Indeed, it is said that about 1810 a Salem merchant was the largest ship-owner in the world. Among the famous natives of Salem are Nathaniel Hawthorne, who was Surveyor of the Port here from 1846 to 1850; W. H. Prescott, the historian; Maria S. Cummins, author of "The Lamplighter"; Pierce, the mathematician; and W. W. Story, the sculptor.

Salem, cap. Oregon (c. h. Marion Co.), is the center of the most important hop-growing region in the world. It has flour-mills, woollen mills, etc. The capitol is an imposing building, and state institutions for deaf and dumb, blind, and insane, and a penitentiary are located here. It is the seat of a Methodist Episcopal university.

Salerno, Italy (cap. Salerno), is the seat of an archbishop, and has a cathedral dating from the 11th century. It was famous in the middle ages for its medical school.

Salford, England (Lancashire), is a suburb of Manchester, with extensive manufacturing interests.

Salisbury, England (Wiltshire), has a famous cathedral, founded in 1220, which is a beautiful example of early English architecture. The cloisters, built in the 13th century, are the most perfect in England, and form a quadrangle 181 ft. square. The spire, 404 ft., was added in the 14th century, and is the loftiest in England. Within the close are the chapter-house, the library, the episcopal palace, and the deanery. Salisbury contains three other ancient churches, and several mediæval buildings.

Saloniki, Turkey (cap. Saloniki), is a port and coal-station at the head of the Gulf of Saloniki, and the second city in size and commercial importance of Turkey in Europe. Of particular interest are the antiquities, notably its ancient churches and a Roman triumphal arch. The city is overlooked by an ancient citadel. Its industries include cotton-mills, soap-works, and silk manufactures. It exports chiefly corn, tobacco, opium, cotton, cocoons, wool, and hides. Founded 315 B. C., it became the capital of Macedonia. Under the name of Thessalonica it was visited by St. Paul. In 904 the Saracens sold 22,000 of the inhabitants as slaves. It was wrested from Venice by the Turks in 1430.

Saltillo, Mexico (cap. Coahuila), contains a cathedral, has cotton-mills, and is noted for its woollen shawls.

Salt Lake City, cap. Utah (c. h. Salt Lake Co.), is the metropolis of the state, an important railroad and mining center, and the center of trade for the vast "intermountain" region. Great smelters for the reduction of ores are located in and near the city, and it has large beet-sugar factories and manufactures of iron products, machinery, etc. Fort Douglas, a United States military post, is situated on a plateau 500 ft. above and about 3 miles from the heart of the city. It is the headquarters of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormons), and the home of the president and many of the high officers of the church. The Temple, Tabernacle, and Assembly Hall occupy a square in the central portion of the city. The Tabernacle, built in 1864-7, is a huge and extraordinary structure, in the shape of an oval or ellipse, 250 ft. long, 150 ft. wide, and 70 ft. high. It is surmounted by a wooden roof with iron shingles, resembling the shell of a turtle or the inverted hull of a ship, supported by 44 sandstone pillars. The Temple is a large and handsome building of granite, erected in 1853-93 at a cost of over $4,000,000. It is 186 ft. long from east to west and 99 ft. wide. At each end are 3 pointed towers, the loftiest of which, in the center of the eastern or principal facade, is 210 ft. high and is surmounted by a colossal gilded figure of the Angel Moroni. The Assembly Hall, to the south of the Tabernacle, is a granite building with accommodation for 3,000 people, intended for divine service. Salt Lake City was founded in 1847 by the Mormons, under Brigham Young, who had been driven from Nauvoo the previous year and had made a long and perilous journey across the Indian-haunted plains. The district was then a barren and unpromising desert, but the industrious Mormons set to work at once to plough and plant, and began that system of irrigation, which has drawn out the latent capabilities of the soil and made the Utah valleys among the most productive regions in the country.

Salzburg, Austria (cap. Salzburg), is a town noted for its picturesque situation, and one of the principal touring resorts of Austria. It is also an important railway center. It is the birthplace of Mozart, and of Hans Makart, the painter.

Samara, Russia (cap. Samara), is a port on the Volga, and an important railway center with large trade in grain. Its industries include tanneries, flour-mills, breweries, brick-works, iron and bell metal foundries. It is the seat of an Orthodox bishop, and has two old cathedrals, built in 1685 and 1730-5, and one completed in 1894; also a museum of natural history and archaeology.

Samarang, Java, is a fortified town, and one of the most important commercial centers of the island. Has no port, but vessels a mile out at sea take away sugar, coffee, tobacco, and indigo.

Samarkand, Russia (Russian Turkestan), has an active commerce and manufactures of cotton, silk, etc. Among the objects of interest are the grave of Timur, the citadel, three colleges, and neighboring ruins. The ancient city was destroyed by Alexander the Great. In the middle ages Samarkand was a large and flourishing city, renowned as a seat of learning. It was taken and destroyed by Jenghiz Khan in 1219; became the capital of Timur in 1369; and was annexed to Russia in 1868.

San Angelo, Texas (c. h. Tom Green Co.), is an important trade center in an agricultural region, largely devoted to dry farming.

San Antonio, Texas (c. h. Bexar Co.), is one of the largest cities of Texas, and an important railroad and trade center. It has large flouring-mills, cotton-presses, cement works, oil-mills, broom works, etc., and is a prominent cotton, wool, horse, mule, and cattle market, as well as the financial center of a very extensive stock-raising section. It is surrounded by an agricultural region supplied with water from artesian wells. In and near the city are numerous medicinal springs. Fort Sam Houston, an important military post and headquarters of the department of Texas, is located here. There is also a United States arsenal for storage of ordnance supplies and the manufacturing and repairing of equipment. It is frequented as a winter resort, and is noted for its old Spanish mansions near the city, having been settled by the Spaniards about 1690. The Church of the Mission del Alamo, which seems to have derived its name from having been built in a grove of alamo or cottonwood trees, is a low and strong structure of adobe, with very thick walls, built in 1744, and preserved as a national monument. The most salient event in San Antonio's history is the "Fall of the Alamo" in 1836. Texas had determined to resist certain obnoxious laws imposed by Mexico, and the latter sent an army under Santa Ana to reduce the rebels. The advance-guard of 4,000 men reached San Antonio on Feb. 22nd, and found the fortified Church of the Alamo garrisoned by a body of 145 Americans (afterwards joined by 25 or 30 more), under Travis, Bowie, and Davy Crockett, who refused to surrender. After a siege of 12 days, the church was finally carried by assault (March 6th) and all the survivors of the gallant little band of defenders were put to the sword.

San Diego, California (c. h. San Diego Co.), is a port of entry and an important health resort and trading center on San Diego Bay, with one of the best harbors on the California coast. It is noted for its climate, which is mild and equable. It is the commercial center of a region in which are produced large quantities of nuts, fruit, and honey, and has flour and planing-mills, machine-shops, wagon works, etc. It is a naval coaling station, and has a United States garrison. Coronado Beach, on a small peninsula opposite the city, is a favorite resort. The Mission of San Diego, 6½ miles from the city, was the first settlement made by white men in California. The bay was discovered in 1542.

Sandusky, Ohio (c. h. Erie Co.), is a port of entry on Sandusky Bay, and has one of the best landlocked harbors on Lake Erie. It is a trade and manufacturing center in a fertile agricultural region, of which the chief productions are grapes, peaches, apples, and grain. Fishing is an important industry of the city, and a large amount of wine is shipped. The chief industrial establishments are factories, in which are made baskets and crates for the shipment of grapes and peaches; cooperages, in which are made casks for the shipment of wine; machine-shops; engine, boiler, threshing-machine, and cement works; flour-mills; and furniture factories. There are large coal and lumber yards. Considerable coal is brought here for manufacture and reshipment, and the ship-building industry is also important. The United States hatchery at Put-in-Bay encourages the fish industry. A state sailors' and soldiers' home, with accommodations for 1,600 persons, is located here.

San Francisco, California (c. h. San Francisco Co.), is the largest city in California, also the largest on the western coast of America or in the United States west of the Mississippi River. It is a port of entry situated on a peninsula between the Bay of San Francisco and the Pacific Ocean, with a sheltered harbor about 90 miles long and from 5 to 15 miles wide, having excellent anchorage ground and an abundance of deep water. It is extensively engaged in the manufacture of mining machinery, the canning of fruits and vegetables, ship-building, etc., and the principal industrial establishments are sugar and molasses refineries, slaughtering and meat-packing houses, leather manufactories, foundries, machine-shops, smelting works, etc. It is an important railroad terminus and has a large wholesale trade in merchandise of every description. Its foreign commerce is very extensive, and among the chief exports are gold and silver, wine, fruit, wool, oil, lumber, flour, and breadstuffs. The principal imports are tea from China and Japan. A United States branch mint, ranking second in the country, is located here. A large part of the city was destroyed by earthquake and fire in 1906, but the business district has been rebuilt in an improved manner, and is now noted for its modern commercial buildings, magnificent hotels, etc. One of the most interesting historical relics of San Francisco is the old Mission Dolores, dating from about 1778; the old church is built of adobe and is adjoined by a tangled and neglected little churchyard. Among the educational institutions of the city may be mentioned the Cooper Medical College, the Medical Department of the University of California, the Cogswell Polytechnic School, and the California School of Mechanical Arts. The Presidia, or government military reservation, has an area of 1,500 acres and stretches along the Golden Gate for about 4 miles. Golden Gate Park, having an area of 1,013 acres, contains a museum, Japanese teagarden, etc. The city was founded in 1835. In 1848, the year of the discovery of gold in California, its population was about 500; in 1850 it was about 25,000, and, in each decade, it has seen an extraordinary increase.

San José, California (c. h. Santa Clara Co.), is situated in a fertile agricultural region, the beautiful Santa Clara Valley, famed for the variety and amount of its fruit. It has large canneries, packing-houses, and shipping industries connected with the fruit industry, also flour-mills, lumber mills, grain elevators, woollen factories, basket and box factories, machine-shops, etc. It has a considerable wholesale trade. Among the educational institutions are a state normal school, a Methodist Episcopal university, a Roman Catholic college, etc. On account of its equable climate, it is much frequented by tourists, and is a delightful residential city. The first settlement was made here about 1770 and the pueblo of San José was established in 1782. It was the state capital under the first constitution of California.

San José, cap. Costa Rica, is a well-built city, which contains a cathedral, a university, a national museum, and one of the finest opera-houses in Central America. The city was founded about 1738, and has been the capital, except for short intervals, since 1824.

San Juan, Porto Rico (cap. San Juan), is a fortified port and the largest city of Porto Rico. The harbor is excellent, affording anchorage for the largest ships,—the only good harbor in Porto Rico and one of the best in the West Indies. The entrance, however, is very narrow, and difficult in stormy weather. The chief exports are tobacco, sugar, and coffee. It contains a number of notable public buildings, including the bishop's palace, a large cathedral, the old government building, the city hall, the Casa Blanca, the custom-house, a military hospital, and an arsenal. A new capitol is being built. San Juan was founded in 1511 and was the seat of the Spanish provincial government. It was bombarded by the U. S. fleet under Admiral Sampson in May, 1898.

San Juan del Norte, Nicaragua, Central America, is the chief port of Nicaragua on the Caribbean Sea. Exports mahogany, rubber, bananas, hides, and indigo. Steamers run from here up the San Juan River into Lake Nicaragua.

San Luis Potosí, Mexico (cap. San Luis Potosí), is an important railroad center, with a large trade in cattle, hides, and wool. The famous silver mines worked in the neighborhood since the end of the 16th century are now almost abandoned. It has handsome public buildings including a cathedral, a university, and a city hall.

San Miguel, Salvador, Central America, is the center of a fertile agricultural region, and has a trade in indigo.

San Salvador, cap. Salvador, Central America, has more than once been destroyed by earthquakes. It contains a university, a cathedral, a national museum and library, and an observatory. It has an active trade in agricultural products, particularly indigo.

San Sebastian, Spain (cap. Guipuscoa), is the most fashionable seaside resort of Spain and one of the most picturesque places in Europe, with a magnificent beach and splendid parks. It is the seat of a Roman Catholic bishop. It has flour- and saw-mills, iron foundries, and manufactures of cloth and hats, and exports lead, copper, iron, and cement.

Santa Ana, Salvador, Central America, is the center of a sugar-growing district, which has also rich deposits of iron, copper, silver, and zinc.

Santa Barbara, California (c. h. Santa Barbara Co.), is one of the most attractive winter resorts of California, noted for the beauty of its surroundings, the luxuriance of its roses and other flowers, and its excellent bathing beach. The old mission, founded by Padre Junipero Serra in 1786, is one of its attractions.

Santa Cruz, Canary Island (cap. Tenerife), is a port and coaling station. Exports wine, almonds, cochineal, sugar, and agricultural products.

Santa Fé, Argentina (cap. Santa Fé), is a port on the Paraná River and an important railway center, with large exports of cattle, wool, and lumber. It has a cathedral, a normal school, and a seminary for priests.

Santander, Spain (cap. Santander), is a port on the Bay of Biscay with a large foreign trade, chiefly in iron ore. Fishing is carried on and tobacco is manufactured. It is the seat of an archbishop.

Santiago, cap. Chile (cap. Santiago), contains a Congress house which is one of the handsomest buildings of the kind in South America; the government house, used as a mint under Spanish rule, is an imposing edifice. Other important buildings are the cathedral, university, archiepiscopal palace, the municipal offices, the national museum, and observatory. The city was damaged by earthquake on Aug. 16, 1906, but has been largely rebuilt.

Santiago, Spain (Coruna), is the seat of an archbishop, and is famous for its superb Romanesque cathedral, the shrine of St. James (Sant' Iago) the Great, patron saint of Spain. It was formerly a great place of pilgrimage. A decaying university still exists.

Santiago de Cuba, Cuba (cap. Oriente), is a port and coaling station, with a magnificent landlocked harbor, and is the second city of the island in size and importance. It is situated in the center of a rich mineral district, and exports iron ore, manganese, and copper, as well as sugar, tobacco, and coffee. In the Spanish-American War of 1898, the Spanish fleet under Cervera was blockaded inside the harbor by an American fleet under Sampson, and when the Spanish fleet attempted to escape, it was destroyed outside the harbor entrance, July 3, 1898.

Santo Domingo, cap. Santo Domingo, West Indies, is a port, and perhaps the most perfect specimen of the 16th century Spanish city in America. In the old cathedral are buried many of the notable characters of early American history, including the family of Columbus. Another landmark is the castle of Columbus. It is the seat of a Roman Catholic archbishop, and of a university, founded in 1780. It exports sugar and coffee.

Santos, Brasil (São Paulo), is a port and coaling station, whose chief export is coffee. It claims to be the greatest coffee shipping port in the world. The church of Our Lady of Montserrat, on a hill overlooking the town, is one of the oldest shrines in Brasil.

São Paulo, Brasil (cap. São Paulo), is the second city of Brasil, the center of its coffee-growing region, and an important railroad and industrial point. It is a modern, handsome city, and among its fine buildings are the cathedral, the treasury, the government building, and the Ypiranga Palace, a magnificent structure erected to commemorate the Declaration of Independence. It is the seat of a Roman Catholic bishop. São Paulo was founded by Jesuits in 1554 as a mission station.

Sapporo, Japan (Hokkaido), is the seat of an agricultural college, and has a museum and a botanical garden.

Saragossa, Spain (cap. Saragossa), has manufactures of silk and woollen goods. Among its noteworthy features are the cathedral, university (1474), leaning clock tower (Torre Nueva), and the seven-arched bridge (1437) over the Ebro. After being captured from the Moors, Saragossa became the capital of Aragon in 1118. The French attacked it in 1808 and 1809; Agustina, the "Maid of Saragossa," aided in the defense.

Sarajevo, Austria (Bosnia), has manufactures of tobacco, brass, copper, iron goods, pottery, and silk. It is the seat of a Roman Catholic bishop and has a cathedral.

Saratof, Russia (cap. Saratof), is a trading center for east Russia, and has flour-mills, oil-presses, tobacco factories, distilleries, and iron-works. A society of naturalists maintains a biological station.

Saratoga Springs, New York (Saratoga Co.), is a noted watering-place famous for its saline mineral springs. The waters are cathartic, tonic, alterative, and diuretic. On account of its spacious hotels, which can accommodate about 20,000 visitors, and convention halls, one of the latter seating 5,000, it is a favorite place for political conventions. The first hotel was erected here in 1774, and thousands visit this village to use the waters, making it one of the most popular summer resorts.

Sarnia, Ontario, Canada, is a port at the mouth of St. Clair River. It has lumber mills, engine works, salt works, etc.

Sasebo, Japan (Nagasaki), is a naval port.

Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, Canada, is an important trade center and the seat of the projected Provincial University. It has wood working plants, brick works, etc.

Sassari, Italy (cap. Sassari), is the seat of an archbishop and has a university, founded in 1677.

Sault Sainte Marie, Michigan (c. h. Chippewa Co.), is a port of entry near the outlet of Lake Superior on the Sault Sainte Marie ship-canal, which connects Lakes Superior and Huron, and is an important railway center. The international railroad bridge, across Saint Mary's River, connects the city with the village of the same name in Canada. The principal industrial establishments are lumber mills, machine-shops, foundries, planing-mills, flour-mills, brick works, and shingle-mills. Enormous water-power has been developed from the rapids of the Saint Mary's River. Fort Brady, a United States military post, is near by. The place was settled in 1662 by Père Marquette, and constitutes the first permanent settlement within the present limits of Michigan. It was incorporated as a city in 1887.

Sault Sainte Marie, Ontario, Canada, has extensive steel rail works, iron works, pulp and paper mills, a blast furnace, etc.

Savannah, Georgia (c. h. Chatham Co.), is the second city of Georgia, a port of entry on the Savannah River, 18 miles from its mouth, and one of the most important commercial and shipping cities of the Southern States.

It has an extensive coastwise and export trade, the chief articles being cotton, lumber, rice, and naval stores. Its industries include fertilizing plants, cotton-seed-oil mills, iron foundries, sawmills, planing-mills, rice and flour-mills, cotton-mills, machine-shops, ice factories, etc. The Telfair Academy of Arts and Sciences is located here; it contains a collection of casts, paintings, and various objects of art and historical interest. Savannah was settled in 1733 by Gen. James Oglethorpe, the founder of the youngest of the thirteen original states. In 1778, this city was captured by the British, who repulsed a Franco-American attempt to take it the following year. The port of Savannah was closed to commerce by the Federal fleet from 1861 to 1865, and Sherman occupied the city in December, 1864, at the end of his triumphant "March through Georgia." Since the war its progress has been rapid.

Savona, Italy (Genoa), is a fortified port, with manufactures of cloth, silk, paper, glass, and soap, which is supposed to have been invented here. It is the seat of a bishop, and has a cathedral dating from the 17th century.

Schaarbeck, Belgium (Brabant), is a suburb of Brussels.

Schenectady, New York (c. h. Schenectady Co.), is an important industrial center in a fertile agricultural region, having extensive manufactures of locomotives, electrical construction works, foundries and machine-shops, broom and brush factories, etc. It was settled in 1662.

Schöneberg, Germany (Prussia), is a suburb of Berlin.

Schweidnitz, Germany (Silesia), manufactures woollen goods, leather, needles, gloves, agricultural implements, and machinery. Its beer has been famous since the 16th century.

Schwerin, Germany (cap. Mecklenburg-Schwerin), has manufactures of carriages, colors, varnish, soap, musical instruments, furniture, and bricks. It contains two palaces, a 14th-15th century cathedral, museums, and picture-galleries.

Scranton, Pennsylvania (c. h. Lackawanna Co.), is the third city of Pennsylvania, and an important railroad and industrial center in the chief anthracite coal district of the United States. There are many collieries within its limits. It has extensive iron industries, manufactories of silk and silk goods, mining machinery, etc. A famous correspondence school is located here, and the city has numerous other educational institutions. It was settled in 1788.

Seattle, Washington (c. h. King Co.), is the largest city of Washington, and an important port on Puget Sound. It has an extensive coastwise and export trade, with regular steamers to Alaskan and Asiatic ports. It is the chief entrepôt of the Alaskan gold-fields, and a large amount of gold-dust is brought to the United States Assay Office here. It is the principal commercial and industrial center of a large region containing extensive natural resources, the most important of which are lumber, fish, mines, and agricultural products. The chief exports are coal, timber, hops, and fish. The most important industrial establishments are shipyards, lumber and shingle mills, flour-mills, iron-works, rolling-mills, foundries, and wood-working establishments. The power used in a great number of the mills and factories is electricity, generated by the falls in the rivers flowing down from the Cascade Mountains. The United States Navy Yard of Puget Sound is located near by at Bremerton, on Port Orchard Bay, across Puget Sound. At Magnolia Bluff is a United States Army Post. The State University, with 1,500 students, is located here; its grounds furnished the site of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition of 1909. Among the other educational institutions are Seattle Seminary and a Roman Catholic college. The public library contains over 70,000 volumes. The city was founded in 1852 and named after an Indian chief. Almost all of the business quarter was destroyed by fire in 1889, but it has been rebuilt in a more substantial manner.

Sedalia, Missouri (c. h. Pettis Co.), is a trade center in an agricultural and coal-mining region. In the vicinity are deposits of zinc, iron, lead, and fire-clay, also beds of emery and large deposits of limestone. The chief industrial establishments are railroad shops, car shops, foundries, machine-shops, agricultural implement works, woollen mills, etc.

Selma, Alabama (c. h. Dallas Co.), is an industrial and trade center in a rich cotton-growing section. It has cotton-gins, cottonseed-oil mills, lumber mills, fertilizer works, yarn mills, etc.

Serpukhof, Russia (Moscow), has a cathedral dating from 1710 and a variety of manufactures.

Sevastopol, Russia (Taurida), is the chief Russian naval port of the Black Sea, and a summer resort. It has extensive dockyards and naval arsenals, two navigation schools, a naval hospital, and a biological station. On Oct. 5, 1854, the English and allied armies invested Sevastopol, and, after one of the most famous sieges of modern history, gained possession on Sept. 8, 1855. In 1890 the commercial port was transferred to Theodosia.

Seville, Spain (cap. Seville), was the seat of a Roman colony (Hispalis), and was a Moorish kingdom from 712 until its conquest by Ferdinand III. in 1248. Its exquisite Hispano-Gothic cathedral, commenced in 1403 and finished in 1519, is one of the finest churches in the world; its Mudéjar tower (Giralda) especially merits attention. This was begun in 1000 by the Moors, but its upper portion has been to some extent Christianized. It stands 350 ft. high. The Moorish palace, or Alcazar, a native of the city, deserve attention. There are also an art museum (with works by Murillo), a university, and an academy of fine arts. Seville is an archiepiscopal see. The city, once the center of the commerce with America, is still a busy and prosperous port, shipping wine, oil, fruit, lead, and cork, and having manufactures of ceramics, leather, tobacco, and machinery.

Shahjahanpur, India (United Provinces), manufactures sugar.

Shamokin, Pennsylvania (Northumberland Co.), is an industrial and commercial center in the anthracite coal region. The chief industrial establishments are foundries, machine-shops, and knitting, planing, and flour-mills; a large number of the inhabitants are employed in the mines in the vicinity. It was settled in 1835.

Shanghai, China (Kiang Su), is a treaty port and coaling station. Its facilities for distribution and the lack of deep water at the treaty ports in the north, have made it the entrepôt of all foreign trade north of Fuchau, and the greatest foreign market of the empire. Miles of wharves and five large dockyards hardly suffice for the traffic. It exports principally silk, cotton, tea, rice, hides, wool, and cereals. Cotton-spinning, silk-winding, ship-building, and the manufacture of matches, rice, paper, ice, and furniture are the chief industries. Shanghai was taken by the British in 1842, and was opened to foreign trade in the same year.

Shanhaï, China (Hupeh), is a treaty port on the Yangtze River. It is an important mart for cotton stuffs.

Sheboygan, Wisconsin (c. h. Sheboygan Co.), is a commercial and industrial center in a large agricultural region, and a port on Lake Michigan at the mouth of the Sheboygan River. It has large chair, furniture, boot and shoe factories, a shipyard, lime-kilns, boiler works, etc., and a large trade in cheese.

Shemeld, England (York), is the chief seat of English cutlery manufacture. Among the articles manufactured are knives, scissors, razors, tools of all kinds, rails, armor-plates, castings, surgical instruments, machinery, silver-plate, axles, etc. Its cutlery has been celebrated from early times. Mary Queen of Scots was confined in the castle between 1570 and 1584.

Shenandoah, Pennsylvania (Schuylkill Co.), is a commercial and industrial center in a region rich in anthracite coal. Several of the largest collieries in the country are located here. The chief industries of the place are connected with the mining and shipping of coal. There are machine-shops, mining-tool works, foundries, etc. It was settled in about 1850.

Sherbrooke, Ontario, Canada, has manufactures of paper, and of woollen and worsted goods.

Sheridan, Wyoming (c. h. Sheridan Co.), is the largest city of northern Wyoming, and has considerable trade in wool and lumber. Coal is mined near by.

Sherman, Texas (c. h. Grayson Co.), is a trade center in the Red River Valley, with an extensive trade in cotton and grain products. It has a cotton-gin, several large cottonseed-oil mills, flour-mills, lumber mills, furniture factories, etc. Large coal-mines are situated near by in Oklahoma. A Methodist Episcopal college and several other educational institutions are located here.

Shimonoseki, Japan (Yamaguchi), is a fortified seaport on the Inland Sea, near its west entrance, and has been open to foreign trade since 1890. In 1864 it was bombarded by a combined fleet of British, American, Dutch, and French vessels as a protest against the Japanese firing on foreign vessels; the Japanese paid an indemnity in 1875. The treaty signed at Shimonoseki in April, 1895, put an end to the Japanese-Chinese war.

Shreveport, Louisiana (c. h. Caddo Parish), is the commercial and industrial center of the northwestern part of Louisiana, and has an extensive wholesale trade. It is situated in a rich agricultural region in which cotton is the chief product. There are several cotton-presses, cottonseed-oil mills, railroad shops, lumber- and stock-yards, etc. Its railroad facilities and opportunities for river transportation give it especial advantage as a shipping point and a jobbing place. It was incorporated as a city in 1839. During the Civil War, from the time Baton Rouge was captured by the Federal forces until the close of the war, Shreveport was the capital of the state.

Siena, Italy (cap. Siena), has several very interesting public buildings, and is exceptionally rich in works of art. It is the seat of a bishop, and its cathedral, built in the 13th and 14th centuries, is a splendid example of Gothic architecture. The university was founded in 1203. The Piazza del Campo, celebrated by Dante in his Purgatorio, contains the Loggia di San Paolo, the seat of a commercial tribunal in the middle ages. Siena was the center of an art school, whose chief representatives were, Buoninsegni, Sodoma, and Peruzzi.

Simbirsk, Russia (Simbirsk), is a river port, and has breweries, tanneries, distilleries, brick works, flour-mills, iron and copper foundries, and manufactures of candles, soap, malt, and potash, as well as fisheries. It is the seat of an Orthodox bishop and contains two cathedrals.

Simferopol, Russia (cap. Taurida), is the seat of a Greek Orthodox bishop, and has a fine cathedral, in the Venetian style, and a museum of antiquities and natural history. There are vineyards, nursery-gardens, extensive orchards and manufactures of soap, candles, and tobacco.

Singan, China (cap. Shensi), is an important trade center.

Singapore, Straits Settlements, is a port and coaling station on the direct route between India and China, and has become the chief commercial emporium of south-eastern Asia, being at the same time a free port. The chief exports are tin, gambier, sago, tapioca, sugar, pepper, tortoise-shell, mother-of-pearl, gutta-percha, india-rubber, nutmegs and mace, camphor, gum elastic, coffee, tobacco, rice, hides, sapan-wood, stick-lac, and rattans, the trade being mostly transport trade. Singapore manufactures tapioca, sago, gambier, white pepper, tools, implements, vehicles, and furniture, and has ship-building, machine-shops, and engineering works.

Sioux City, Iowa (c. h. Woodbury Co.), is the commercial and industrial center of northwestern Iowa, northeastern Nebraska, and the southeastern part of South Dakota. It has extensive meat-packing houses, flour-mills, broom and furniture factories, stove and engine works, agricultural implement works, carriage and wagon works, tile works, creameries, etc. There are also large grain elevators, stock- and lumber-yards, and a number of wholesale houses. It was settled in 1849 by traders, and, for several years, was the place where gold seekers, going to the Black Hills, were fitted with all necessary material for gold-hunting and camp life.

Sioux Falls, South Dakota (c. h. Minnehaha Co.), is a trade center in an agricultural and stock-raising region. In the vicinity are extensive quarries of marble, jasper, and other stones. It is situated on the Sioux River, which here has a fall of 100 ft. in a half mile, forming a series of cascades that furnish abundant water-power. It has large breweries, a basket factory, stone-quarries, flour-mills, marble-works, etc. Its trade in agricultural implements is quite large. A state penitentiary and a state children's home are located here. It was settled in 1856.

Smichow, Austria (Bohemia), is a suburb of Prague.

Smolensk, Russia (cap. Smolensk), has tanneries, brick-fields, oil works, breweries, distilleries, flour-mills, potteries, limekilns, and manufactures of soap, tallow, linen, and leather. Smolensk is one of the oldest East Slav cities; it existed before the Rurik immigration of 862, and was the capital of the Krivichi. It was an appanage of the Kiev grand princes from 882 to 1054; from 1054 to 1395 it was governed by its own princes. From 1610 to 1654 it was held by Poland, and was acquired by Russia in 1686. Here took place some of the fiercest fighting in the Napoleonic invasion of 1812.

Smyrna, Turkey in Asia, is the principal port of Asia Minor and a coaling station. Its principal industry is the manufacture of carpets, other branches being connected with machine-shops, iron-foundries, silks, cottons, woollens, and pottery. The exports consist chiefly of carpets, figs, tobacco, valonia, raisins, and silk. It is the seat of archbishops of the Greek Orthodox, Roman Catholic, and Armenian Churches. Smyrna is a very ancient city, and it claimed to be the birthplace of Homer. It was one of the seven cities addressed by John in the Revelation. It was destroyed by an earthquake in 178

A. D., and was restored by Marcus Aurelius; was occupied by the Knights of St. John in the 14th century; and was sacked by Timur in 1402. From 1424 it has been under Turkish rule.

Sofia, cap. Bulgaria, exports hides, corn, linen, cloth, and silk. It is the seat of a Greek Orthodox archbishop, and of a university. It has hot mineral springs. A famous church council was held here in 343 A. D. It fell into the hands of the Turks in 1382, and the Russians occupied it in 1878.

Solingen, Germany (Prussia), is the center of an important steel manufacturing district, turning out cutlery especially.

Somerville, Massachusetts (Middlesex Co.), is a residential suburb of Boston, and, in its industrial life, is identified with Boston in many ways. It was settled in 1629 and was a part of Charlestown until 1842, when it was set off as an independent town. In 1872 it was incorporated as a city.

Southampton, England (Hampshire), is a port, a coaling station, the chief British military transport port, and the regular port of call for several important mail steamship lines. Exports cotton manufactures, apparel, leather, etc., and has yacht-building and marine engineering works. Among the most important old buildings are St. Mary's (rebuilt 1884), St. Michael's (in part Norman), Holy Rood (ancient tower and spire), the 12th century chapel of God's House, now used for French Protestant service and King John's palace (12th century). A considerable portion of the old town walls, erected by Richard II., still exist, including parts of towers and three gateways. One, Bargate, a massive structure in two stages, has a large chamber used as the Guildhall, and contains ancient paintings of the local legendary hero, Sir Bevis of Hampton, and of the giant Ascupart. During the middle ages the port had great trade with Venice; its modern prosperity dates from the opening of the new docks (1842).

South Bend, Indiana (c. h. Saint Joseph Co.), is the industrial center for a large portion of northern Indiana, and has extensive manufactures of automobiles, wagons, agricultural implements, woollen goods, paper, sewing-machine parts, furniture, boilers, electrical appliances, cutlery, harness, steel castings, indurated fiber goods, lumber, rubber stamps, etc. It is situated in a fertile agricultural region in which stock-raising receives considerable attention. Just outside the limits of the city, in the village of Notre Dame, are the large Roman Catholic schools,—the University of Notre Dame for men, and Saint Mary's College for women.

Southbridge, Massachusetts (Worcester Co.), is an industrial and commercial center, with optical works, shuttle works, woollen and cotton-mills, knife mills, etc. It was settled about 1730.

South Omaha, Nebraska (Douglas Co.), is the third city of Nebraska, and an industrial suburb of Omaha, with large stock-yards and stock markets. It is one of the largest slaughtering and meat-packing centers in the United States.

Southport, England (Lancashire), is a watering-place, with a handsome esplanade and marine drive. A marine park with lake (44 acres) fronts the shore. There are botanical gardens, a winter garden, and a zoological park. The public buildings include town hall, Cambridge Hall, Atkinson Art Gallery and Free Library, and market hall, and there are several hydro-pathic establishments.

South Shields, England (Durham), is a port on the Tyne, with manufactures of glass and chemicals, ship-

Spandau, Germany (Prussia), is a fortified town, 8 miles northwest of Berlin. Here is the Julius tower, containing, since 1874, the sum of $30,000,000 in coin for immediate use in case of war, the money being part of the war indemnity paid by France after the Franco-German war.

Spartanburg, South Carolina (c. h. Spartanburg Co.), is a trade center in an agricultural region, in which cotton is the principal product. It has cotton-mills, and nearby are large limestone quarries and iron-mines. It is the seat of Wofford College, founded in 1853.

Spezia, Italy (Genoa), is a strongly fortified port on the Gulf of Genoa, and the chief naval station and arsenal of Italy, with large ship-building yards and docks. It is a favorite summer resort, and in the bay Shelley lost his life.

Spokane, Washington (c. h. Spokane Co.), is an important railroad, jobbing, and manufacturing center, and the metropolis of the so-called "Inland Empire." It has extensive lumber mills and manufactories of lumber products, sewer and water-pipe works, flour-mills, flour mill machinery works, brick and terra-cotta works, foundries and machine-shops, iron works, furniture factories, etc. It is in the center of an important mining district. Spokane River, which here has a fall of 132 ft., furnishes abundant water-power, made available largely by the generation of electricity. Spokane is the commercial center of the interior Columbia River basin, which is rich in mines, lumber, and agricultural lands. It has a large trade in wheat, horticultural products, and an extensive distributing trade in merchandise throughout eastern Washington, Idaho, Montana, and British Columbia. Gonzaga College and several other institutions of prominence are located here. The first settlement was made in 1873, and the rapid growth of the city began with the entrance of the Northern Pacific R.R. in 1881, which has continued to this day. On August 4, 1889, the business section of the city was almost wholly destroyed by fire; this was quickly rebuilt, and the city is now one of the most progressive and solidly built among the larger interior cities of the country.

Springfield, cap. Illinois (c. h. Sangamon Co.), is an important trade and manufacturing center in the great corn belt, and has extensive coal-mining, farming, horse and cattle breeding, and large manufacturing interests. Among the more important industries are watch factories, textile works, woollen mills, wood-working mills, machine-shops, boiler and car works, flour-mills, etc. The Illinois State Fair is permanently located here. Among the institutions of learning are an Ursuline Convent, a Lutheran College, etc. Springfield was first settled in 1819. It was the home of Abraham Lincoln, who is buried in Oak Ridge Cemetery.

Springfield, Massachusetts (c. h. Hampden Co.), is an important banking, manufacturing, and residential city in the center of one of the most populous and prosperous sections of New England. It has extensive manufactories of firearms, automobiles, railroad cars and supplies, envelopes, stationery, cotton goods, skates, printed books, and electrical supplies. The United States armory and arsenal are located here, and about 1,500 men are employed in making arms for the government. The French-American College, opened in 1835, and the International Y. M. C. A. Training School are located here. The public library contains over 150,000 volumes. The art and science museums, which are departments of the city library, are, perhaps, unrivaled in any city of similar size in the country. Springfield was first settled in 1636.

Springfield, Missouri (c. h. Greene Co.), is a trade center in a region known for its valuable deposits of zinc and lead. The chief industrial establishments are railroad shops, iron-works, machine-shops, wagon and carriage factories, furniture factories, etc. It has an extensive trade in manufactures, also in lead and zinc, and is the jobbing center of a large part of the southern

Springfield, Ohio (c. h. Clark Co.), is a railroad and manufacturing center in a rich agricultural region. It has extensive manufactories of agricultural implements, gas- and steam-engines, piano plates, machinery in vast variety, tools, iron, steel, and brass goods, etc. In the vicinity are the state fraternal homes of the Free Masons, the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and the Knights of Pythias. The Wittenberg College, founded in 1845 by the Lutheran church, is located here.

Srinagar, India (cap. Kashmir), was formerly a shawl-weaving center, but is now engaged chiefly in silver-working, carpet-weaving, and the manufacture of paper and leather.

Stavanger, Norway (cap. Stavanger), is a seaport with large fishing establishments. It has a cathedral in the Norman style, built in the 13th century and restored in 1866.

Stavropol, Russia (Stavropol), has flour-mills and gardening. It is the seat of a Greek Orthodox bishop.

Steelton, Pennsylvania (Dauphin Co.), is a manufacturing suburb of Harrisburg. The chief industrial establishments are steel bridge and construction works, blast-furnaces, rail and blooming-mills.

Stettin, Germany (Prussia), is a port and coaling station on the Oder, 36 miles from its mouth. It manufactures cement, clothing, machinery, sugar, chemicals, porcelain, and paper, and is one of the most important ship-building centers in Germany. It has churches of the 12th and 14th centuries, and a royal palace (1575).

Staubenville, Ohio (c. h. Jefferson Co.), is a trade center in an agricultural, coal, and natural gas region. Natural gas is near by, and is brought to the city by pipes and pumping. Coal surrounds the city and is mined extensively. Valuable clay deposits are in the vicinity and petroleum wells are within a few miles. Large quarries, which contain excellent building-stone, contribute largely to the prosperity of the city. Among the manufacturing establishments are iron and steel works, tin plate and clay works, potteries, glass factories, blast-furnaces, tube works, and nail factories. The city was settled in 1797.

Stillwater, Minnesota (c. h. Washington Co.), is a trade center in an agricultural region, and is extensively engaged in manufacturing, the chief industrial establishments being flour and feed mills, grain elevators, lumber mills, foundries, machine-shops, and furniture factories. The city has a large trade in logs, lumber and lumber products, wheat, flour, and live stock. It was settled in 1840.

Stockholm, Sweden (cap. Stockholm), is a port and coaling station at the outlet of Lake Malar, the chief naval station of the country, and the principal emporium for the commerce of central and northern Sweden. It is noted for its location and environs, and is remarkable for its numerous beautiful promenades and delightful views, especially on the Djurgard, with its outdoor museum illustrative of the national life, and the Scandinavian northern museum. The principal buildings are the Riddarholms Church, a large mediæval structure mostly in the Renaissance style, which is the Westminster Abbey of Sweden, being the burial-place of the kings and distinguished men of the country; the Royal Palace, a vast square in the Italian style, built 1697-1753; the National Museum; the Northern Museum; and the Royal Library. Stockholm is the seat of the Swedish academy, the academy of sciences, the academy of belles-lettres, history and antiquities, and of a university. The industries include sugar-refineries, tobacco, silk, stearin, and tallow factories, linen and cotton weaving and spinning, also iron-foundries. Stockholm has a small export trade in iron, timber, and tar, but a large import trade. The harbor is closed by ice from three to five months every year. In the environs are several very beautiful royal châteaux in picturesque parks.

Stockton, California (c. h. San Joaquin Co.), is the metropolis and chief distributing center of the San Joaquin Valley, and is located at the head of the all-year navigation of the San Joaquin River system, being connected with the river by a navigable channel 2½ miles in length. Stockton has a large trade in fruits, grain, hay, and other agricultural products. Among the important industrial establishments are flour-mills, agricultural implement factories, window-glass factories, woollen mills, coal briquette factory, machine works, and canneries. A state hospital for the insane is located here. The growth of the city dates from the discovery of gold in 1848.

Stockton-on-Tees, England (Durham), is a port on the Tees River, 5 miles from its estuary. It has blast-furnaces and rolling-mills, and its extensive industries include the construction of marine engines, bridge-building, ship-building, and railway material, and glass-bottle works. A castle was built here soon after the conquest; it was taken by the parliamentarians in 1644.

Stoke-upon-Trent, England (Stafford), is famous as the chief center of the porcelain and earthenware manufacture, with which the names of Wedgwood, Minton, and Copeland are associated. The Minton memorial building contains a free library and museum, and schools of science and art, and in the church is a monument to Wedgwood (died 1793).

Stralsund, Germany (Prussia), has manufactures of playing-cards, machinery, electric lamps, sugar, and starch. It has a town hall dating from the 14th century, a high school from 1560, and an arsenal. It is notable for its successful resistance to the siege commanded by Wallenstein, in 1628.

Strassburg, Germany (cap. Alsace-Lorraine), is a fortified town and has many handsome public buildings erected mostly since 1873, namely, the university, imperial palace, library, and the provincial government building. It is the seat of a bishop, and its famous minster was founded before 1015, and completed in 1439. The principal manufactures are cigars, leather, surgical instruments, and machinery. Here the Emperor Julian defeated the Alemanni in 357. The town was seized by Louis XIV. in 1681, and capitulated to the Germans in 1870.

The house in which the poet was born is preserved, as are also the site of New Place, where the poet spent his later years, and the cottage of Anne Hathaway, the poet's wife. The Shakespeare Memorial is a handsome building, erected in 1879 on the bank of the Avon, and contains a theatre, a library with a rare collection of Shakespereana, and a picture gallery. The parish church of Holy Trinity, dating from the 13th century, contains the tomb of Shakespeare. Another interesting building is Harvard House (16th century), the birthplace of the mother of John Harvard, the founder of Harvard University.

Streator, Illinois (LaSalle Co.), is a trade center in a fertile agricultural region in which there is considerable coal, fire-clay, and building stone. The manufacturing establishments include brick and tile works, glass facories, flour-mills, machine-shops, and foundries. The trade is chiefly in manufactures, coal, grain, live-stock, and dairy products.

Stuttgart, Germany (cap. Württemberg), is one of the chief publishing centers in Germany, and manufactures furniture, pianos, chemicals, colors, chocolate, carriages, and leather. The old castle, now used as government offices, was built in 1553-70; the other notable buildings include the royal palace (1746-1807), polytechnic, conservatory of music, library, national industrial museum, and picture gallery. It is the birthplace of Hegel, Hauff, and Schwab. The counts of Württemberg took up their residence here in 1316.

Suchau, China (Kiang Su), is situated in the heart of the silk district, and is one of the wealthiest cities in China. It was almost destroyed in the Taiping rebellion, but has since largely recovered. It was opened to foreign trade in 1896.

Sucre, cap. Bolivia (Chuquisaca), is the residence of the archbishop of Bolivia, and contains a university. It was founded in 1539 by a companion of Pizarro, and was called Chuquisaca till the declaration of independence. It exports chiefly goods in transit.

Suez, Egypt, is a port and coaling station at the southern end of the Suez Canal. Once a flourishing emporium for Oriental trade, it fell into decay and until the opening of the Suez Canal, was a wretched village. The modern town is built on a desert peninsula. It exports chiefly goods in transit.

Sunderland, England (Durham), is a port and coaling station at the mouth of the Wear River, and one of the foremost steel ship-building centers in the United Kingdom. It has besides engineering, anchor, rope and chain cable works, glass-works, forges, and other industries. The parish church of St. Peter was founded in the 7th century by Biscop, in connection with the monastery where Bede became a student; St. Michael's (originally 10th century), contains some 13th century work. The town hall is a handsome modern structure.

Superior, Wisconsin (c. h. Douglas Co.), is a railroad and trade center, sharing with Duluth the commercial advantage of being the extreme western port of the Great Lakes system of the United States. It has three connecting harbors well sheltered and deep, making a combined length of 13 miles, with an extreme width of 3 miles. The principal manufacturing establishments are flour and lumber mills, iron- and steel-works, bag factories, cooperage, chair factory, wagon and carriage works, while lath, shingles, and other lumber products are manufactured quite extensively. It also has shipyards, coal docks of great capacity, large grain elevators, a large dry dock, and a number of wholesale merchandise establishments. The Finnish University and a state normal school are located here.

Surabaya, Java, is a port with the best harbor in Java, and is the naval and military headquarters of the Dutch East Indies. It has an arsenal, ship-building yards, and exports rice, cotton, coffee, and sugar.

Pacific Ocean. Exports wool, silver ore, gold, wheat, meat, etc. The industries include coach factories, foundries, engineering works, and cloth mills. Sydney has large and beautiful parks, and among its public buildings are St. Andrew's Cathedral, a fine Gothic edifice; St. Mary's Cathedral (Roman Catholic); the town hall, of vast size and possessing a very fine organ, the university, a fine edifice in the Gothic style; the Government House, in the Tudor style; and the Museum.

Sydney, Nova Scotia, Canada, is a seaport, coaling station, and mining town on Cape Breton Island. It has large steel works, iron furnaces, coal mining interests, chemical works, etc.

Syracuse, Italy (cap. Syracuse), was in antiquity a famous city of Sicily, founded by Corinthian settlers about 733 B. C. The colonists seem to have occupied the little island of Ortygia, stretching southeast from the shore; but later the city extended to the mainland. The seat successively of "tyranny" and democracy, Syracuse was involved in a great struggle with Athens (415-413 B. C.) and the celebrated siege in which it came off victorious. Dionysius' fierce war with Carthage (397 B. C.) raised the renown of Syracuse still higher. In 212 B. C. the city was conquered by the Romans after a two years' siege, it having sided with the Carthaginians. Under the Romans Syracuse slowly declined, though with its handsome public buildings and its artistic and intellectual culture, it always continued to be the first city of Sicily. It was captured and burned by the Saracens in 878 A. D., and after that sank into complete decay. The modern city (Siracusa) is confined to the original limits, Ortygia, which, however, is no longer an island, but a peninsula. It has a cathedral (the ancient temple of Minerva), a museum of antiquities, a public library, the fountain of Arethusa (its waters mingled with sea-water since the earthquake of 1170), and remains of temples, aqueducts, the citadel Euryalus, a Greek theatre, a Roman amphitheatre, and quarries, besides ancient Christian catacombs. It carries on a brisk trade in fruits, oil, and wine.

Syracuse, New York (c. h. Onondaga Co.), is, in point of population, the fourth city of the state, and the commercial metropolis of central New York. It is an important railroad and manufacturing center, and has a large wholesale trade in merchandise. It has extensive manufactures of typewriters, automobiles, iron and steel products, etc. The salt industry, formerly important here, is now a relatively small item in the business of the city, but the water from the salt springs in the marshes bordering on Onondaga Lake has become both indispensable and profitable, through combination with limestone in a chemical process, for the production of sodium nitrate and its by-products. Syracuse University, comprising the departments of liberal arts, fine arts, law, medicine, and applied science, with an attendance of over 3,200 students, a faculty of nearly 220, and a library of 90,000 volumes, was chartered in 1870 under the auspices of the Methodist Episcopal church; it is among the largest educational institutions of the United States and maintains a high standard of scholarship. The annual State Fair is permanently located here.

Ulm, Germany (Württemberg), is a fortified town and river port on the Danube. Tobacco, cement, machinery, and linen and cotton goods are manufactured. Ornamental pipe bowls and Ulm bread are characteristic products. The Late Gothic cathedral (1377) is second in Germany to that of Cologne, and its tower, completed in 1890, is 528 ft. high. Ulm was an important trade center in the late middle ages. Here, in 1805, the Austrian general Mack capitulated with about 30,000 men to the French.

Uman, Russia (Kief), has an agricultural college, and manufactures of tobacco, malt, candles, bricks, vinegar, also flour-mills and iron-foundries.

Union, New Jersey (Union Co.), is a residential suburb of Hoboken.

Upsala, Sweden (cap. Upsala), is the seat of an archbishop, and has a cathedral (built 1230-1435 and restored 1885-93), with the monuments of many kings and famous men. The university, founded in 1477, has the largest library in Sweden (300,000 vols. and 12,000 MSS.), and is attended by 1,500 students. Upsala has chemical factories, breweries, and brick works.

Uralsk, Siberia (cap. Uralsk), has manufactures of candles, soap, glue, and sheepskin coats, as well as fisheries, tanneries, distilleries, breweries, and brick-works. It has two cathedrals; one Orthodox, founded in 1837; the other, belonging to the Old Believers, founded at the beginning of the 18th century.

Urmia, Persia, is noted as a center of missionary activity, and is the seat of a seminary for priests, and a college. It is a summer resort of the Persian nobility. It exports raisins and molasses.

Uakup, Turkey (Kosovo), is an important trade center and has leather, dyeing, and weaving industries.

Utica, New York (c. h. Oneida Co.), is an important railroad and commercial center in a prosperous agricultural and industrial region. The chief manufactures are hot-air furnaces, hosiery and print goods, men's clothing, machine-shop products, steam fitting and heating apparatus, tobacco products, lumber products, etc. It is a distributing center for an extensive region, and is an important cheese market; large quantities of flowers, especially roses, are shipped to the larger cities. A state hospital, the Masonic Home of New York State, and other important institutions are located here.

Utrecht, Netherlands (cap. Utrecht), has been since 1723 the headquarters of the Jansenists and the seat of their archbishop. Its university, founded in 1636, has 850 students. Textiles, machinery, chemicals, tobacco, bricks, and beer are the chief manufacturing products. Here was formed in 1579 the union of the seven Protestant provinces—the union out of which grew the nation of the Netherlands; and here in 1713 was signed the treaty of peace which ended the war of the Spanish Succession. Pope Adrian VI. was born at Utrecht in 1459.

Valence, France (cap. Drôme), has manufactures of glass, silk, hosiery, and the printing of handkerchiefs. Its Romanesque cathedral was consecrated by Pope Urban II. in 1095.

Valencia, Spain (cap. Valencia), is the third city of Spain. Its cathedral, though much spoiled by restoration, has fine paintings of the Valencian school; and many pictures by Ribalta are in other churches and public buildings. Its university is one of the most famous, as the art school is one of the most important in Spain. Tobacco, silk, fans, and gloves are manufactured.

Valencia, Venezuela, is an important trading center situated in a rich agricultural region, and has an extensive trade in coffee, sugar, rum, cattle, and hides. It contains a cathedral built in 1813, a university, and a national college.

Valenciennes, France (Nord), has manufactures of coarse lace, hosiery, cambric, glass, and iron goods. The manufacture of Valenciennes lace has been discontinued for 50 years. The artist Watteau was born here.

Valetta, cap. Malta, is one of the most important British naval and coaling stations in the Mediterranean. The town with its two harbors and four dry docks, is defended by forts, partly constructed in 1530 by the Knights of St. John. Among the many fine buildings are the cathedral, the palace of the grandmasters of the Knights of St. John, and the university.

Valladolid, Spain (cap. Valladolid), was the capital of Spain before Madrid. It contains the royal palace of Philip III. and the palace of Cardinal Mendoza, now a museum. Columbus died and Cervantes lived here.

Valparaiso, Chile (cap. Valparaiso), is the largest town on the Pacific coast of South America and the chief port and coaling station of Chile. It has a dangerous open harbor which is being improved, and there are two floating docks, and a government mole with hydraulic machinery. It is fortified and has a naval school. It has locomotive and ship-building works, and exports copper, hides, wheat, and wool. The earthquake of August 16, 1906, destroyed many important buildings, but the city has been rebuilt.

Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada, is a port and coaling station on an arm of the Strait of Georgia and the largest city of British Columbia. It is an important railway terminus and port of departure for Alaskan, Asiatic, and Australian steamers. Exports fish, lumber, gold, etc., and has railroad shops, ship-building yards, sugar-refineries, canneries, breweries, distilleries, cooperages, and manufactories of machinery, furniture, glass, etc. Vancouver College, affiliated with McGill University, is located here.

Varna, Bulgaria, is a fortified port on the Black Sea, and exports cattle, butter, hides, and grain. It is the seat of a Greek Orthodox bishop. Here, on Nov. 10, 1444, Ladislaus, king of Hungary and Poland, was defeated and slain by the Turks.

Vellore, India (Madras), is a military station, and has an interesting old fort.

Venice, Italy (cap. Venice), is a fortified port and coaling station on the Gulf of Venice, ranking next to Genoa in importance. Exports textiles, grain, hemp, and glass and enamel ware. The foundations of the city rest on piles driven into the mud. Glass is one of its most famous manufactures; and beads, all sorts of Venetian ware, mirrors, mosaics, electric lamps, candelabra, tapestry, brocades, lace, velvets, silks, machinery and chemicals are also manufactured. Ship-building and the making of torpedoes are carried on. Among the many fine churches, the basilica of St. Mark is marked out as one of the three finest in Italy; others are the churches of SS. Giovanni Paolo (the burial-place of the doges), Santa Maria Gloriosa dei Frari, Santa Maria della Salute, San Giorgio degli Schiavoni, San Salvatore, and San Pietro di Castello. Other places and objects of great interest are the Academy of Fine Arts (containing Venetian canvases from the earliest times), the municipal museum, the quay Riva degli Schiavoni, the Rialto, the Bridge of Sighs, and the granite column, surmounted by the Winged Lion of St. Mark. The famous Campanile collapsed on July 14, 1902; it is now in process of reconstruction. After the fall of Napoleon, Venice was ceded to Austria; but the government was so oppressive that she revolted, and under the leadership (1848-9) of Daniele Manin she drove out the Austrians and joined in the struggle for Italian independence. Even after the failure of Charles Albert's expeditions into Lombardy, she refused to yield, and was only reduced, after a year's siege, by famine and cholera. When Lombardy was freed in 1859, Venice remained under the Austrian yoke, and it was not until 1866 that she was united to the Italian kingdom.

Vera Cruz, Mexico (Vera Cruz), is the chief port of Mexico, with exceptional facilities for a large and growing trade. Its exports consist principally of ores, coffee, tobacco, hides, dyewoods, and drugs. It was founded at the close of the 16th century, and was taken by General Scott in 1847.

Vercelli, Italy (Novara), is an important railroad center and has manufactories of cotton and woollen goods, silks, and machinery. The church of St. Andrea dates from the 13th century, and there is a museum of Roman antiquities.

Verona, Italy (cap. Verona), is a fortified city, and has manufactures of nails, pianos, organs, cotton and silk goods, paper, and flour, and trade in fruit, wines, and marble. The Gothic cathedral dates from the 12th century, and contains a fine Assumption by Titian; the very fine Romanesque church of San Zeno Maggiore stands in the west corner of the city. Verona was originally a Celtic foundation, but became a Roman colony with the title of Augusta. In the later empire it was often a residence of the court. It possesses a Roman amphitheater, also a few remains of a theater, and of an ancient gate, and wall of Gallienus, erected in 265 A. D.

Verviers, Belgium (Liège), has long been noted for woollens, and has large manufactures of woollen yarn.

Viborg, Russia (Finland), is a fortified town and naval station, with manufactures of machinery and soap, and an export trade in timber, iron, paper, tar, tallow, fish, and butter. It is the seat of a Greek Orthodox archbishop, and has a fine cathedral. It has a naval school, and Russian, Swedish, and Finnish colleges.

Vicksburg, Mississippi (c. h. Warren Co.), is the largest city of the state, and a trade center in an agricultural region, of which cotton is the principal product. It is situated on the Mississippi River and has excellent railroad facilities. The chief manufacturing establishments are cottonseed-oil mills, planing mills, railroad shops, foundries, and machine-shops. A Roman Catholic college for boys and a colored college are located here. The National Cemetery above the city contains over 16,000 graves. The name of Vicksburg is well known from its prominence in the Civil War, when, as the key of the Mississippi, it was strongly fortified and garrisoned by the Confederates. After baffling Farragut and Sherman in 1862, it was finally captured by Grant in 1863, in a campaign which cost him 9,000 men.

Victoria, Brazil (cap. Espirito Santo), exports coffee, sugar and rice.

Victoria, cap. British Columbia, Canada, is a port and coaling station on Juan de Fuca Strait, and a tourist resort. It has one of the best harbors on the Pacific coast, and is a port of call for transpacific steamships running to Vancouver, Seattle, and Tacoma. It has extensive sawmills, ship-building and iron-working plants, fish canneries, and chemical and other factories. It exports lumber, fish, and agricultural produce. Its leading architectural features are the Parliament buildings, government house, the Canadian Pacific hotel, post-office, and churches. The climate is mild, the rainfall small, and it is noted for its natural beauty. There is a Canadian garrison in the city.

Vienna, Austria (cap. Lower Austria), is the chief commercial and industrial city of the country, and an important railway and waterway center. It has extensive manufactures of iron and steel goods, silk, cotton, furniture, fancy goods, leather, and bronze, as well as breweries and distilleries; and has a large trade in grain, cattle, wood, and manufactured articles. Vienna is one of the handsomest of European cities, and although an ancient place, is of modern aspect, having been almost completely rebuilt in the last 50 years. It is the seat of a Roman Catholic archbishop and possesses the famous cathedral of St. Stephen (1300-1510). Among the principal buildings are the Hofburg, or Imperial Palace, containing many historic relics, such as the coronation regalia of Charlemagne, the famous diamond of Charles the Bold of Burgundy, etc.; the magnificent Parliament House; the City Hall; the Opera House; the Museum of Natural History; and the magnificent Picture Gallery, rich in canvases by Dürer, Rubens, and the Venetian masters. It is the seat of a famous university, founded in 1365; of an Academy of Sciences; of a great number of technical and special schools; and of two rich libraries. Vienna became the capital of the Hapsburg dominions in 1276; was occupied by the French in 1805 and in 1809; and was the scene of a revolutionary outbreak in 1848.

Villa Rica, Paraguay, is the center of an agricultural region, producing tobacco, cotton, and oranges.

Vilna, Russia (cap. Vilna), is a river port, and manufactures buttons, gloves, tobacco, confectionery, pencils, boots and shoes, brushes, hats, and artificial flowers. It is the seat of a Greek Orthodox archbishop and of a Roman Catholic bishop, and possesses two fine cathedrals.

Vincennes, France (Seine), is a suburb of Paris, on the border of the Bois de Vincennes, and has manufactures of chemicals and cartridges. The keep of its castle was the prison of Henry IV., Condé, Diderot, Mirabeau, and others.

Vincennes, Indiana (c. h. Knox Co.), is a trade center in a fertile agricultural region, and has manufactures of flour, lumber products, sewer pipe, iron and tin products, agricultural implements, machine-shop products, etc. Vincennes University, founded in 1806, is located here. It is the oldest place in the state. In 1702 the French built here a fort, and, for several years, it was the seat of the empire of France in the Ohio Valley. In 1763 the British obtained possession of the place, and in 1779 it was captured by the Virginians, who held it until 1783, when it was ceded to the United States. In 1787 the first court was held, and in 1800 the Indiana Territory was established and Vincennes was made the capital. In 1813 the territorial capital was removed to Corydon.

Vitebsk, Russia (cap. Vitebsk), is a river port and has dye-works, and manufactures of candles, tobacco, varnish, woollen and linen cloth. It is the seat of a Greek Orthodox bishop, and has the cathedral of St. Nicholas (1664), and the old churches of St. Elias (1643) a fine example of Old Russian style, the Assumption (1777), and St. Antony (1731).

Vladikavkas, Russia (cap. Terek), is an important military station and has considerable trade.

Vladimir, Russia (cap. Vladimir), is a river port and has dye-works, cotton-mills, manufactures of malt, and tobacco, also gardening and fruit-raising, especially cherries. It is the seat of a Greek Orthodox archbishop, and has a cathedral built in the 12th century, and restored in the 19th century. Founded in 1116 by Vladimir Monomakh, Vladimir became the capital of a line of grand princes, who replaced those of Kiev in power among Russian rulers.

Vladivostok, Siberia (Coast Province), is a fortified port, the chief Russian naval station of Asia, and the terminus of the Trans-Siberian Railway. Exports skins, furs, edible seaweed, etc. Its harbor is one of the most beautiful in the world. The climate is severe, the mean temperature for January being 6°F, while for August (the hottest month) it is 70°. In the Russo-Japanese war it escaped attack by the Japanese, but suffered from naval mutiny and unrest in the Russian disturbances of 1905-6.

Voronezh, Russia (cap. Voronezh), has manufactures of soap, candles, bricks, bells, tobacco, woollen and linen cloth, and vitriol. It is the seat of a Greek Orthodox bishop, and has a fine cathedral. It possesses a palace of Peter the Great, and has a technical school and a military college.

Waco, Texas (c. h. McLennan Co.), is a railroad and trade center in a rich agricultural region, of which grain and cotton are the chief products. The chief manufactures are cotton goods, clothing, wagons and carriages, saddlery and harness foundry and machine-shop products. It is the principal interior cotton market of the United States. Among the educational institutions are a Baptist college, opened in 1845, a Christian college, opened in 1873, a Roman Catholic college, opened in 1900, and an African Methodist Episcopal college, opened in 1881.

Wakefield, England (York), manufactures worsted yarn and cocoa-matting. The battle of Wakefield was fought in 1460, when the Yorkists were defeated by the Lancastrians.

Wakefield, Massachusetts (Middlesex Co.), is an industrial center in an agricultural region. It has iron and brass factories, rattan goods works, shoe factories, machine-shops, etc.

Wallasey, England (Cheshire), is a suburb of Birkenhead.

Walla Walla, Washington (c. h. Walla Walla Co.), is a trade center in a fertile agricultural region known as the Walla Walla Valley, and forms a part of the "Inland Empire." It is one of the most important commercial cities of the eastern part of the state, and has extensive manufactories of farming implements and machinery, flour-mills, lumber mills, etc. A United States land-office is located here. It is the seat of Whitman College, founded in 1859.

Walsall, England (Stafford), has iron and brass founding, tanning, currying, the manufacture of saddlery and harness, and extensive collieries.

Waltham, Massachusetts (Middlesex Co.), is an industrial center celebrated for its watchmaking works, which are said to be the largest of the kind in the world. It also has large cotton-mills, saddlery and harness works, foundry and machine-shops, wagen and carriage factories, emery-wheel works, lumber mills, furniture factories, men's clothing factories, etc. Among the educational institutions are a state school for the feeble-minded, and a normal training school.

Warsaw, Russia (cap. Poland), was formerly the capital of the kingdom of Poland. The palaces are now put to municipal use; the Casimir Palace is occupied by the university, which is attended by over 1,500 students. Iron and steel goods, machinery, carriages, plated goods, and boots and shoes are manufactured. Trade is carried on in grain, leather, sugar, and coal; the wool and hop fairs are important. Warsaw was the residence of the dukes of Masovia till 1526. In 1609 it superseded Krakow as the capital of Poland. It was taken by the Swedes in 1655 and 1656, and was captured by the Russians in 1764 and 1794. In 1807 it was made capital of the duchy of Warsaw, and in 1813 came entirely under Russian rule.

Washington, District of Columbia, is the capital of the United States, lies on the left bank of the Potomac, 156 miles from the Chesapeake Bay, and is, in many respects, one of the most beautiful cities of the United States. The present site of the national capital was selected in 1790, mainly through the agency of George Washington; and the Federal District of Columbia, 100 square miles in area, was set apart for this purpose, on territory ceded by Maryland and Virginia. The Virginia portion of the district was, however, retroceded in 1846, and the present area of the District of Columbia is 69 square miles. The commerce and manufactures of Washington are relatively unimportant, and its prosperity depends on its position as the seat of Congress and the Government Offices. There are upwards of 50,000 army and navy officers and civil servants in Washington, and these, with their families, make up a large proportion of the population. It is emphatically the scientific center of the country and its many scientific societies have thousands of members. The sobriquet of "City of Magnificent Distances," applied to Washington when its framework seemed unnecessarily large for its growth, is still deserved, perhaps, for the width of its streets and the spaciousness of its parks and squares. The Capitol dominates the entire city with its soaring dome and ranks among the most beautiful buildings in the world. It is 751 ft. in length, from 121 to 324 ft. wide, and consists of a main edifice of sandstone, painted white, and of two wings of white marble. It covers an area of 3½ acres. The main building with its original low-crowned dome, was completed in 1827; the wings of the new iron dome were added in 1851-65. It contains the Hall of Representatives, Senate Chamber, and the Supreme Court Room. It stands in a park of about 50 acres in extent and near by are the Senate and House of Representatives buildings, two white marble edifices in classic style, completed in 1908, containing offices for the senators and representatives. The Library of Congress, an enormous structure of the Italian Renaissance style, 470 ft. long and 340 ft. wide, erected in 1888-97, at a cost of over $6,000,000, is rich in sculptural adornments and its interior is sumptuously decorated with paintings by 50 American artists. The library contains upwards of 2,000,000 volumes, over 100,000 manuscripts, and more than 100,000 maps, etc.

The Treasury Department, the oldest of the governmental buildings, is constructed of freestone and granite in the Ionic style. The city Post-Office and Post-Office Department building, constructed entirely of granite, occupies an entire block, and is one of the handsomest structures of the modern styles of architecture. The State, War, and Navy Departments occupy a large structure built in the Renaissance style and cover more than 4½ acres. The building commonly known as the Patent Office, but which is really the office of the Secretary of the Interior Department, is a large structure of white marble in the pure Doric style. The old building of the Post-Office Department, a structure built of marble in the Corinthian style, covering one block, is now occupied by the General Land-Office and Indian Bureau. The Pension Bureau is housed in a brick building in which are held many of the great functions known as Inaugural Balls. The home of the President is an artistically plain building of freestone painted white, from which it derives the name, "White House." The offices of the White House are contained in a low white building at the western extremity of a long colonnade extending from the White House. Directly south of the White House is the Washington Monument, a marble shaft 555 ft. in height, to the building of which almost every country on the face of the earth contributed a stone. The Washington Public Library, a beautiful building, the gift of Andrew Carnegie, was opened in 1902. The Smithsonian Institution, a building of brownstone in the ancient Gothic style of architecture, was built by money bequeathed by James Smithson, an Englishman. The policy of the institution is to encourage research, and it has been the chief promoter of scientific investigation of the climate, products, and antiquities of the United States. It possesses a library of 250,000 volumes and issues publications of great scientific value. The National Museum, which is under the direction of the Smithsonian Institution, contains valuable and excellently arranged collections of natural history, anthropology and geology, derived mainly through the scientific investigations of the United States government, and is housed in a large and dignified building of white granite, which has been designed to harmonize with the older public buildings of Washington built on classic lines. The Army Medical Museum contains a pathological collection, a collection of army and navy supplies, and a library of over 200,000 volumes. The Department of Agriculture occupies a new white marble and brick building, of which the wings were completed in 1908, and includes a herbarium and conservatories of economic plants; the grounds in front of it are devoted to an arboretum arranged by families. The Bureau of Engraving and Printing, where all of the paper money, stamps, and bonds are made, is near by. The Governmental Printing Office, the largest and most complete printing establishment in the world, is housed in a huge brick structure. Other large buildings are the Naval Observatory, the Naval Museum of Hygiene, and the Coast Survey. The Union Railway Station, completed in 1908 at a cost of $4,000,000, is undoubtedly one of the most successful buildings of the kind in the country. It is constructed of white marble, and is 630 ft. long and 210 ft. wide. The Corcoran Gallery of Art occupies a handsome white marble structure erected in 1894-7 and contains a large and valuable collection of casts, sculptures, paintings, and other objects of art. It has a school of art with over 300 pupils. Washington is the seat of many universities, colleges, etc. The Catholic University of America, founded in 1885, is situated in one of the northern suburbs and is one of the foremost institutions in the country for the study of advanced philosophy. Georgetown University, founded in 1789, and conducted by the Jesuit order of the Roman Catholic church, has all the departments of a modern university. Howard University, established in 1867, and supported almost entirely by the government, furnishes the negro with opportunities for an education. The George Washington University is another well-equipped university, having legal, medical, dental, collegiate, and scientific departments; it also has a school of diplomacy and jurisprudence in connection with its law school and a modern, well-equipped hospital in connection with its medical department. Trinity College, a Roman Catholic institution, designed for the higher education of women, is conducted by the Sisters of Notre Dame de Namur. The Columbia Institution for the deaf and dumb, known also as Gallaudet College, founded in 1857, is one of the foremost institutions of the kind in the country. The American University, organized by the Methodist church, has a great future. There is a fine zoological garden in the environs of Washington.

Waterbury, Connecticut (c. h. New Haven Co.), is a commercial and industrial center, with extensive manufactures of brass ware products, brass castings, buttons, men's clothing, stamped ware, watches, etc. It has many educational institutions, and a public library containing upwards of 100,000 volumes. It was settled in 1677.

Waterford, Ireland (cap. Waterford), has Protestant and Roman Catholic cathedrals. Fragments of the city walls remain, including an 11th century tower. The harbor is formed chiefly by the estuary of the Suir and Barrow. Butter and bacon are the principal exports.

Waterloo, Belgium (Brabant), is a village, 11 miles south of Brussels, which gave its name to the decisive battle fought near it on June 18, 1815, between Napoleon and the allied armies under Wellington and Blücher, when the former was defeated. The result was the final overthrow of Napoleon, and his exile to St. Helena.

Waterloo, Iowa (c. h. Blackhawk Co.), is a trade center in an agricultural and stock-raising region. The chief manufacturing establishments are foundries, machine-shops, gas-engine works, automobile works, etc. It was settled in 1845.

Wheeling, West Virginia (c. h. Ohio Co.), is the largest city of West Virginia and an important railroad and trade center. The city has steamer connections with all Ohio River ports and does an extensive wholesale trade. In the vicinity are coal-fields of great importance. The chief manufactures are iron and steel products, pottery, glass, tobacco products, leather, lumber products, canned goods, wagons and carriages, etc. It was the first town founded on the Ohio River. The first settlement was made in 1769. In 1861 it was made the capital of the "restored government of Virginia" by the people of Virginia who were opposed to secession. In 1863, it was the meeting place of the convention that formed the state of West Virginia. It was the capital of the state from 1863-70 and again from 1875-85.

White Plains, New York (c. h. Westchester Co.), is a residential suburb of New York, situated in a beautifully developed section. Bloomingdale Asylum for the insane is nearby. During the Revolutionary War, it was the scene of many battles and skirmishes; the Battle of White Plains, which resulted in the defeat of Washington by Lord Howe, was fought here on Oct. 28, 1776.

Wichita, Kansas (c. h. Sedgwick Co.), is an important commercial and industrial center, situated in a fertile agricultural region in southern Kansas. The chief products of this section are wheat, corn, hogs, and cattle. The principal manufactures of the city are confectionery, flour, saddlery and harness, and men's clothing. Large meat-packing houses and a number of wholesale and jobbing houses are located here. A Friends' University, founded in 1898, a Congregational college, opened in 1892, and a Roman Catholic college, opened in 1900, are among the institutions of learning. It was settled in 1869.

Wichita Falls, Texas (c. h. Wichita Co.), is a railroad and trade center in a rich agricultural region.

Wiesbaden, Germany (Prussia), is a famous watering-place. Of its 20 hot springs, which were known to the Romans, the principal is the "Kochbrunnen" ("Boiling-spring", 166°F.). The saline hot springs containing silica and iron, are efficacious in gout, rheumatism, scrofula, and other skin diseases and nervous affections. Though the public gaming-tables were abolished in 1872, the number of visitors annually is about 60,000.

Wimbledon, England (Surrey), is a residential suburb of London and has an ancient earthwork, traditionally ascribed to Caesar.

Winchester, England (Hampshire), is an ancient city, the Caesar Gwent of the Britons and the Venta Belgarum of the Romans. A residence of the Saxon kings, it became after the conquest the capital of the country. It possesses a famous cathedral founded in the 11th century, the transepts, crypt, and part of the nave being from that period. It is the largest cathedral in England, 560 ft. in length, and has a magnificent interior of various periods of architecture. Among many ancient monuments and memorials to Saxon and Danish kings and Norman princes are those of Hardicanute and William Rufus. It has, besides, several ancient churches, and a hospital founded in the 12th century, which contains a handsome Norman church. It is the seat of Winchester College founded in 1387.

Windsor, England (Berkshire), is an ancient town, and contains Windsor Castle, the chief royal palace of England, whose buildings and immediate grounds cover 12 acres. Not far from the castle is the Great Park with an area of about 1,900 acres, which contains the palace and mausoleum of Frogmore, where the remains of Queen Victoria and of the Prince Consort rest. Near by is Eton, the location of one of the greatest public schools in England.

Windsor, Ontario, Canada, is a residential suburb of Detroit, and has considerable manufacturing and wholesale trade.

Winnipeg, cap. Manitoba, Canada, is the largest city of Manitoba and western Canada, and has a large transit trade in grain and general merchandise. It is the largest grain market in the British Empire and an important railroad center, with the shops of three transcontinental railway lines. In 1871 it had a population of 241, and was one of the Hudson Bay Co.'s trading posts, known as Fort Garry. Since its choice as the capital of Manitoba its growth has been very rapid, and its trade has increased faster even than its population. Winnipeg is the seat of the University of Manitoba, partly made up of Manitoba College (Presbyterian), St. John's Episcopal College, and the Manitoba Medical College; and of St. Boniface College (Roman Catholic), located at St. Boniface, on the opposite side of the Red River.

There are several ancient churches, an 11th century commandery, and timbered houses. Its manufactures include gloves, porcelain, carriages, railway signals, saucers, vinegar, and British wines.

Worcester, Massachusetts (c. h. Worcester Co.), is the second city of Massachusetts and is noted for the number and variety of its manufacturing establishments. It has a large number of foundries and machine-shops, boot and shoe factories, envelope works, wire-works, woollen goods mills, worsted goods mills, lumber mills, clothing factories, etc. A state armory and a state asylum are located here. An art museum contains a good collection of casts, valuable paintings, engravings, etc. Adjacent to the court-house is the American Antiquarian Society, one of the leading learned bodies of America, founded in 1812, possessing a library of over 100,000 volumes. Among the educational institutions are Clark University, a postgraduate school for original research, and a state normal school. Worcester was settled in 1673.

Worms, Germany (Hesse), has manufactures of leather, cloth, tobacco, machinery, and chemicals, and produces the Liebfrauenmilch wine. The massive Romanesque cathedral, with two cupolas and four towers, was founded in the 8th, rebuilt in the 11th and 12th centuries, and carefully restored in the last quarter of the 19th century. The synagogue (11th century) is one of the oldest in Germany. The town house was restored in 1885. Worms is one of the oldest cities of Germany; in it is laid the scene of the Nibelungenlied. It was occupied by the Romans, destroyed by Attila, and afterwards rebuilt by Clovis. It was frequently the residence of Charlemagne and his Carolingian successors, and was erected into a free imperial city by the Emperor Henry V. The most famous diet held here was that in 1521, at which Luther defended himself before Charles V.

It is the seat of a Roman Catholic bishop, and its Romanesque cathedral was founded in the 8th century, enlarged in the 11th century, and restored in 1882-3. Among its other churches are Saint Burkard, the university and seminary churches, the Gothic chapel of St. Mary, and the Neumünster church. It possesses a university with a celebrated faculty of medicine.

Yarkand, China (cap. Eastern Turkestan), is the chief trading center with north India across the Karakorum Pass.

Yarmouth, England (Norfolk), is a port and popular seaside resort, with a marine parade $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles long, beautiful large gardens, and popular amusement parks. It is the center of the herring and other fisheries. Ship-building is carried on.

Yaroslaf, Russia (cap. Yaroslaf), has manufactures of cotton, tobacco, and flour. It is the seat of a Greek Orthodox archbishop, and its cathedral dates from the early part of the 13th century. Yaroslaf was the capital of an independent principality from 1126 to 1471.

Yelak, Russia (Kuban), is a port on the Gulf of Taganrog and exports grain.

Yokkatchi, Japan (Miye), has manufactures of silk, paper, and porcelain.

Yokohama, Japan (cap. Kanagawa), is the chief port of Japan, and a coaling station. Exports silk and silk goods, tea, metals, etc. It has a number of notable or even imposing public buildings (prefectural buildings, custom-house, post-office, court-house, railway depot), and in its massive piers and quays, docks, club-houses, churches of various denominations, etc., wears a semi-European aspect.

Yokosuka, Japan (Kanagawa), is an important naval station, with dock yards, arsenals, and large facilities for ship-building.

Yonkers, New York (Westchester Co.), is a residential suburb of New York, and has manufactures of carpets, foundry and machine-shop products, patent medicines, furniture, etc. It also has large elevator works and ship-building yards. It was settled in 1650. The Manor-House, built in 1682, is now the city hall.

York, England (cap. York), is the seat of an archbishop, and its cathedral church of St. Peter was founded in the 7th century. The present building, a magnificent cruciform structure, exhibits various styles of architecture, having been begun by Archbishop Roger (1171), and continued by his successors till 1472. It retains a Norman crypt, and possibly some fragments of Saxon work, and among several tombs of the archbishops is one of Walter de Grey (13th century). There are several other ancient churches. The castle at York was founded by William the Conqueror, but the present buildings are of various later dates. Its manufactures include glass, confectionery, leather, artificial manure, railway cars, iron-foundries, etc.

York, Pennsylvania (c. h. York Co.), is a trade and industrial center in a productive farming section. Its leading industries are foundry and machine-shops, agricultural implement works, carriage and wagon works, flour- and grist-mills, furniture factories, etc. It has an extensive trade in agricultural products and general merchandise. The city was settled in 1735.

Youngstown, Ohio (c. h. Mahoning Co.), is an important commercial and railroad center, with many large manufactures. It has extensive iron-works, steel and rail mills, blast-furnaces, boiler works, car shops, engine-works, stove works, and also large oilcloth and rubber works.

Zaandam, Netherlands (North Holland), has oil-mills, sawmills, and factories for paper, cement, and colors. Here Peter the Great of Russia (1697) learned ship-building. Zaandam was formerly the chief Dutch port for the Greenland whale fisheries.

Zacatecas, Mexico (cap. Zacatecas), is an important mining center, and its chief industry is the reduction of silver ore. Pottery is also made here. It contains a cathedral, a mint, and an institute of sciences.

Zagazig, Egypt, is a grain and cotton center.

Zanesville, Ohio (c. h. Muskingum Co.), is a trade center in a fertile agricultural region, and near the city are extensive deposits of coal, clay, and limestone. The manufactures are varied and consist of the largest tile works in the world, potteries, agricultural implement works, bent-wood works, glass works, leather tanneries, woollen mills, etc. It was settled in 1799.

Zhitomir, Russia (cap. Volhynia), has manufactures of tobacco, spirits, soap, etc. It is an educational center, and the seat of a Greek archbishop and a Catholic bishop.

Zittau, Germany (Saxony), has manufactures of damask and woollen goods. Lignite is mined in the vicinity.

Zurich, Switzerland (cap. Zurich), is the most populous and most important town in Switzerland, built on the Limmat, as it issues from the Lake Zurich. Of recent years it has vastly increased in size and splendor. It is the center of the Swiss silk industry, while much cotton and machinery are also manufactured. Zurich was the scene of the labors of Zwingli, the reformer.

Zwickau, Germany (Saxony), manufactures chemicals, glass, earthenware, and machinery. Coal is mined. The church of St. Mary dates from 1451. Schumann, the musical composer, was born here.

Zwolle, Netherlands (cap. Overijssel), has several interesting buildings dating from the 15th to the 17th centuries. Thomas à Kempis, the author of "De Imitatione Christi," spent here the last sixty-four years of his life (1407-71).

THE GOVERNMENT

Executive

The chief executive officer of Canada is the Governor-General who receives his appointment from the King of England and holds office for five years. His salary of $50,000 per year is paid by the Dominion of Canada. His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught was appointed to this position January 30, 1911.

The Governor-General is assisted by a Council composed of fifteen heads of departments of which the Premier is the President. Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden became the Premier Oct. 11, 1911, following an election in which reciprocity with the United States was the chief issue.

The other portfolios are: Secretary of State, Minister of Trade and Commerce, Minister of Justice and Attorney-General, Minister of Marine Fisheries and Naval Service, Minister of Railways and Canals, Minister of Militia and Defence, Minister of Finance, Postmaster-General, Minister of Agriculture, Minister of Public Works, Minister of the Interior, Minister of Customs, Minister of Inland Revenues and Mines, and Minister of Labor. The salary of each member of the ministry is $7,000 per year except the Premier who receives $12,000.

Legislative

The Parliament of Canada is composed of a Senate and House of Commons. There are now 87 senators and 221 members of the House distributed as follows:

	Members Senators of House
Ontario.....	24 86
Quebec.....	24 65
Nova Scotia.....	10 18
New Brunswick.....	10 13
Manitoba.....	4 10
British Columbia.....	3 7
Prince Edward Island.....	4 4
Alberta.....	4 7
Saskatchewan.....	4 10

The term of the Senators is for life each receiving his appointment from the crown on the nomination of the Governor-General. The salary is $2,500 with the exception of the Speaker who receives $4,000.

The members of the House of Commons are elected by their respective constituencies for a term of five years unless sooner dissolved. Their salaries are the same as those of the Senators, but the Leader of the Opposition receives $7,000 in addition. $15 a day is deducted for absences.

Judicial

ceives a salary of $9,000 per annum, except the Chief Justice, who is paid an additional $1,000. These judges have civil, criminal, and appellate jurisdiction throughout Canada. From the decisions of this court the only tribunal to which appeal can be made is to the Judicial Committee of the Imperial Privy Council of Great Britain. The only other Federal Court is the Exchequer Court, presided over by a single judge, for trying cases connected with the revenue. Salary $8,000.

PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENTS

The Provinces have each a separate administration at whose head is a Lieutenant-Governor appointed by the Governor-General. The provinces have full powers of local government. The organization of the legislative department varies in different provinces.

 1912.—Mar. 12, the Provinces of Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec greatly enlarged by the addition of large sections of the Northwest Territory.

FOREST PRODUCTS

Canada's forest resources are almost unlimited. According to recent estimates there are about 1,248,798 square miles of forest area in Canada. These estimates do not include the great northern belt of forest, which is more or less conjecture. Mr. R. H. Campbell, Superintendent of Forestry, states that the inquiry made by a committee of the recent session of the Senate showed the natural resources of the northern districts of the west much greater than the public has any idea of.

Ontario contains the largest area of forest lands, estimated at about 102,000 square miles. North of the Canadian Pacific Railway are about 60,000,000 acres covered mostly by poplar, jackpine and spruce. Pulpwood standing on Crown lands, not disposed of, is estimated at about 350,000,000 cords. Red and white pine are found in large quantities in parts of the Province. The total red and white pine standing in the Crown reserves on unlicensed lands is over twelve billion feet.

Ontario forest reserves extend to about 16,300 square miles. It is estimated that there are on these reserves over seven billion feet of pine, which is being conserved to be sold under strict conditions.

EXTENSION OF MANITOBA, ONTARIO AND QUEBEC

One of the most important events in Western Canada during 1912, was the addition to Manitoba of a large section of the Northwest Territories, making the Province almost equal in area to its neighboring Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan (see area of Canada). This change has been pending since 1908 although it was not finally settled until after the passage on March 12, 1912, of "The Manitoba Boundaries Extension Act" by the House of Commons.

Manitoba's northern limit is now the 60th parallel of north altitude extending east from the northern boundary of Saskatchewan to where it intersects the western shore of Hudson Bay. The eastern boundary continues from the northeast corner of the old province in a northeasterly direction to a point where the 89th meridian of west longitude intersects the southern shore of Hudson Bay. The general direction is varied slightly to take in the most eastern point of Island Lake.

Ontario has been extended north to include the remainder of the territory of Keewatin and Quebec to include Ungava.

THE PRAIRIE PROVINCES

Manitoba

Manitoba is the most easterly of the three prairie provinces and with its new addition is a little larger than Saskatchewan. There are many lakes in the southern part. The eastern part has a broken surface heavily wooded and sparsely settled, though having valuable minerals.

The southern part of the province is fully occupied, and has all the appearance and characteristics of an old established farming country. The main line of the Canadian Pacific passes through it, having branches in many directions.

"Manitoba hard" wheat is well known. The deep, rich loam of the Canadian prairie, reinforced by its heavy subsoil, contains the elements necessary for the production of the clean, flinty berry. The average yield is thirty to forty bushels per acre.

Saskatchewan

Saskatchewan is the central prairie province and has an average elevation of 1,300 to 2,500 feet. 8,318 square miles of the surface is water. The province produced 4,780,440 bushels of wheat in 1898, and over twenty times that quantity in 1911, yet grain growing in Saskatchewan is but yet in its early stages, barely eight per cent. of the area of the crop districts being yet under cultivation.

The average rainfall is 27 inches, quite sufficient for good crop results. Jun- and July are the wettest months, although there is considerable precipitation in May and August.

Alberta

Southern Alberta has a soil as rich as any in Canada. The crops in this section have broken all records. It furnishes the world's standard winter wheat, by reason of its phosphates and lime. It is also turning out to be a great horse country. It is an "all-round" country, where all kinds of farming, dairying, poultry raising and animal husbandry are practised.

A vast stretch of this province from Athabaska Landing north and containing the immense valleys of the Athabaska and Peace rivers, has not yet been surveyed, and has few settlers outside the Hudson's Bay Company's posts. Close settlement has not gone much farther north than the Edmonton districts. It is a well wooded country and is becoming more popular for stock raising.

FACTS ABOUT CANADA

Canada contains one-third of the area of the British Empire, and is larger than the United States, including Alaska, by 111,992 square miles, Canada having an area of 3,729,665.

It would require 30 United Kingdoms and 18 Germanys to make up the area of Canada, which is almost as large as Europe, 18 times the size of France, or 33 of Italy.

The coast line of Canada, on three oceans, nearly equals half the circumference of the earth, being 13,000 miles long. The dimensions of the Dominion are 3,500 miles by 1,400. The frontier between the United States and Canada is 3,000 miles long, 1,600 by land and 1,400 by water.

The area of 100,000 square miles of the Great Lakes in Canada forms only a fifth of the total area of the larger fresh water lakes of Canada.

The largest and best national park in the world is in Canada, and contains 5,732 square miles. It had been aptly termed "Sixty Switzerlands in One." Banff is the gateway of this Canadian National Park, and is annually visited by thousands of tourists.

The distance from Halifax to Vancouver is greater than the distance from London to Halifax.

Of the total of 370,000,000 acres of Canadian land available for cultivation the prairie Provinces make up 218,900,000.

Bank clearings in Canada exceed $10,000,000,000.00 annually.

Canada possesses 29 chartered banks, with aggregate assets exceeding $1,400,000,000.00. The people of Canada have deposited in savings accounts in the chartered banks, the government post-office savings banks, and other institutions, over $700,000,000.00.

Canada's fisheries comprise a large part of her commerce. In 1911 the production amounted to $29,965,433. $26,122,596 of which was sea fishing and $3,842,827 inland. The increase in production over the previous year was $336,263.

Canada has a fishing fleet of 1,680 vessels, and 38,977 boats, manned by 68,610 men, and 24,978 more are employed on shore in connection with the trade.

It is estimated that branch factories of United States manufacturing concerns in Canada have been erected at a cost of $225,000,000. The total capital employed in the manufacturing plants of Canada is over $1,000,000,000. The value of production of the various plants is also placed at over $1,000,000,000 for the present year.

British Columbia's chief products are from the mine, with coal leading, followed by gold, copper, coke and silver coming next in importance, respectively. The total production for 1910 from 83 mines was $26,377,066.

Manitoba has 3,193 threshing outfits in operation. In 1912 there were 2,175,626 acres of crops in the Province.

It is closely estimated that British capital invested in Canada amounts to over $1,811,640,000.

The number of letters mailed in Canada has doubled in eight years, the number for last year having been 504,233,000. The net postal revenue was $9,146,952.

Canada's postal revenue from the thirteen most important cities, including Winnipeg, Vancouver, Calgary and Regina, for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1911, was $5,755,158. The total postal revenue for the year was $9,146,952.27.

The circulation of Dominion notes in 1911 was $89,994,270.25, an increase of $2,860,201.75 over the preceding year. There was a corresponding increase in the gold reserve.

The public debt of Canada amounted in 1911 to $474,941,487.42, with total assets of $134,899,435.39. The increase in the population of the Dominion and the surpluses shown by the finance department from year to year have operated to steadily reduce the per capita debt of Canada.

There were constructed in thirty Canadian cities in 1911, $128,765,991.00 worth of buildings, an increase of 32.36 per cent. over the building operations of the previous year. During the first half of 1912 the total building permits for the nine leading Western cities exceeded that of the ten leading Eastern ones by $1,352,089, amounting to $44,741,467.

During the year of 1911, Canada's field crops reached the highest figure on record, being $565,711,600 from 32,853,074 acres. Of this figure one-quarter was composed of the wheat yield, $138,567,000; oats, $126,812,000; barley, $23,004,000; rye, $2,086,000; peas, $4,647,700; buckwheat, $5,232,000; mixed grains, $10,127,000; flax, $19,467,000; beans, $2,219,000.

The expenditure for immigration to Canada during the year ending March 31, 1912, was $1,354,736. Of this $578,809 was spent in Canada, $376,726 in the British Isles, $30,546 in continental Europe, and $368,655 in the United States.

The 1911 census showed a total population in Canada of 7,202,122, being an increase of 1,830,807 or 32 per cent. over the previous census. The percentage of increase in the United States for the same period was 24.

In all Canada on March 31, 1911, there were only 1,865 prisoners in penitentiaries—an increase of 6 over the previous year. The annual cost of penitentiaries was $473,630.

Andrew Carnegie has assisted 100 Canadian libraries to the extent of over $2,000,000.

For the term of 1911-12, 10,174 students have been enrolled in Canadian universities, Toronto leading with 4,100, and McGill, Montreal, coming next with 2,158.

Winnipeg is the fourth manufacturing city in Canada. In 1911 there was $9,000,000 paid in wages in manufacturing establishments of the city. The branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in Winnipeg is the third largest in the Dominion.

The average duty against United States goods in Canada is 25.7 per cent., and the average United States duty against Canadian goods is 42 per cent. During 1911 the United States export trade with Canada amounted to $299,100,451, and the United States imports from Canada for the same period amounted to $93,923,757.

Canada's trade with the United States is increasing 25 times as fast as with Great Britain.

Canada's foreign trade in 1910-11 was $107 per head, and that of the United States was $40.

Since Confederation eleven parliaments have met, with 46 sessions.

Since Confederation there have been ten Governors General of Canada.

Of the 44,479 homesteaders in Western Canada for 1911, 13,038 were natives of United States, 553 Canadians returning from the United States, and 12,656 from Eastern Canada. The balance were British and continental immigrants.

Of the immigrants to Canada last year from the United States, Minnesota and the Dakotas provided half.

In 1911 a total of over 351,000 immigrants came to the Dominion. Of these 141,835 were from Great Britain, and 72,478 continentals.

Of the total wheat production of the Dominion, of 215,851,300 bushels in 1911, the West grew 194,083,000 or 90 per cent.

The Canadian Northern railway has the greatest grain elevator in the world at Port Arthur, with a capacity of 7,250,000 bushels.

The Canadian Northern railway has every contract let on a transcontinental line between Quebec city and Port Mann in British Columbia.

The total wheat haul of the C. N. R. for 1911 was 38,750,000 bushels, an increase of 14,000,000 bushels over 1910.

New works for 1912 on the C. P. R. included 1,100,000 of irrigation by means of 3,500 miles of ditches at a cost of $8,500,000; the spending of over $7,000,000 for car equipment, and over $20,000,000 for improvements in Western Canada.

The C. P. R. fleet consists of 71 steamships: on the Atlantic, 16 ships; great lakes, 5; ferry service, 2; B. C. lake and river, 21; B. C. coast service 23, and Pacific 4. These ships carry annually half a million passengers, have a staff of 11,500 crew and shore, travel collectively a distance equal to over 57 times round the world, burn 3,000 tons of coal daily, and placed in line would reach over 3 1/4 miles.

The C. P. R. has hotels with an accommodation of over 4,700 guests, and with a staff of 1,400.

Canada has one mile of railway to 280 people. Capital invested in the railways of Canada is $1,528,689,201.

Canada's railway mileage is now 25,400. In twenty years it has doubled. In 1836 there were 18 miles of railway in Canada.

and at Confederation this had increased to 2,278. At present there are nearly 7,000 miles under construction.

The Grand Trunk Pacific is constructing a 20,000-ton floating dry dock at Prince Rupert, which will dock the largest ship in the Pacific ocean, and will cost over $2,000,000.

Government surveys point out the possibility of a thousand-mile waterway from Edmonton to Winnipeg via the Saskatchewan river.

In developing her inland waterways Canada has built 72 miles of canals, which give permanent employment to 1,900 people.

Navigation in Canada is not confined to the great lakes. In northern Alberta there are 4,000 miles of a network of navigable waters. On the Peace river vessels drawing nine feet of water could travel for 900 miles. The industrial possibilities of Northern Alberta are shown by the fact that the waterfalls represent 775,000 horse-power.

In irrigation work Alberta is far advanced. In the C. P. R. western section there are 370,000 acres brought under irrigation, and 1,093,620 acres in the district. In the eastern section there are 1,156,220 acres, with 440,000 estimated to be irrigable.

HOMESTEADS IN CANADA

WHO IS ELIGIBLE.—A homestead (160 acres) may be taken up by any person who is the sole head of a family or by any male eighteen years of age or over who is a British subject or who declares his intention to become a British subject.

A widow having minor children of her own, dependent upon her for support, is permitted to make homestead entry as the sole head of a family.

ACQUIRING HOMESTEAD.—To acquire a homestead an applicant must make entry in person, either at the Dominion Lands Office for the district in which the land applied for is situated, or at a sub-agency authorized to transact business in such district. At the time of entry a fee of $10 must be paid.

APPLICATION FOR PATENT.—When a homesteader has completed his residence and cultivation duties, he makes his application for patent before the Agent of Dominion Lands for the district in which the homestead is situated, or before a sub-agent authorized to deal with lands in such district. If the duties have been satisfactorily performed patent issues to the homesteader shortly after without any further action on his part and the land thus becomes his absolute property.

RESIDENCE.—To earn patent for homestead, a person must reside in a habitable house upon the land for six months during each of three years. Such residence, however, need not be commenced before six months after the date on which entry for the land was secured.

IMPROVEMENT DUTIES.—Before being eligible to apply for patent, a homesteader must break (plough up) thirty acres of the homestead, of which twenty acres must be cropped. It is also required that a reasonable proportion of this cultivation must be done during each homestead year. Before being eligible to apply for patent, the homesteader must have a house on the homestead worth at least $300.

Pre-emption.—In certain districts in Southern Alberta and Saskatchewan, an additional 160 acres may be purchased under certain residence and improvement conditions by a person who has secured a homestead but who has not previously obtained a pre-emption under any Dominion Lands Act. Usually entry for homestead and pre-emption is made at the same time.

ENTRY.—As in the case of homesteads, entry must be made in person before the Agent of Dominion Lands in whose district the land is situated, or before a sub-agent authorized to deal with lands in such district. An entry fee of $10 must be paid at the time of entry. Only a person with a homestead entry may enter for a pre-emption.

RESIDENCE DUTIES.—In addition to the six months' residence in each of three years required in connection with homestead, a person who has entered for both homestead and pre-emption must put in six months' residence in each of three other years to secure patent for both. This residence may be put in on either homestead or pre-emption and must be in a habitable house.

IMPROVEMENT DUTIES.—The cultivation required in connection with a homestead and pre-emption is eighty acres. This may be done on either the homestead or pre-emption or part of it on each. A reasonable proportion of such cultivation must be done each year.

PAYMENT.—Payment for a pre-emption must be made at the rate of $3.00 per acre as follows:

One-third of the purchase price at the end of three years from date of entry. Balance in five equal annual installments with interest at 5 per cent. at the end of each year from the date of the pre-emption entry.

RECEIPTS AND PAYMENTS, CANADA, 1911

Statement of the Receipts and Payments from the Consolidated Fund for the year ending 31st March, 1911:

The receipts from the sources of the ordinary revenue of the country are paid into what is called the Consolidated Fund, and payments therefrom are made to cover the ordinary expenses. These receipts and payments, therefore, constitute what may be considered as the regular income and expenditure of the country, receipts from and expenditure out of loans and all other extraordinary transactions being excluded.

CENSUS REPORTS OF CANADIAN MANUFACTURERS 1911 CENSUS

The census reports of the manufacturers of Canada for 1911 showed an increase in ten years of 4,559 in the number of establishments, of $798,829,009 in the capital value, of 175,108 in the number of persons employed, of $127,274,301 in the earnings of salaries and wages, and of $683,722,157 in the value of products.

The following figures are comparative for the last two census years:

	1900	1910	Per cent. Increase
Employees	339,173	514,287	51.62
Salaries and Wages	113,249,350	240,523,651	112.38
Manufactured Products	481,053,375	1,164,775,523	142.13

During the past decade there has been evidently a steady tendency toward the merging of industry. Although the number of factories employing five hands and over increased from only 14,650 in 1900 to 16,198 in 1910, the values of products rose from $706,446,578 in 1900 to $1,147,021,684 in 1910. There are 14 industrial establishments in the Dominion each having a production of $5,000,000 or over annually, and 135 establishments each with an annual production of between $1,000,000 and $5,000,000.

During the five years from 1905 to 1910, the three prairie Provinces more than doubled the annual value of their industries, the figures aggregating $35,000,000 in 1905, as compared with $77,000,000 in 1910. During these five years comparative figures are as follows:

MANITOBA.—Number of establishments 1905, 354; 1910, 409; value of annual productions, 1905, $28,155,732; 1910, $53,671,609.

SASKATCHEWAN.—Number of establishments, 1905, 80; 1910, 173; value of products, 1905, $2,520,172; 1910, $6,132,132.

ALBERTA.—Number of establishments, 1905, 120; 1910, 290; value of products, 1905, $5,116,782; 1910, $18,698,826.

The cost of material used in Canadian factories in the year 1910, $601,140,765; which when deducted from the total value of finished products leaves a total of $563,634,767, representing the value added by manufacturers.

WHAT A BEGINNER NEEDS ON A CANADIAN FARM

Generally it may be said that a settler commencing on a half section will need four good horses, which will cost from $600 to $800; harness, $65; one breaking plow, or a combination plow, $27; one set of harrows, $26; one wagon, $75 to $80, if new, and if second-hand, $45; one seeder, $85; one mower and rake, $95; two cows, $80; provisions for himself and family, about $200. A habitable house, 18 by 20, one story high can be built for $200. It will, of course, have to be added to for the winter. He should also have one brood sow, $15; forty or fifty hens, $15. With this outfit he will be in a position to commence comfortably, and will be much better off than most of the early settlers were twenty years ago. Some of those who had scarcely any capital are now in independent circumstances. The outfit mentioned will cost about $1,500. When the first crop is ready for harvest a binder will be required, but it can be paid for out of the proceeds of the crop.

CANADIAN POSTAL RATES

POPULATION OF THE UNITED STATES

The thirteenth census of the United States was taken by the Bureau of the Census as of April 15, 1910. The total area enumerated includes continental United States, the territories of Alaska and Hawaii, and Porto Rico. The enumeration also includes persons stationed abroad in the military and naval service of the Government (including civilian employees, etc.), who were specially enumerated through the cooperation of the War and Navy Departments.

The United States (total area of enumeration).....	93,402,151	*77,256,630
Continental United States.....	91,972,266	75,994,575
Noncontiguous territory.....	1,429,885	1,262,055
Alaska.....	64,356	63,592
Hawaii.....	191,909	154,001
Porto Rico.....	1,118,012	†953,243
Military and naval service stationed abroad.....	55,608	91,219

The rate of increase from 1900 to 1910 was 20.9 per cent. for the total area of enumeration and 21 per cent. for continental United States. It should be noted that this table does not cover all the outlying possessions of the United States. Including the population of the Philippines and other possessions, the population living under the American flag is approximately as follows:

Population of the United States and possessions.....	101,100,000
Enumerated at the census of 1910.....	93,402,151
Philippine Islands, 1903.....	*7,635,426
Guam, estimated.....	9,000
Samoa, estimated.....	6,100
Panama Canal Zone, estimated.....	50,000

†The census of 1911 for Panama Canal Zone gives 154,255.

GROWTH OF JEWISH POPULATION

According to a recent report of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society 1,496 of Jewish immigrants arriving at the port of New York in 1911 were on their way to points west of the Mississippi. It is to be observed, however, that no less than 475 gave their destination as Missouri—meaning, no doubt, chiefly St. Louis. The entire number of those who were going West, however, was only 4.25 per cent. of the total Jewish immigration of the year.

The Society has published a chart showing facts with regard to the Jewish population of 81 cities in 24 States. The growth of population in ten years in these 81 cities varied from 100 to 200 per cent. The increase of Jewish population in that period was anywhere from 200 to 800 per cent. Sixty-one cities showed marked increase of Jewish residents, only 26 showed no notable gain.

The table showed that while Duluth had gained 300 per cent., Atlanta 100 per cent., Sioux City 700 per cent., Seattle 400 per cent., Wichita, Kan., 500 per cent., Grand Forks, N. D., 800 per cent., Portland, Ore., 200 per cent., Richmond, Va., had gained only 30 per cent., and Charleston, S. C., only 50 per cent.

INDEX

CITIES AND TOWNS OF THE UNITED STATES

1910 CENSUS

In this compilation the official population figures, as determined by the Thirteenth (1910) Census of the United States, are given for all cities, villages and boroughs separately enumerated by the government officials; of the places not separately enumerated by the Census Bureau, and for which there are no government figures obtainable, recent estimates, supplied by local officials and by other reliable authorities, are given. Capitals of states are printed in capital letters, and places having one hundred or more inhabitants are named. The index references enclosed in parentheses indicate location of city or village on the accompanying maps.

Some comparatively unimportant places have been omitted from the maps to avoid crowding and consequent indistinctness in the engraving; such omitted towns will be found in the list, and their situation on the map, in each case, may readily be determined by means of the index-reference letters and numbers.

TOTAL POPULATION OF THE UNITED STATES

The Thirteenth Census of the United States was taken by the Bureau of the Census as of April 15, 1910. The total area enumerated includes continental United States, the territories of Alaska and Hawaii, and Porto Rico. The enumeration also includes persons stationed abroad in the military and naval service of the Government (including civilian employees, etc.), who were specially enumerated through the cooperation of the War and Navy Departments.

The following table gives the total population for the area enumerated in 1910. The corresponding census figures for 1900 are also given for purposes of comparison.

The United States (total area of enumeration) . . .	93,402,151	¹ 77,256,630
Continental United States	91,972,266	75,994,575
Noncontiguous territory	1,429,885	1,262,055
Alaska	64,356	63,592
Hawaii	191,909	154,001
Porto Rico	1,118,012	² 953,243
Persons in military and naval service stationed abroad	55,608	91,219

² According to the census of Porto Rico taken in 1899 under the direction of the War Department.

The rate of increase from 1900 to 1910 was 20.9 per cent. for the total area of enumeration and 21 per cent. for continental United States. It should be noted that this table does not cover all the outlying possessions of the United States. Including the population of the Philippines and other possessions, the population living under the American flag is approximately as follows :

Population of the United States and possessions	101,100,000
Enumerated at the census of 1910	93,402,151
Philippine Islands, 1903	7,635,426
Guam, estimated	9,000
Samoa, estimated	6,100
Panama Canal Zone, estimated	50,000

The population of continental United States is 91,972,266. Compared with the population of 75,994,575 in 1900 this represents an increase during the past decade of 15,977,691, or 21 per cent. The rate of increase was slightly greater than during the preceding decade, 1890-1900, when it was 20.7 per cent.
